ENVOY OF JAPAN ARRIVES IN U. S. SEEKING PEACE

Speeds by Airplane to Washington.

No Reception Plans

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 [Special].—No special plans were being made by governmental officials for the reception of Saburo Kurusu, special envoy of Japan who is flying here from San Francisco. The state department announced late today that Kurusu and Adm. Nomura, the Japanese ambassador here, will not confer with Secretary of State Cordell Hull until Monday morning. President Roosevelt said today that he has no appointment to see Kurusu as yet but he thought it likely he will meet the Japanese emissary early next week.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 14 (AP).—A first ranking diplomat of Japan, speeding toward momentous talks in Washington, descended from fog shrouded skies today with a message that Japan still saw hope of peace in the war fearful Pacific.

Dapper, graying Saburo Kurusu wouldn't say whether he was carrying specific proposals for amity from his government, but commented in typical American that "I hope to break thru the line and make a touchdown."

Kurusu arrived from Honolulu on the California Clipper, fogbound two hours over San Francisco bay before the landing.

"If I didn't have a hope [for peace], why do you think I came such a long way?" Kurusu asked smilingly while parrying specific questions of newsmen.

Came to Assist Ambassador.

"I came to offer my all-out assistance to my colleague, Ambassador Nomura, in Washington. As a diplomat with an important mission, I am not in a position to say much. All the talking must be done in Washington. I fully realize the difficulty of my task.'

Kurusu said there was no foundation to reports that he would replace Nomura.

Later, as he boarded a plane for Los Angeles en route to New York and Washington, Kurusu commented:

"There are many people who, for their own advantages, want to bring our two countries into war. But we must look at things from our own point of view. We have our own responsibilities of our own people first, and then to the world. So whatever comes to pass, we should look out for our own good."

Hopeful for Peace.

It shouldn't be necessary, he added, to have to search for reasons for peace in the Pacific, "But the Japanese and the American peoples should take peace for granted."

Persons in high authority have expressed the opinion that the course of peace or war with Japan rested on Kurusu's forthcoming conversations. There was indication in Japan that fully as much importance was being attached there to his mission.

CALL MEN AND MONEY

TOKIO, Nov. 14 (AP).—Japan dug deeply today into her reserves of men and money for war on the eve of a special session of parliament marking one of her sharpest crises in modern times.

The cabinet approved for submission tomorrow at the opening of the special session an extraordinary war fund of 3,800,000,000 yen [nominally $874,000,000] and a general appropriation of 510,000,000 yen [$117,300,000].

The war office announced a drastic revision of conscription regulations, rendering scores of thousands of hitherto exempt men liable to early summons to the colors.

Pointing up the "crisis session" is the prospective reopening of negotiations in Washington, D. C., thru a special envoy, Saburo Kurusu, who now is in the United States.

Another factor in the crisis is the dispute between Japan and Russia over the sinking of the Japanese liner Kehi Maru in the Sea of Japan on Nov. 5.

Informed sources said that Russia replied only today to Japan's urgent protest and they understood that Russia rejected all major Japanese claims.

ATLANTIC FRONT TO BE PUSHED TO EUROPE'S COAST

Recall Marines from Posts in China.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—With the neutrality act scrapped by congress, President Roosevelt today pushed his war program forward on two fronts.

While ordering United States marines out of Japanese controled parts of China as a precaution against war in that region he prepared to deploy our naval and air forces in European waters in full coöperation with the British in America's undeclared war on Germany and Italy.

In response to questions at his press conference, where he announced the withdrawal of the marines from China, the President said he didn't know whether war with Japan could be avoided but he hoped so.

Withdrawn as Precaution.

The only American armed forces remaining in China after the withdrawal of the marines will be four gunboats on the Yangtze river patrol. They will be withdrawn if hostilities should develop.

These precautions are due to the consideration that the marines, numbering less than 1,000, and the gunboats and their crews would quickly be attacked and captured by the Japanese in the event of war between Japan and the United States.

While Commander in Chief Roosevelt was preparing to advance the Atlantic fronts to the British Isles in our undeclared war and as far beyond as necessary to extirpate the German menace to allied shipping, information from London indicated that United States naval forces already are operating along with British warships off the coast of continental Europe.

Tell of Sea Battle.

A London dispatch described a successful battle between American and British warships and German submarines, torpedo launches, and a torpedo launch carrier off the Norwegian approaches to Russian arctic ports.

The United States navy department, however, said in a formal statement that it has "absolutely no information to substantiate this or any similar report." Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox announced some time ago that the destruction or capture of axis warships by American forces would not be reported because it is deemed destructive of German morale to keep the Nazis guessing on the fate of missing submarines and other war craft.

Neutrality Repeal Clears Way.

The scrapping of the neutrality act now makes it possible for the President not only to send formidable American naval forces into European waters, but to take over the entire job of convoying arms cargoes to Great Britain, thus releasing British naval units for service in the Mediterranean and the far east in defense of the British empire.

Until the neutrality act was knocked out the President was inhibited from convoying arms cargoes

TRANSFER MANY U. S. COMBAT PLANES TO SECRET DESTINATION

With the American Army on Maneuvers in the Carolinas, Nov. 14 (AP).—Sudden withdrawal of combat planes for a secret destination has cut into the air power which the army, the navy, and the marine corps has ready for the army maneuvers in the Carolinas, it was learned today.

An unimpeachable authority disclosed that aerial units, already here for the army general headquarters war games Nov. 15-30, have been recalled without explanation.

"We don't know where they have gone, but our best guess is overseas," a high officer said.

He would not say whether the planes were army, navy, or marine, how many there were, or whether the pilots also were sent on the mission. His position was so high that the information could not be challenged. Approximately 400 planes originally were assigned for the maneuvers.

STAB IN THE BACK

Hardware Art Nicks Edge of Priority Knife

BY MARCIA WINN.

Art lies where one sees it, one is told. This should make it easy to appreciate the display of hardware at the Kuh art gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue.

The hardware frankly is hardware, but it also is jewelry. That is, it may be draped around the human neck as a necklace. In this way it serves a double purpose, for when priorities really pinch, the necklace may be unstrung and the separate parts put to household use.

Studded with Tacks.

You need an angle brace? One of the necklaces, designed by Anni Albers and Alex Read of Black Mountain college near Asheville, N. C., contains the very thing. Six, in fact. They now are studded with brass upholstery tacks and fastened with picture hooks, but all readily can be reduced from necklace to necessity.

A metal washer for the plumbing? One of the loveliest necklaces in the display will fill this need. It contains at least 50 lead washers strung on rose velvet. Another, strung on a black door spring, contains only 10 or so, but their future usefulness is augmented by the green rubber hosing which forms their base.

As Emergency Insulator.

A clay insulator for electric wiring? Several necklaces contain this desirable. In one they dangle from a bathroom chain, interspersed with brass springs. Screws? One necklace has them in all widths, all lengths, put together with pretty little blue beads. It makes a heavy necklace, a casual pound or so, but think what you can do with the screws.

Gilded beer caps, separated by fat imitation pearls, and strung on a door chain make another necklace. This is a little prickly on bare skin, but not half as cumbersome as the circular aluminum [aluminum, Mr. Knudsen!] sink strainer from which falls a straight shower of shining paper clips. This piece, which Katherine Kuh, director of the gallery, wore valiantly for a whole day, is strung on bath room chain.

Necklace of Bobby Pins.

One necklace is made of strung bobby pins, another of metal hair curlers, and a third of new corks separated by gilt bobby pins. Small glass door knobs, strung on a metal key chain, compose one enticing little number.

All of this art is purposeful, but one of the necklaces has as uncertain a future as its wearer's neck, for it is made of elbow macaroni and there is no priority on rain.

STEINHARDT-LITVINOV PLANE REPORTED SAFE AT RUSSIAN OIL PORT

LONDON, Nov. 15 [Saturday].—The ministry of information announced today the plane carrying Sir Walter Monckton, British middle east information chief, and presumably also United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and Maxim M. Litvinov, Russian envoy to Washington, had arrived safely at Baku, Russian oil port, Thursday. Anxiety had been reported at Teheran, Iran, where the plane had been expected for several days.

Laurence Steinhardt [top] and Maxim Litvinov.

The ministry of information said it had no information about any occupants of the plane other than Sir Walter, altho earlier reports indicated that Steinhardt and Litvinov left Kuibyshev aboard the same craft with him.

NUDE IN THE RAIN, HE'S JUST A RAW SOLDIER ON DUTY

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 14 (AP).—In the eternal deluge of the Ethiopian rainy season a Nubian sentry stood, rifle in hand, helmet balanced on bayonet, ammunition bandolier correctly worn. Otherwise he was completely nude.

"Where in heaven's name is your uniform?" demanded an apoplectic British general who came his way.

"Sir," replied the Nubian, "I got so tired drying out my clothes I thought I would go about like I do at home."

Duck Hits Windshield; Driver May Lose Eye

A duck, apparently blinded by headlights, crashed thru the windshield of a car driven by Otto Styx, 6828 Calumet avenue, in the Southwest highway near 105th street yesterday. The broken glass struck Styx in his left eye, and it is feared the injury will cause the eye's removal.

Peru to Pay Tokio $230,000 for Anti-Jap Riot Damages

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—The foreign office today announced that Peru has consented to pay an indemnity of $230,000 to cover damages caused to Japanese residents in the anti-Japanese outbreak in Lima in May, 1940.

Wholesale Egg Prices Rise to 12 Year Peak

Costs of filling Chicago's market basket zoomed yesterday as lend-lease food purchases by the government for shipment to Britain again reacted strongly on the wholesale market. Egg prices were driven up 1 to 3½ cents a dozen and the price of best grade eggs to 40 cents a dozen, the highest wholesale price in almost 12 years.

The advance in egg prices was the sharpest registered on the Chicago Mercantile exchange in several years. In 17 days eggs have risen as much as 6 cents a dozen on the exchange. Wholesale prices had not touched 40 cents a dozen before since January, 1930. The advance forecast a further advance in the present retail price of 49 cents a dozen.

Heavy Buying for 7 Months.

Traders said that within the last seven months the government has bought from 75 to 100 million dollars worth of eggs to send the British. It bought almost 44 million dozens of eggs in the shell at prices that climbed from 18 cents a dozen last spring to 39¼ cents in the last few days. It also bought more than 66 million pounds of frozen eggs, for which the present price is 23½ to 24½ cents a pound. In addition, it purchased 32,931,755 pounds of dried eggs, paying up to $1.25 a pound.

Only 120,000 dozens of eggs arrived in Chicago yesterday—half the normal daily consumption of the city. A seasonal decline in production is having its effect on the market.

Other Food Prices Rise.

The prices of other food staples subject to government lend-lease buying have been climbing appreciably. With government officials indicating that 1 billion dollars is to be spent on lend-lease food in the coming year, shoppers may expect markups on all items on the store shelves.

A price comparison showing retail trends within the last month and year follows:

	Yesterday. [cents]	Mo. ago. [cents]	Yr. ago. [cents]
Eggs, dozen	49	47	37
Lard, lb.	17	17	11
Pork loins, lb.	29	31	22½
Butter, lb.	42	41	37
Cheese, lb.	39	39	29
Beef [pot roast], lb.	27	27	27
Milk, qt.	13½	13½	9
Oleomargarine, lb.	23	21	21
Coffee, lb.	31@32	30@31	25
Salad dressing, qt.	39	37	32

Among the commodities recently purchased for lend-lease shipment to Britain was 391,000 pounds of canned chicken, for which the government paid more than $1 a pound.

Quiz Explorer About Death of Wealthy Wife

MONTERREY, Mexico, Nov. 14 [Special].—Dr. Arthur Frederick Torrance, noted explorer and scientist, was held incommunicado by police tonight following his reconstruction of the circumstances which he contends were attendant in the death of his bride, the former Mrs. Ada Loveland, wealthy widow of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dr. A. F. Torrance.

Torrance asserted that the 70 year old woman, whom he married only a month ago, was fatally injured Saturday night on their honeymoon tour when she swerved their limousine into a ditch to avoid a cow on the road.

However, the dead woman's son, Richard Loveland of Los Angeles, an American government attorney, has made a written complaint expressing his suspicion that she was slain rather than accidentally injured. The body of his mother has been ordered exhumed for an autopsy.

Famous as Adventurer.

Dr. Torrance is internationally famous for his high adventure and scientific work in remote corners of the world. He was associated with Lawrence of Arabia and Trader Horn, he was president of Tsing-Tao university in China, he is an expert on tropical diseases and was credited with conquering sleeping sickness in Africa. He led expeditions to Borneo, Burma, Siam, Cochin China, Tibet, Manchuria, Madagascar, and Africa.

After being held all night under police guard in the Hotel Monterrey, and being questioned for many hours by Mexican authorities, Torrance was taken this afternoon to the scene where he said the accident occurred about 10 miles north of here.

He had difficulty finding the site, but on the third attempt pointed to a 6 foot scar on a shallow embankment and declared, "This is the place." In the manner he described, police officials drove the Torrances' car, its cushions still stiff with blood, into the roadside ditch.

Throws Himself Into Mud.

A dozen times the explorer threw himself full length into the muddy roadside in relating how he said he and his wife were thrown from the car. He explained that Mrs. Torrance had struck her head on the rear view mirror, inflicting fatal injuries. Altho he insisted the car had overturned, police asserted they were unable to find any marks on the automobile.

Loveland told District Attorney José Juan Vallejo at an official hearing today that he became suspicious of the circumstances of his mother's death as a result of letters he had received from her and after Torrance informed him by long distance telephone that it was necessary to bury her immediately. As a result Loveland came to Monterrey.

He said his mother wrote him that Dr. Torrance had repeatedly administered to her medicines to ward off tropical fevers but which she feared were affecting her health.

Burial Story Called Untrue.

Worried about her health, he got in telephonic communication with Torrance who told him, he related, that his mother was dead and that she had been buried on Sunday, the day after her death, the hurried burial being necessary because there were no embalming facilities in Monterrey.

Loveland also quoted Torrance as having told him that removal of the body to California or Kalamazoo would be impossible and that it would cost thousands of dollars.

Evaristo D. Garcia, secretary of Nuevo Leon state police, said this

BRAZIL INDIANS POISON AND SLAY 7 MEMBERS OF PEACE COMMISSION

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Nov. 14 (AP).—Savage Indians of the Chavantes tribe massacred at least seven members of an expedition sent to conquer them with gifts and kindness in the little known interior of Goyaz state, officials said today.

The massacre occurred near Rio del Mortes [River of the Dead]. The expedition, sent by the government in an effort to make peace with the Indians, carried no firearms.

The officials said seven members of the expedition were given poisoned fruit by the Indians, who slaughtered them while they were ill. Whether the other four members reached safety was not immediately disclosed.

O'BRIEN ASKS 25 MORE POLICE TO HUNT GAMBLERS

Grand Jury Quizzes Chief of Goons.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, who three days ago was outspokenly condemned by State's Attorney Courtney for failure to prosecute wide open gambling and was summoned before the grand jury to explain his lethargy, yesterday requested 25 more highway policemen.

The sheriff already has 125 highway police who, Courtney charged, conduct fake gambling raids and fail to protect citizens from sluggings by labor goons.

In submitting his request for more deputies to the Circuit court judges' committee on help, O'Brien explained that they are needed to "suppress gambling and vice which requires continuous activity on the part of this department."

O'Brien's Request Highest.

The judges' committee sets the number of employés in the 13 county fee offices for the coming year. Ten of the 13 departments made their requests yesterday. Of the 10, only three asked for increased help, and O'Brien asked for the most. Harry Hill, chief probation officer of the Juvenile court, requested 22 additional employés for 1942, and Thomas J. Bowler, clerk of the Criminal court, asked to add one stenographer.

The committee, headed by Judge Robert J. Dunne, will meet Monday to consider the requests. In making its decisions the committee will be faced with the sad state of county finances which have been going down hill for a number of years. On Sept. 30 the county owed $6,437,000 in unpaid bills and judgments, more than at any time since 1932 for the corresponding date.

Wants to Hunt Saboteurs.

The full statement by Sheriff O'Brien explaining the urgency for 25 more policemen read as follows:

"General duty thruout the county. Request for 25 additional deputy sheriffs is necessitated by reason of the increase in various functions of the department in coöperating with the federal government in investigations of sabotage and espionage and various complaints on individuals and organizations, in checking un-American activities, together with suppression of gambling and vice thruout the county, which requires continuous activity on the part of this department."

Pay Roll Up $500,000.

County records show that the number of employés under the sheriff's wing increased from 647 in 1932 to 732 in 1940, and that their salaries jumped from $1,084,235 to $1,597,125 over the same period.

Hill's report on the Juvenile court explained that 33 employés are being dropped, thru the abolition of the mothers' pension division.

The state assembly this year enacted a law which brings mothers' pensions under the federal social security division. The Juvenile court is thus asking for 156 employés in 1942, compared with 167 this year.

The number of employés in the fee offices this year is 1,822, only one less than in 1940, when the number was the largest since 1929. If yesterday's requests should be granted the total would rise to 1,837.

FLEMING GETS WARNING

Aroused over continued labor terrorism in the Maywood milk war and the failure of Sheriff O'Brien's deputies to protect independent dairy drivers, the Cook county grand jury took action yesterday.

The jurors first summoned James B. Fleming, chief of the sheriff's county highway police, to appear before them. It was reported the jurors made it plain to the highway chief that they considered it his responsibility to protect drivers of the Maywood Farms, Inc., chief target of a union drive to enroll the company's drivers.

Later Oscar Miske, head of the Maywood dairy, was called before the jury. Miske, it was reported, told the jurors of repeated attacks by labor goons on his employés and customers since the union started its coercive campaign. Miske also was reported to have told the jurors about the lack of protection given to his employés by the sheriff's office.

Altho Miske would not comment on the grand jury investigation, it was said the jurors instructed him to again request police protection from Fleming, who last night said Miske had made such a request.

"I have assigned five squads, working out of the Homewood and Willow Springs stations, to protect milk deliveries to and from the plant and to watch for any trouble at the plant," Fleming said. "These squads will be under the supervision of Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the Homewood station."

Earlier in the day, William B. Gemmill, attorney for the Maywood firm, filed a petition before Judge John C. Lewe seeking books and records of local 753 of the milk wagon drivers' union. Gemmill said the records would prove "a conspiracy and agreement by the union to prevent by unlawful means, the delivery of milk to the Maywod Farms company and products of the company to its customers."

Gemmill said he hoped particularly to identify thru the records, "additional participants in the overt acts of violence as charged in the petition." Judge Lewe set Tuesday for a hearing.

Files Countercharge.

Attorney David Riskind, counsel for the union, countered with a petition asking that the dairy company and the Hargrave Detective agency be enjoined from intimidating and threatening union pickets. The petition charged the company had hired the detective agency and that the agency had sent out 50 hoodlums, some of them ex-convicts, to harass the union pickets.

Judge Lewe set Tuesday for Gemmill to answer this petition. Hearing on the dairy company's petition that three union officials be cited for contempt for violation of an injunction banning violence, also was continued until Tuesday.

In the hearing yesterday before Judge Lewe, Thomas J. Haggerty, secretary and treasurer of the union, denied he had been the leader of a carload of men who had fired upon Herman Wadler, an independent dairy store owner, last Friday.

At previous hearing Wadler identified Haggerty in the courtroom as a passenger in a car from which bullets had been fired at him.

AT LAST! TAVERN KEEPER ADMITS HE BROKE LAW

State Senator Harold G. Ward, recently elected judge of the Superior court, has been chairman of the Chicago Liquor Appeals commission for seven years. In that time, he said yesterday, he never has heard a tavern owner admit he had violated the law—until yesterday.

Alois Ruckstuhl, a Swiss who was naturalized in 1935, appeared before the commission charged with having sold drinks in his tavern, 1801 West School street, before noon Sunday, Aug. 24.

"I was in the tavern getting some money for church," Ruckstuhl explained, "when I saw some friends at the door. I said, 'Come in and have a drink.' They did. Then I saw a policeman at the door and I let him in and he arrested me. I did wrong, but I did not intend to, and I am sorry."

The commission took under advisement Ruckstuhl's appeal to have his license reinstated.

BURGLARY CHIEF, AGE 13, SENT TO TRAINING SCHOOL

John Mheenbeek, 13 years old, 3114 Sheffield avenue, leader of a youthful burglary gang, was sent to the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles yesterday by Judge Frank Bicek in Juvenile court. Six other members of the gang were given continuances for two weeks pending further investigation. The gang confessed to more than 50 burglaries, police said.

Robert Fuller, 14, of 1140 Wellington avenue, another member of the gang, who escaped from the County hospital Oct. 25 while awaiting trial, was recaptured last night by Lieut. John T. O'Malley. He was taken to the hospital after developing a fever and ran away while left without guard. He was seized with his father, Arthur, 41, at Belmont and Lakewood avenues. The father also was locked up.

GRAND JURY GETS TOUGH IN PROBE OF GAMING RING

Police Officer Ousted for Failure to Appear.

The grand jury, which is making a sweeping investigation of the Cook county gambling syndicate headed by Jack Guzik and Frank Nitti, was reported to have taken a sharp tone yesterday in warnings to public officials whose communities tolerate slot machines and gaming resorts.

Fred Hager.

Apparently the grand jurors also were irked by the failure of Lieut. Fred Hager of the county highway police to appear in answer to a subpena, and were little mollified when the highway police chief, James Fleming, announced late in the afternoon that Hager had been discharged. State's Attorney Courtney issued a forthwith subpena ordering that he be brought in under arrest if necessary.

Assigned to Cicero Area.

Hager was assigned to the Willow Springs police district, which includes Cicero, the most extensive of the county gambling hotbeds. He was the officer in charge of making what the state's attorney designated "Sheriff O'Brien's fake raids. It was rumored last night that he was out of town; his wife said he had not been in his home at 1356 North Park avenue since noon Thursday [he was called to the grand jury hearing for that afternoon].

The warning about gambling tolerance was given to the officers and chiefs of police of four towns—Cicero, Chicago Heights, Blue Island, and Lyons—who had all been summoned to the Criminal courts building.

It was reported that little testimony was taken from them; that the grand jurors did most of the talking, to this effect: [1] There was indisputable proof there had been gambling in the communities; [2] that the heat was on now and slot machines and gambling games were shut down; [3] that this situation was known in the suburbs, and [4] that if gambling started up again officials might find themselves under indictment for malfeasance.

Four More Groups Called.

Officials and chiefs from four more communities were told to report to the investigating body Monday. These towns are Calumet City, Calumet Park, Skokie, and Morton Grove. It is expected they will be told, as those interviewed yesterday were told, that no excuses will be recognized.

The importance of Hager as a witness was augmented by the reported testimony of a former employé of a Cicero gambling house. He was said to have related that the notorious Rock Garden gambling house in Cicero had been "raided" seven times by the county police, who are under Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, and that the house was warned in advance each time. He said he was taken to the police station each time, but never went to court, and was surprised to learn from police records that he had been fined for being a keeper of a gambling house.

Wilburt F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, said he knew that Hager was in the Criminal courts building Thursday afternoon and was unable to understand what motive kept him from seeing the grand jurors.

statement, if true, was important, because the burial information cited was contrary to facts. He said the body was buried on Monday, not Sunday, and that there are embalming facilities in Monterrey.

District Attorney Vallejo said that upon completion of the inquiry, which will continue tomorrow, he will determine whether to recommend Dr. Torrance's release or his formal arrest and indictment.

Loveland in U. S. Service.

Loveland, 31 years old, attended law schools at the University of Southern California, where Dr. Torrance was once a student, and at the University of Chicago. He is associated with the legal department of the United States bureau of reclamation with headquarters in Sacramento, Cal.

His mother, who was 70 years old, was the widow of William Loveland, millionaire paper manufacturer of Kalamazoo and Watervliet, Mich. Torrance said he met her in Honolulu about four years ago. He visited her several times in Kalamazoo and they left there together about five weeks ago on the trip that brought them to Mexico.

Before leaving Michigan, Mrs. Loveland added a codicil to her will establishing a trust fund of $20,000 for Torrance in the event they were married. On Oct. 18, about a week later, they were married at Williamsburg, Ky. However, from New Orleans the bride sent back to Kalamazoo a letter revoking the codicil.

Torrance told police that he and his bride had exchanged powers of attorney so that each could handle the affairs of the other but he asserted he had not known until after the investigation into her death that his bride was wealthy.

Born in England.

Dr. Torrance, of Scotch ancestry, was born in Blackpool, England, 57 years ago. He attended Rugby in England, went to the United States in 1905, and became a naturalized citizen of that country in 1914.

An early profession in America was in the pulpit in Long Beach and Los Angeles, Cal. In 1921 his first wife, Mrs. Hazel Brice Torrance, obtained a divorce and he was dropped from the Southern California Methodist conference. Later he became a leader in the interchurch world movement.

On one of his numerous expeditions to study disease bearing insects, a safari into central Africa in 1911, his guide was Zambesi Jack, better known as Trader Horn. He subsequently spent some time with Lawrence of Arabia and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia.

Goes to Asia, Too.

In 1923 he explored Cochin China on research for the Royal Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, of which he was a member, being awarded several medals for this work. The following year he was president of Tsing-Tao university, China.

He is credited with conquering sleeping sickness in Africa. He investigated leprosy and elephantiasis in Borneo and discovered a tribe of bisexuals among natives of Central Africa. He was the author of four books, one of which, "Jungle Mania," an American best seller in 1933, was withdrawn by its London publishers after Dr. Torrance was accused of plagiarism.

He is listed in Who's Who as a member of the following clubs: Royal Sports, Bangkok, Siam; Nairobi Sports, East Africa, and the Explorers' and Salmagundi of New York. He made his New York home at the Salmagundi club.

Mrs. Ruth Simmons Russek, 35 years old, of the Drake hotel, was awarded a divorce by Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday from Harold Russek, 40, an executive of a women's apparel store at 200 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. Russek, who charged desertion, was awarded the custody of their two children, Harold II., 13, and Jill, 10. She also was understood to have received a large out of court settlement.

PROPOSES DELAY IN PRIMARY TO SAVE EXTRA COST

Attorney John F. Tyrrell, election law expert and vice chairman of the Republican state central committee, proposed yesterday in a letter to Gov. Dwight Green that he convene the legislature in special session and ask it to delay the April primary election until June to coincide with the election of five Supreme court judges. About one million dollars would be saved by the delay, Tyrrell contended. Tyrell predicted that a special session on the one subject could be concluded within 10 days, and would not cost more than $10,000.

Sen. Barkley Has Fainting Spell at End of Speech

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 14 (AP).—Sen. Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.], senate majority leader, suffered a fainting spell at the conclusion of a speech here tonight. He quickly recovered and was taken to his room at the Hotel Peabody from the auditorium, where he addressed the Tennessee Education association. An attending physician said the senator "would be all right."

BRITISH REPORT ONLY 18 MISSING FROM ARK ROYAL

Writer Tells Air Carrier's Fight After Torpedoing.

LONDON, Nov. 15 [Saturday] (AP).—The 22,000 ton British aircraft carrier Ark Royal, which from the Arctic circle to the Cape of Good Hope had carried into action against the axis an honored name going back to the defeat of the Spanish armada, sank near Gibraltar yesterday with torpedo wounds from an axis submarine—but only 18 of her crew of more than 1,600 men were lost with her.

Even some of these—all ratings, the British term for seamen—may be safe on other ships, the admiralty announced today.

Struggles for 12 Hours.

A Reuters news agency correspondent who was aboard the vessel said it was torpedoed Thursday and for 12 hours it was towed toward port with a gaping hole in her slanting side.

"But at 4:30 a. m. yesterday the captain sadly realized his vessel could not be saved and gave the order to abandon ship," he wrote. "Two hours later the majestic Ark Royal plunged to her grave."

One torpedo struck the big ship with a shuddering crash, putting out all lights, the correspondent revealed.

"In only a matter of moments she was listing alarmingly," he said. "The engines stopped and it was then that the first order was given to abandon the ship. The sea was calm so that an accompanying destroyer was able to come close under the rails and throw up ropes on which the men slipped down to the destroyer's forecastle.

Call It "Luxury Torpedoing."

"'This is a luxury torpedoing,' commented one marine lieutenant as he swung safely to the destroyer.

"The captain [Capt. L. E. H. Maund], some senior and engineer officers, and a number of seamen remained aboard for an unsuccessful attempt to get the engines working again.

"'We got the pumps started,' one said later, 'but the water rose fast. We managed to get some steam up but after a while the gauges fell, the lights dimmed, and we knew it was hopeless.'"

Goes Down Like "Tired Child."

An officer aboard a destroyer which stood by the Ark Royal to the last said: "Just before she sank she had a 35 degree list to the starboard. We realized she was finished. She toppled over like a tired child. Her stern reared up for a moment, then gently slid beneath the waves."

[Spanish reports placed the scene of her sinking as "off" Marbella, Spain, a port 45 miles northwest of Gibraltar, but so situated that a line could be drawn from it to a point 85 miles off Gibraltar.]

The Ark Royal was the greatest casualty the British navy has had since the German battleship Bismarck sank the British battle cruiser Hood last May and was herself destroyed by British naval squadrons which caught her before she made port. The Ark Royal, incidentally, made the Bismarck victory possible by launching torpedo planes which crippled the German warship for the final kill.

Early in the war the Germans claimed to have sunk the Ark Royal, later asking mockingly again and again, "Where is the Ark Royal?" The admiralty today revealed where she had been—fighting Nazis from the arctic circle to the Cape of Good Hope.

Officer's Wife in U. S.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14 (AP).—Mrs. Peter T. Bracelin, wife of an officer on the torpedoed Ark Royal, eagerly awaited news from the British admiralty today on the fate of her husband, a commander on the aircraft carrier. Mrs. Bracelin, a student in the Yale graduate school, has two small children.

SAYS ARK ROYALS NAZIS 'SUNK' WERE 'DECOY' VESSELS

New York, Nov. 14 [Special].—James L. Dick, a correspondent for Ohio and western newspapers who recently returned from Europe, described today one of the "sinkings" of the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal as claimed by Berlin.

"On a trip I took last summer with a 40-ship convoy thru the North sea," said Dick, "I saw a brilliant example of how the British capitalized upon this Nazi eagerness for the purpose of diverting the enemy's energy from attacking convoys.

"The British constructed a simulated Ark Royal by taking an old wreck of a merchant ship and building an airplane runway on its deck. By liberal use of paint and some real and many cardboard planes and guns, they completed the illusion.

"Sure enough, a German reconnaissance plane reported its discovery and German bombers rushed to the spot. For two days a 'battle' raged between the small- suicide gunners' crew and the enemy bombers. Nazi 'persistence' finally was rewarded with another 'sinking' of the Ark Royal."

TAKE $160 LOOT FROM HOME.

Earl Bennett, 1349 West Garfield boulevard, reported to Engelwood police last night that burglars had broken into his second floor flat and taken jewelry, four pairs of nylon hose, a nine piece dresser set and an unabridged dictionary, total value $160.

Newspaper 'Log' of the Ark Royal

The Ark Royal, which went down in the Mediterranean, had repeatedly been reported hit by German or Italian bombs and has often been in the news. A chronological summary follows:

Sept. 26, 1939—Berlin reported the aircraft carrier sunk in the North sea by aerial bombs. Denied by Britain. Later reports said the bombs had missed the vessel, but that it was almost turned over by one of the blasts.

Nov. 8, 1939—Ark Royal brings in one of most valuable of prizes captured from the enemy, Churchill reported.

March 27, 1940—Britain reported the Ark Royal back in port after a five month adventure at sea. [After scouring the South Atlantic for the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, later scuttled off Montevideo, Uruguay, on Dec. 17, 1939, the Ark Royal participated thruout the entire Norwegian campaign in the North sea.]

July 11, 1940—Italy claimed bombing planes had damaged the Ark Royal in an attack on the British fleet July 9 south of the Balearic Islands, two heavy bombs falling on her deck.

July 16, 1940—Britain denied the Ark Royal suffered any damage in a brush in the western Mediterranean July 9.

Nov. 29, 1940—Ark Royal heavily attacked during running fight with Italian navy west of Sardinia but escaped undamaged, Britain reported.

Feb. 12, 1941—Ark Royal takes part in British naval attack on Genoa and escapes damage during Italian air attack, London said.

May 26, 1941—Torpedo planes from Ark Royal "seal fate" of German battleship Bismarck by damaging her steering gear just when it looked like she might escape after sinking British battle cruiser Hood. Fleet units then sank the Bismarck.

The Ark Royal was the fifth major British man o' war to be lost. Others were:

Aircraft carrier Courageous, 22,500 tons, sunk by German submarine in the Atlantic Sept. 18, 1939; 515 men lost, 682 rescued.

Battleship Royal Oak, 29,150 tons, sunk by German submarine at Scapa Flow Oct. 14, 1939; 810 men lost, 424 rescued.

Aircraft carrier Glorious, 22,500 tons, sunk in battle with German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst off northern Norway June 8, 1940, 130 dead, 1,074 missing.

Battle cruiser Hood, 42,100 tons, sunk by German battleship Bismarck in Atlantic May 24, 1941, approximately 1,300 missing.

GLASGOW BUS STRIKE BROKEN WHEN ARMY VANS HAUL WORKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Glasgow Scotland bus drivers' and conductors' strike collapsed today after military trucks, driven by soldiers, began carrying war workers to the factories and shipyards.

The 1,500 men and women voted to return to work after discussing the government's action at a mass meeting. A busmen's deputation will interview the transport corporation management to plead for the reinstatement of 500 strikers who were dismissed for refusing to return to their jobs when ordered. These men are now subject to call for service in the fighting forces or munitions factories.

BRITISH RAIDING PARTY RIPS AXIS LINES AT BARDIA

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP).—Official disclosures of a raid by a British "commando" on axis batteries, supplies, and communications at Bardia, Libya, led to conjecture tonight that Britain might be planning widespread use of such raiding parties on the European and Italian coasts.

The three hour raid on Bardia was said to have resulted in considerable damage to the axis position. The commandos are composed of shock troops especially trained for raiding work, employing tactics similar to those of the American Indian warriors.

While military commentators have agreed no full scale continental invasion is feasible now, they have advocated frequent sharp raids on the axis lines. Such raids, some believe, could be integrated with attacks by parachutists.

82 GRADUATED IN FIRST CLASS TO AID NURSES

The first unit of Volunteer Nurse's Aids, trained by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, completed its training at the new Wesley Memorial hospital, 250 East Superior street, yesterday. Its 82 members are the first in Chicago to wear the new blue uniform of the service, bearing the emblems of the Office of Civilian Defense and the Red Cross.

Mrs. Ruth J. Jarratt from the board of trustees greeted the aids, who are ready to assume their duties in the new hospital, which will be open to the public Friday, Dec. 5. The woman's auxiliary of the hospital is arranging for conducted tours thru the new building during its benefit fiesta which will be held Dec. 2 and 3 in the solarium.

The auxiliary hopes to raise $1,500 to equip a six bed ward. Two other wards already have been furnished by the 500 members who are making plans for the fiesta. Mrs. Bishop O. Lovejoy is president and Mrs. Ernest Lynn Waldorf, general chairman.

NAVAL STATION WILL GET FIVE NEW BUILDINGS

A building program, which will bring five new buildings to the Great Lakes naval service training school at a cost of $2,350,000, was announced yesterday by naval officials. The buildings, for which foundations have been laid, are to be located near the 22d street gate in North Chicago and will face Sheridan road.

The additions will permit increased enrollment in the service training school, founded to teach naval recruits skilled trades, from 700 to 3,200. The buildings are to be completed by Feb. 1, 1942. With the addition of 2,500 students in the school, total strength of the station will be increased to 12,000 officers and men.

The new buildings include an auditorium, class room buildings, each 300 feet in length; one mathematics and drafting building, and one shop building, 100 by 600 feet.

GENERALS SHOWN TO TALK TOUGH, LET PRIVATES DIE

Few Wounded, Despite Fire Eating Speeches.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—World war records of the war department, examined today in the light of the militant speeches made by several generals on Armistice day, disclosed that generals die in bed far from the paths of glory that lead to the grave.

It's the private soldiers who bleed and die and the generals who talk a good fight and wear medals, the department records show.

Not a single general officer was among the 50,280 Americans killed in action during 13 major engagements of the World war in which American forces participated in 200 days of battle.

Six Generals Wounded.

Only six of the 522 general officers in service during the war were among the 205,690 Americans wounded. The generals wounded in action were:

Maj. Gen. Peter E. Traub, commander of the 35th division.

Maj. Gen. Robert Alexander, commander of the 77th division.

Brig. Gen. Evan M. Johnson, commander of the 154th infantry brigade of the 77th division.

Brig. Gen. Joseph P. O'Neil, commander of the 179th infantry brigade of the 90th division.

Brig. Gen. H. D. Todd Jr., commander of the 58th field artillery brigade of the 33d division.

Brig. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the 84th infantry brigade of the 42d division.

Four of the wounded generals were decorated. Between them they shared 13 medals, including three awards of the Legion of Honor, two Distinguished Service Crosses, two Distinguished Service Medals, and three Croix de Guerres.

Four Victims of Disease.

Only four generals were among the 65,380 soldiers who died of disease during the war. They were Maj. Gen. J. F. Bell, Brig. Gen. James F. McIndoe, Brig. Gen. R. L. Michie, and Brig. Gen. John E. Stephens.

On Armistice day most of the generals were on the speaking front. They were led by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, who delivered a radio address from Washington warning against "dangerous possibilities in the present situation."

At other cities over the nation, generals addressed, in militant accents, various Armistice day ceremonies. The war department had no exact figures on the number of generals or other officers who made Armistice day speeches, but acknowledged that the total was large.

NOW'S THE TIME TO AID OUR YANKS AT LONELY BASES

Plea for Smokes Brings Great Response.

"Smokes for Yanks!"

Now is the time to help the cause. Uncle Sam's armed forces didn't wait until tomorrow when their country called them to duty in the Atlantic. They went immediately. And if you will send your check or give your cigarets today, the boys won't need to wait to learn that the folks at home are remembering them with "Smokes for Yanks!"

Chicagoans responded generously yesterday to the suggestion that they buy cigarets, cigars, or tobacco for soldiers when they bought their own. Gifts were dropped into "Smokes for Yanks!" boxes thruout the Chicago area, while checks and cash came to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which is sponsoring the campaign.

Corporations Join Drive.

Great corporations and their employés' organizations hastened to join the movement to get cigarets and tobacco without delay to the American armed forces on the Atlantic and in the bases stretching from Iceland to the Caribbean.

One of the major offers of assistance came from the colored business men of the south side, thru the Auxiliary Service Men's center at 5111 Calumet avenue. They promised Miss Mildred Davis, director of the center, to place "Smokes for Yanks!" boxes in their stores, that they and their patrons might help send gifts to the soldiers and sailors.

The center was established under the sponsorship of the South Central Defense committee as a recreation place for the armed forces. It was dedicated by Mayor Kelly.

Tenth Paper Takes Up Cause.

While Chicagoland was giving to the campaign, the nationwide "Smokes for Yanks!" movement continued its rapid growth. The Grand Forks [N. D.] Herald joined the movement. It was the 10th newspaper in cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific to take up the cause which Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., began.

Here are a few examples of the way friends of "Smokes for Yanks!" helped yesterday:

Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation—The 700 employé members of the corporation's 208 Steel club took up the cause. Robert Smice, president of the club, sent for three collection boxes to place in the corporation's general offices at 208 South La Salle street.

Central Lions club—Pledged itself to take an active part in raising funds and collecting cigarets, a movement in which Lions clubs of all the Chicago district are aiding.

Union News company—Supervisor Elmer C. Mears offered space for receiving boxes at the company's cigar stands in the La Salle street, Aurora and Elgin, and Englewood Union railroad stations, the bus stations, and the Board of Trade and Field buildings.

Stewart-Warner corporation—Established receiving stations in its general offices building at 1800 Diversey boulevard.

Eitel's restaurant, 14 West Randolph street—Proclaimed tonight "Smokes for Yanks!" night in its rathskeller and announced that Henry Mueller [Herr Louie] and his Gang will collect cigarets.

Interstate company—Promised to place "Smokes for Yanks!" boxes in its cigar stands in the Randolph street, Van Buren street, and 12th street Central stations of the Illinois Central railroad.

Industrial Ti-Mo clinic—Technical experts from many Chicago industrial organizations, making cigarets in a time-in-motion study by which they hope to discover better methods of manufacture, gave the cigarets they are making to the cause. The cigarets are being made under the direction of Godfrey Kurtz, director of the clinic, at 4000 Washington boulevard. Coöperating in the gift are Peter Brazale, Charles Irving, Russell Hogin, Ralph Varchetto, William Snow, Marcel Replat, Stanley Grabowski, Paul Giardini, Edward Burchell, and Ed Stork.

Croatian Women's club—Cash donation.

Illinois Automobile club—Established receiving stations in its headquarters.

Plans for Other Cities.

Offers to set up "Smokes for Yanks" programs in cities outside Chicago came from Aaron B. Lange, president of the Civic Club of East Peoria; Dr. F. Binzer, Joliet optometrist and American Legion worker, and L. J. Brien, Hart, Mich., business man.

Checks for smokes should be sent to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower, Chicago. Cash and gifts of cigarets may be brought to the Tribune Public Service bureaus in Tribune Tower or in the loop at 1 South Dearborn street. Cigarets, cigars, and tobacco may be dropped in collection boxes thruout the city.

U. S. SAILOR'S LETTER TELLS OF 3 SUBS SUNK BY AMERICAN BOMBS

Weiser, Idaho, Nov. 14 (AP).—Sinking of three submarines by American destroyers convoying six British merchantmen was reported in a letter received today by Miss Lil Skow from her brother, Kenneth, an American sailor.

"We have been attacked eight times by submarines," Skow wrote. "The destroyers dropped depth bombs and are sure of getting three U-boats. The subs always attack beneath the surface and never once come up, either before or after an attack.

"Two torpedoes were fired at us, but we were able to change our course and avoid being hit."

France Dooms 32 Large Monuments in Metal Drive

VICHY, France, Nov. 14 (AP).—Thirty-two of the largest bronze monuments of Paris were condemned today by the government scrap metal commission to relieve a shortage of industrial raw materials. The heaviest monument to go is the two-ton reproduction of the Montgolfier balloon, the world's first successful aircraft.

BRITISH TIGHTEN RING ON ITALIAN ARMY IN ETHIOPIA

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Nov. 14 (AP).—The British today reported capture of Karmat hill, only 13 miles from Gondar, beleaguered stronghold in northwestern Ethiopia where the remnants of Italy's Ethiopian armies have been holding out since April. This and other successes, a communique indicated, tightened the British cordon around the Italians. Two days ago the British announced completion of the encirclement of Gondar.

"Picked" British Attack in Africa.

ROME, Nov. 14 (AP).—Fierce fighting in several sectors of the Gondar front in Ethiopia was officially reported today.

An attack by "picked" British troops on Italian positions in Libya was reported by the news agency Stefani. Counterattacking Italians, it added, captured prisoners and numerous weapons, while the British left many dead on the battlefield.

CURB ON DRAFT, DEFERMENTS IS SEEN BY HERSHEY

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—The possibility that more men with dependents might be called to serve in the armed forces was seen today by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director.

"Every American family must have come by now to know that the time is past when it may cherish its rights and privileges," Gen. Hershey told the annual institute of the Child Study association. "Deferments are temporary and it may become necessary to withdraw many of them in the national interest."

He said the present high rate of deferment because of dependents, which he said was 70 per cent of those otherwise eligible, "may not continue to be so."

HOFFMAN CALLS STRIKE PROMISE BY F. D. R. 'BRIBE'

House Simmers in Wake of Neutrality Vote.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—The house was asked today by Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] if President Roosevelt had not bribed congress into repeal of the neutrality act.

Rep. Hoffman.

Members were still simmering over the sultry battle which ended yesterday in an 18 vote administration victory. The popular jest in the congressional cloakrooms in connection with the 212-194 vote by which the neutrality act was scrapped was:

"It wasn't a question of ships; it was a question of judgeships."

Refers to Labor Legislation.

Hoffman, however, did not directly refer to the positions on the federal bench and the defense contracts which were reported offered to many members by administration leaders in order to line them up for approval of the senate amendments taking the heart out of the neutrality law. He put his "bribe" question in connection with the President's implied promise of anti-strike legislation.

"Day before yesterday," he told members, "it was apparent that the President's demand for approval of his unlawful acts would meet with defeat. It was announced on the floor of the house and in the press that certain representatives would not vote to concur in the senate amendments because they believe that such a course would bring war and that such a war, with production in this country hindered and delayed by strikes, would be national suicide.

Will Promise Be Kept?

"Was such an announcement a threat to the President that, unless he permitted labor legislation to remedy the situation, his demand for concurrence in the senate amendments would be defeated? Answer that question yourself.

"Was the President's promise, dramatically read to the house at the closing of the debate yesterday, a bribe to those who had announced they would not vote for concurrence unless there was labor legislation?

"Will that promise be kept? Or will the force of the administration again be exerted, as before it was exerted, when labor bills were up for consideration? Can we rely upon that promise made yesterday any more than we can rely upon the promises made by the President prior to election?"

Repercussions Outside Chamber.

Leaders sat silent while Hoffman put these queries. But vocal demonstrations were not lacking outside the chamber. Members of the house rules committee, headed by Representatives Eugene E. Cox [D., Ga.] and Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], declared their committee, which has control of legislation reaching the house floor, would stop all further action until an anti-strike bill is brought up.

Smith announced that he would take the floor next Monday with a demand for administration action to curb John L. Lewis and other labor leaders who are hindering defense production.

The next major business on the house calendar is the price control bill on which the house banking and currency committee met today to consider alterations. It was announced that the rules committee would meet next Monday to consider giving right of way to this measure but if members of the committee live up to their promises, this bill will be shelved until Mr. Roosevelt keeps his pledge.

When Hoffman criticizes the President, leaders usually jump to Mr. Roosevelt's defense. There was a conspicuous lack of response from prominent Democrats today when the Michigan member declared:

"The President has temporized with, has coddled and encouraged communists, extortionists, and blackmailers by his labor policy, until yesterday he found that even his most ardent supporters, his warm personal friends, could no longer support a policy which is destroying our independence, driving us at an accelerated pace toward national bankruptcy and rendering it impossible for us to give complete aid to Britain or to prepare for our own national defense."

Model Is Bride

Mrs. A. G. Atwater, the former Angelita Harmes, who was married yesterday.

A. G. Atwater, assistant to the vice president of the William Wrigley Jr. company and a brother-in-law of Philip K. Wrigley, was married to Miss Angelita Harmes, a former model, in a quiet ceremony performed early yesterday by Judge Sbarbaro in the Drake hotel apartment of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Atwater. After the wedding the couple left for a honeymoon which friends said would take them thru several countries of South America. The marriage was the third for Atwater. In 1939 his second wife, the former screen actress, Dorothy Lee, won an uncontested divorce and a substantial out of court settlement. Three years earlier another uncontested divorce was granted to Mrs. Betty Ann Bergmann Atwater, his first wife.

2 MORE BRITISH WARSHIPS IN U. S. PORTS FOR HELP

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The navy department announced today that the British cruiser Caradoc was in port at New York.

Under its policy enunciated several weeks ago of reporting the presence of British vessels when that was agreeable to the British, the department also reported that the Corvette Dianthus was at Charleston, S. C.

Presumably the vessels were in port for repairs, refueling or other assistance under the lend-lease act. According to the navy's previously stated policy the fact that the announcement of their presence was made today means that they have been in United States harbors for at least seven days.

Previously the navy had reported the presence in American ports of 34 British ships and one Free French vessel. Presumably some of these have since departed.

U. S. WON'T RUSH TO TEMPT NAZIS, BRITON PREDICTS

But Sees Naval Action as Inevitable.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 15 [Saturday].—The decision of the American congress to revise the neutrality act probably will prove the "most momentous since Britain declared war on Germany," according to Capt. Bernard Ackworth, British naval expert.

He suggested in this morning's Daily Mail that the new powers granted the American navy and merchant marine will be used cautiously at first so as not to tempt Germany into incidents which would inevitably result in war, but added: "The entry of American merchant ships into the war zone under the escort of American warships can hardly fail to provoke action in the near future."

Sees U. S. at Grips with Nazis.

Capt. Ackworth predicted that the world soon will witness 'the majestic spectacle of the embattled sea power of the English speaking world at grips with the most powerful land power."

The Daily Sketch insisted that the 18 vote majority for revision in the house of representatives "was not a reflection of America's attitude toward the war," and declared that now "America will go ahead faster than before."

The Daily Express classed Nov. 13 with Nov. 11 as an "immortal day" in British annals. The conservative Daily Telegraph, questioning "how long it will be before the consequences of this momentous event becomes visible in action," admitted "the full effects of the change must take some time to declare themselves."

Warns: Don't Expect Too Much.

The Daily Mirror warned the public not to expect too much from America. It said American efforts to arm were being delayed by "an outburst of strike fever," and that while Britain "accepts the American aid with gratitude," it "must calculate without it. Hitherto we have relied far too much upon it. We cannot live or win on great expectations."

Yesterday's evening newspapers also hailed the repeal vote. "The placing of America's weight at sea into the scale beside our own not only makes victory certain—it brings the triumph nearer," said the News.

The Standard praised President Roosevelt for having continued his policy "with sufficient success to kill American neutrality and place his country at war with the Nazis on the seas."

WHAT OTHER CAPITALS SAID.

The gist of other world comment was:

BERLIN—Germany simply must shoot in case American vessels carry munitions.

ROME—Attacks on American ships in the war blockade zones will soon take place.

TOKIO—The action "certainly aggravates the situation not only in the Atlantic, but in the Pacific."

CHUNGKING, China.—Officials expressed relief. Some quarters said failure to act would have hardened the attitude of Japanese militarists.

MELBOURNE, Australia.—A formal declaration of war is a "mere difference of form." Neutrality revision "must result in shooting if President Roosevelt acts on the authority conferred."

WELLINGTON, New Zealand.—Significant of the greatness and goodness of American determination to aid the British empire to the limit in stopping Hitler.

"KEEP OUR COUNTRY OUT OF WAR"

President Roosevelt in a speech on Nov. 2, 1940, three days before his re-election, said:

"There is nothing secret about our foreign policy. . . . I have stated it many times before, not only in words, but in action. I now restate it.

"The first purpose of our foreign policy is to keep our country out of war. At the same time we seek to keep foreign conceptions of government out of the United States.

"The second purpose of this policy is to keep war as far away as possible from the shores of the entire western hemisphere."

FISH SUBPENA ILLEGAL, HOUSE GROUP DECIDES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 [Special].—Because of its wording, a subpena issued by the District of Columbia grand jury for Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], violates the "rights and privileges of the house of representatives," the judiciary committee decided today.

The subpena commanded Fish to remain in the jurisdiction of the court unless special permission was granted by the grand jury for him to leave. He was commanded to testify concerning matter sent out under his frank, bearing arguments against the neutrality act amendment. His secretary, George Hill, has been indicted in connection with the alleged use of franked mail in behalf of several committees.

Fish left early today for Camden, S. C., to begin active duty with 1st army headquarters there during the coming maneuvers. Fish, a captain and major in the world war, now is a colonel in the reserve.

TIGHTEN CONTROL OVER TRAVEL OF ALIENS, CITIZENS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Regulations covering movements of aliens and Americans in and out of the United States was ordered tightened today by President Roosevelt.

Under the proclamation no alien shall be permitted to leave the country if the secretary of state feels that his departure would be prejudicial to the interests of the United States. The regulations also tightened rules governing the entry of aliens into the United States, making stricter the procedure as to sponsors of visa applicants, attorneys, agents, and other intermediaries.

The proclamation will require American citizens to have more credentials than formerly for departures from the United States. American seamen, particularly those going into combat areas, will be subject to passport regulations.

into the war zones, created by the law. The American navy convoyed as far as Iceland where the job of protecting shipments the remainder of the distance to the British Isles was taken over by the British navy. Under the new dispensation a shorter and more direct route will be possible with American protection thruout the passage.

The prospect is that the undeclared war will continue on this basis indefinitely, with large contingents of the American navy and air forces engaging the Germans in the Atlantic and preparing for hostilities in the Pacific. Eventually, it is commonly expected, the President will ask congress for a formal declaration of war on the axis powers.

Such a request would be based upon outrages suffered by the United States at the hands of the Germans, Italians, or Japanese, such as the sinking of American ships in contravention of international law and the sacrifice of American lives.

Anti-Interventionists Rally.

The anti-interventionists are girding to prevent any further involvement of the country in the war. Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], non-interventionist leader, refused to concede that the repeal of the neutrality act plunges the nation into war.

"We are going to keep on fighting against total war," he said. "I do not think that repeal of shipping restrictions in the neutrality act means war.

"The President cannot take us to war with a divided country. With all the pressure exerted by the administration, with the White House calling members, with political bosses from all parts of the country calling members, the house concurred in senate amendments by only 18 votes. A switch of 10 votes would have beaten it.

"There probably never has been as much pressure brought to bear as was brought on members of the house. Even Ed Flynn, Democratic national chairman, came down from New York."

Not War Yet, Says Fish.

Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] also declared that scrapping of major neutrality pact provisions does not mean war.

Chairman Sol Bloom [D., N. Y.] of the house foreign affairs committee, agreed that the congressional action does not mean war.

"I'm sick and tired of this talk that repeal of neutrality act provisions means war and an AEF," said Bloom. "If I thought it did I'd resign from congress."

The question of an AEF, however, is not expected to come up seriously until 1943, by which time Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain calculates it will be possible to launch an invasion of continental Europe.

Will Sign Repealer Monday.

The extension of operations of the United States navy and American merchantmen to European waters will be formalized as soon as the neutrality act repealer becomes effective, probably next Monday. The repealer was signed by Speaker Sam Rayburn of the house before that body adjourned last night but it cannot be signed by Vice President Henry Wallace until the next meeting of the senate, which will be on Monday. It then will be rushed to the White House for the President's signature that will make it law.

It is expected that one of the first steps taken will be the establishment of American naval bases on the north coast of Ireland and on the coast of Scotland where American technicians and laborers have been rushing work for several months on harbor, dock and other works ostensibly designed for British naval bases.

It was widely suspected from the start, however, that these bases were being developed by the United States government in anticipation of their eventual use by the American navy as soon as Mr. Roosevelt could get rid of the neutrality act banning American ships from the war zones. These bases are being constructed at the expense of the United States under the lend-lease act.

Will Rescind War Zones.

As soon as the repealer becomes law the President will rescind the European war zones he proclaimed under the neutrality act when the war began in September, 1939 and later when Italy became a belligerent. With the war zones rescinded Americans and American ships will be at liberty to go to any belligerent port.

The President rescinded the Red sea war zone several months ago when the British completed the conquest of East Africa and Mr. Roosevelt seized upon that circumstance to declare the war ended in that sector in order to permit American ships to carry military equipment thru the Red sea to the British forces in Egypt and the near east.

Three New Ships a Week.

According to the maritime commission about three American merchantmen a week will be added to the North Atlantic route to Great Britain. A larger shift is not planned because American ships are now engaged in carrying arms cargoes on other sea lanes. The ships to be placed on the North Atlantic run will be chiefly new vessels. The commission said that new cargo ships are being turned out at the rate of three a week.

The navy department said that the arming of American merchantmen will proceed at once. It will be slow work, however, because of the lack of a sufficient number of guns of large enough caliber for effective use against submarines, surface raiders and aircraft.

Will Withdraw Marines at Once.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the withdrawal of marines from China "will begin shortly." The marines are stationed as follows:

SHANGHAI—Fourth marines, 750 officers and men. Commanded by Col. Samuel L. Howard, ranking marine officer in China.

TIENTSIN—A detachment of 55 officers and men commanded by Maj. Luther A. Brown.

PEIPING—American embassy guard of 165 officers and men under command of Lieut. Col. William W. Ashurst.

In response to questions the President said he thinks the American people are aware of the serious situation in the far east. Asked if the seriousness of the far eastern situation has not been overrated, he wanted to know what was meant by overrated. The reporter said what he had in mind was whether war is really imminent. Mr. Roosevelt said he sincerely trusted it is not.

Won't Answer War Question.

When pressed to say whether he thought war with Japan could be avoided, the President said that if he answered no his reply would be subject to interpretation, and if he answered yes it would be a pure guess. He wound up by saying he did not know.

Asked if he thought the United States should act to prevent Japan from closing the Burma road, Mr. Roosevelt said there are too many other factors involved to permit an answer of the question.

MAIL INVITATION TO U. S. WOMEN TO TOUR BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Letters inviting representatives of 14 women's organizations in the United States to visit Britain and see at first hand the part British women are playing in the war were airmailed to America today. This was announced by Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative member of parliament and chairman of a representative committee of British women.

The idea, which is aimed to bring about a close relationship between the American and British women, is endorsed by Prime Minister Churchill and John G. Winant, the American ambassador. The committee which will show the American women around is sponsored by the "committee on woman power," which includes two American born women members of parliament, Lady Astor and Mrs. Beatrice Rathbone.

Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle, wife of the American ambassador to the exiled governments here, said that the American organizations will be expected to pay the fares of the women because of British exchange laws, altho when they arrive here they will be guests.

Inglewood Cal., Nov. 14 [Special].—The speed and armament of the new Mustang fighter plane being built for the RAF at North American Aviation's plant here are military secrets. The single seater craft is described as sensationally fast. A United States army version of the plane is called the P-51.

FARMER GETS ONE YEAR FOR CHAINING WIFE

Vandalia, Ill., Nov. 14 (AP).—Neal Cahoon, 62 years old, a Fayette county farmer, was sentenced today to a year's imprisonment in the state penal farm here after being denied a new trial on a charge of falsely imprisoning his wife, Rosie, by chaining her in their home. County Judge Charles R. Myers, who imposed the sentence, said he was sorry the penalty could not be more severe.

Defense Counsel W. P. Welker announced the case would be appealed to the 4th district Appellate court at Mount Vernon, and he was given 50 days to file the appeal. Bail for Cahoon during that period was set at $1,500.

Welker obtained a new trial for Cahoon on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. In this charge Cahoon was convicted of having forced two men at gun point to prepare a statement of intimacies with his wife, who is 21. Judge Myers granted the new trial on this charge on the ground the original information had been materially changed after Cahoon had been arraigned on it.

Two Gunmen Rob Couple of $2,560 Gems and Cash

Two gunmen wearing handkerchief masks took jewelry valued at $2,475 and $85 in cash early today from Morris Falk Jr. and his wife, Ruth, of 2229 Farwell avenue. The bandits were waiting in the vestibule of the apartment building when the Falks returned home from bowling. Mrs. Falk gave up two diamond rings and a wrist watch. Her husband, who is the manager of the Independent Lock company, surrendered a watch and a diamond ring.

MINORITY KILLED NEUTRALITY LAW, SAYS GEN. WOOD

Says Foes Represent Less Than Half of People.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, acting national chairman of the America First committee, asserted yesterday that representatives who voted to kill the neutrality act represented less than 50 per cent of the population of the United States.

"The result was so close," said Wood, "that a shift of ten votes would have defeated the bill. A more important fact, however, is that those voting against the bill represented more than 50 per cent of the people of the United States.

"The rising tide of opposition to the President's war policy was never more clearly demonstrated than by the vote in the house of representatives on revision of the neutrality law.

"In order to prevent a vote of no confidence, administration leaders were forced to apply every available type of political pressure. The narrow margin by which their so-called victory was achieved is eloquent proof that the American people will not stand for broken pledges and government by subterfuge much longer. Congress has served clear notice that the President must go slowly from now on or suffer repudiation from the people's representatives."

Anti-War Feeling Spreads.

Gen. Wood said that another significant aspect of the house vote is found in the fact that anti-war sentiment is spreading, not only numerically but geographically. He pointed out that opponents of war had for the first time been able to make inroads in the Democratic south with such votes as those of Hatton Sumners of Texas and Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina.

"The President's last minute interference in the house debate by means of his letter to Speaker Rayburn was the greatest confession of weakness he has made to date. The message showed concern only with the reaction in foreign capitals—with never a thought for the American people. This letter was read to the assembled representatives and was intended for public consumption.

However, the American public is also entitled to know what information the President gave to those Democratic congressmen who were so hurriedly called by the White House before the vote.

Poses Some Questions.

"Did the President tell them the facts he was unwilling to reveal to the other members of the house and to the people? If so, what is the justification for withholding this information from all but a select few?

"The President can do much to restore public confidence by revealing the substance of these conversations immediately. The ugly rumor that the purpose was to obtain support by promises of federal jobs and patronage is having an unfortunate effect on the nation.

"The mere suggestion that the administration would use public funds as a means of influencing votes on an issue which involves life or death for millions of Americans is so repugnant that it should be authoritatively denied at once.

A New Hope.

"On behalf of the America First committee, which represents the millions of Americans who wish to stay out of the war, I congratulate those representatives who had the courage to vote in accordance with their conscience and the will of the electorate. Their stout refusal to succumb to political pressure and manufactured hysteria gives new hope to the millions who have nothing to offer except their gratitude and their votes.

"The America First committee has worked against heavy odds. With yesterday's vote we attained a new high solidarity. To that growing group of congressmen who put their obligation to the people above obligations to any one else, we pledge our unswerving support. And to that dwindling number who persist in putting partisanship and politics above their pledges to the people we say: 'We will meet you at the polls.'"

GHQ MANEUVERS OPEN TODAY WITH IMITATION ARMS

Gen. McNair Tries to Put Realism Into Umpiring.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wingate, S. C., Nov. 14.—Because of the continued shortage of equipment, many weapons will be simulated in the general headquarters maneuvers to start tomorrow, Lieut. Gen. Leslie J. McNair, director of the war games, announced today.

Gen. McNair presided at a 3½ hour conference this afternoon in the high school, a meeting attended by the entire umpire staff of 1,400 officers. Half of these officers served in a similar capacity in the Louisiana maneuvers.

The importance and magnitude of the umpires' task was emphasized at the conference, Gen. McNair describing their duties and outlining appropriate action in connection with various developments.

Move to Reduce Casualties.

Numerous precautions were taken to reduce needless risks to life and property. Warnings were given against soldiers sleeping on roads, trails or in other open spaces that might be used by armored vehicles.

Troops opposing tanks were ordered to hurl nothing at the machines except small bags of flour, and not to use simulated hand grenades or oil bottles. Tanks are ruled out of action when struck by flour bags. Artillery fire is marked by the explosion of a lime bomb, displaying a red flag with a white center and by ringing a cowbell.

Gen. McNair said a particular weakness in umpiring has been in relation to air versus ground problems. The officers not only lack experience in actual destruction from air attacks, but they are hampered by the difficulty encountered, even under favorable conditions, of ascertaining damage done by imaginary bombs.

Umpires Are Disregarded.

As a result of umpiring that at times is inefficient and on other occasions impossible of accuracy, ground troops pay almost no heed to air attacks, and airplanes disregard anti-aircraft fire from the ground.

Regarding umpiring ground troop action during the mimic battles, attention was called to the umpires' manual, which states that infantry should be permitted to advance only when it has decisive superiority of fire. The ratio of this fire, the manual states, never should be less than 2 to 1 and generally should be 3 or 4 to 1.

BRITISH FLEET CHIEF ADMITS AXIS TROOPS ARE REACHING LIBYA

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 14 (AP).—"A large number of axis troops still are getting across from Italy to Libya," Adm. Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander in chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, acknowledged today. He added, however, that most of these are reaching north Africa "with wet shirts."

He said the smashing of axis convoys is "certainly delaying, if not preventing," any axis drive toward the Nile. The Germans and Italians are in sore need of fresh troops and equipment, he said, and despite the success of British warships, submarines, and aircraft in blasting Libya bound convoys, many axis troops are reaching Africa.

Commenting on reports that the bodies of 7,000 Italians had been washed ashore in Tunisia, he said these apparently were from ships sunk off Tunisia and that the figure would not cover those lost in the central Mediterranean.

RENEW PARLEYS IN STEEL COAL MINES DISPUTE

No Order for Closed Shop, Roosevelt Warns.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—A strike in soft coal mines was averted, at least temporarily, today when John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, agreed to continue negotiations for a contract with steel companies producing their own fuel for steel production.

The agreement resulted from a White House conference of union and steel officials at which President Roosevelt warned Lewis and other union leaders that the government would not support their demands for a union shop in the captive mines owned by the steel companies.

Report Back Monday.

Conferences between the union and steel representatives will continue over the week-end and the conferees are scheduled to report back to the President on Monday.

A strike call in the captive mines, involving 53,000 miners, and possibly in the entire soft coal industry, covering 400,000 men, will be delayed at least that long. Lewis had threatened to renew a strike in the company mines if a union shop had not been granted by tomorrow.

CIO members of the National Defense Mediation board resigned a few days ago after the board refused to recommend a closed shop in the mines.

Says Plants Need Coal.

In his remarks to the conferees, as reported by the White House, Mr. Roosevelt declared, "Coal for steel plants is a necessity because steel is an essential in the manufacture of munitions. . . .

"Because it is essential to national defense that the necessary coal production be continued and not stopped, it is therefore the indisputable obligation of the President to see that this is done. In spite of what some people say, I seek always to be a constitutional President."

The President then said that there had been pressure on him to ask for legislation and that, if legislation "toward this end" became necessary, he believed congress would pass it. He then suggested that, if the dispute remains unsettled, it should be submitted to an arbiter, with coal production continuing in the meantime.

Refuses Closed Shop Order.

In addressing Lewis and other union representatives the President said:

"I tell you frankly that the government of the United States will not order, nor will congress pass legislation ordering, a so-called closed shop. It is true that by agreement between employers and employés in many plants of various industries the closed shop is now in operation. This is the result of the legal collective bargaining, and not of government compulsion on employers and employés.

"It is also true that 95 per cent or more of the employés in these particular mines belong to the United Mine Workers union. The government will never compel this 5 per cent to join the union by a government decree. That would be too much like the Hitler methods toward labor."

Steel men and union leaders conferred later. Lewis said the conference would be resumed tomorrow. Benjamin Fairless, president of the United States Steel corporation, reported that the meeting "progressed satisfactorily."

APPEALS COURT DENIES BAIL FOR BROWNE, BIOFF

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today denied a defense motion to admit William Bioff and George E. Browne to bail pending the outcome of their appeal from conviction under the federal anti-racketeering act.

Browne, until recently head of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés [AFL], and Bioff, his Hollywood representative, were sentenced on Wednesday to eight and 10 years, respectively, and fined $20,000 each after being convicted of extorting $550,000 from movie producers as the price of peace in the movie industry.

The government opposed their release on bail. United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa told the Appeals court that it was brought out at the trial that Bioff was a fugitive for many years after his conviction on a pandering charge, and suggested there was good reason to believe both defendants might become fugitives if bail were set.

BOARD UPHOLDS OUSTER OF FOUR STATE WORKERS

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 14 (AP).—The state civil service commission yesterday upheld charges of undue political activity against four suspended state employés and ordered them dropped from the state pay rolls.

Those discharged are James Bell of Chicago, junior clerk in the department of labor's unemployment compensation division; Clyde Austin, Eldorado, employment manager in the department of labor; Charles Cummins, Mount Vernon, deputy factory inspector, and Zerny M. Jackson, Champaign, junior auditor in the department of finance.

In other findings, the commission ordered Alonzo Brewer of East St. Louis, a junior interviewer in the labor department who had been charged with insubordination, restored to his job, and Thomas Mead of Amboy, junior auditor in the department of finance who had been charged with absence without leave, dismissed.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY BARBARA QUEST

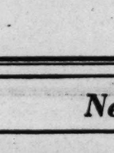
THE QUESTION.

What do you do to induce sleep on the nights you are bothered with insomnia?

WHERE ASKED.

City hall.

THE ANSWERS.



Sylvia Cohen, stenographer, 1242 South Kedvale avenue—I try to duplicate a remedy I read about once. That is to get up and walk around barefooted in the grass while it is cool and wet with dew drops! But in this climate that can't always be done, so I figure a good equivalent is to go wading in about an inch of cold water in the bath tub. It works.

Henry Brower, salesman, 3544 12th place—My trusty deck of cards usually comes to my rescue. I try to work out new tricks and stunts with the cards, and the more complicated they get the less successful I am, and it soon makes me drousy. The nice thing about it is that I can stay right in bed, too.

Jean Handelman Solomon, secretary, 117 East Bellevue place—I get up and fix myself a glass of hot milk. It usually does the trick. I've also spent a lot of those wakeful hours smoking one cigaret after another and reading all kinds of those dime detective magazines. That takes my mind off whatever's keeping me awake.

Louis Kahn, lawyer, 160 North La Salle street—First I do a thoro research job to discover what it is that's keeping me awake, and then I treat it accordingly. If I'm hungry I eat. If I'm worried, a little diversion like the radio or a book helps. But rather than lie in bed awake, I get up and stay up until I begin to feel really sleepy.

Sanford Olson, attorney, 837 North Cuyler avenue, Oak Park—A magazine in the living room is my pet remedy. I get up and put on the robe and slippers and read until I get sleepy. If the first attempt isn't successful, I get up and try it all over again. I'd rather read in bed, but I might disturb my wife.

Allan Dreyfuss, student, University of Chicago—I try to concentrate on a number of things, so I get all confused and go to sleep. Simple things like the Chinese dynasties, the Olympic prize winners, imports and exports of obscure Asiatic seaports, rate of expansion of the spiral nebulae and the name of Duke Ellington's second trombone player for 1929.

SUES JUKE BOX OPERATOR FOR FALSE ARREST

Joseph Peskin, 46 years old, head of a company which operates a string of south side juke boxes, filed suit in the Superior court yesterday demanding $100,000 damages for false arrest from Lionel Nathan, 26, a former employé who is in the juke box business for himself.

Peskin was seized by police when Nathan assused his former employer of having had a part in an assault upon him last Sept. 19. The charges against Peskin subsequently were nonsuited when Nathan admitted he could not identify him as one of the two men who had slugged him with a jack handle and pipe, inflicting serious wounds.

THREE CONFESS STEALING 6 AUTOS TO GO JOYRIDING

Three young thieves confessed last night to Chicago Lawn police that they had stolen six automobiles in recent months and gone joyriding until the gasoline was used up. In custody were Douglas Miller, 21 years old, 8517 South Sangamon street; Norman White, 20, of 8433 South Morgan street, and Edward Kenny, 16, a third year high school pupil, 8457 South Morgan street. They were traced thru descriptions obtained by Detectives Oliver McCormick and Frank Murray from persons who saw Miller and Kenny park a stolen car Oct. 18 at Cicero avenue and Marquette road.

G.O.P. CONCLAVE URGED TO CHART NATIONAL STAND

Willkie Called Traitor on War Issue.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 14.—A group of New York state Republican leaders, incensed over what they described as sabotage within the party by interventionist elements, today proposed calling a national convention to formulate a definite stand on foreign and domestic policies.

Heading the movement is John Burke, president of the National Republican Builders, Inc., an organization devoted to rebuilding the G. O. P. The group was one of the first to support Wendell L. Willkie for the Republican Presidential nomination. It became disillusioned when Willkie flopped from anti-war to pro-war advocacy immediately after the election.

"We are thoroly disgusted with Willkie's treacherous conduct," declared Burke. "He should be repudiated and sent back to the Democratic party where he belongs."

Calls for Firm Stand.

Willkie's announced intention of opposing Republican congressmen who stand loyally by the anti-war cause was a challenge which the proposed G. O. P. conference should meet squarely, according to Burke.

"If the Republican party doesn't take a firm position against war, it will become as dead as the Whigs," said Burke. "Those congressmen who support the President should leave the Republican party if they have any intellectual honesty.

"We here in the east, which is supposed to be the citadel of interventionism, really are overwhelmingly against war despite the barrage of propaganda and the tremendous sums of money spent by the get-us-into-war agencies."

Pressure Branded Corrupt.

Burke declared reports emanating from Washington on the administration pressure and promises of patronage and public works in various congressional districts, which finally put over the neutrality act repealer yesterday, was the worst corruption of a legislative body since 1800, when the Irish house of commons was bought off.

This was a reference to the act of union between Ireland and Britain which the Irish legislators were persuaded to vote as a result of the passing of money, pensions, promotions, and advancement in the peerage. The plan was engineered by Viscount Castlereagh. Public sentiment was gauged at least 95 per cent against the act.

According to Burke, Willkie, backed by the war promoters, already has sent his agents out stalking in preparation for a battle with District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey over the Republican nomination for governor of New York state next year. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman is expected to run for the senate. Willkie is a redhot interventionist, while Dewey generally is regarded as lukewarm.

Suggests Calling Leaders.

Burke suggested calling prominent Republicans from all parts of the country into convention either in New York City or Washington.

He said that in the domestic field Republicans generally would favor the system of free enterprise and constitutional government. He also said they would be opposed to the collectivist state and redistribution of wealth ideas put forward by President Roosevelt and others.

Another development causing resentment within party ranks was the recent mayoral primary in New York City, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, an enrolled member of the radical Labor party, war promoter, and Roosevelt backer, grabbed the Republican nomination with only 8 per cent of the registered G. O. P. vote for him.

La Guardia was reëlected mayor with the communists throwing the balance of strength to him and the Republicans providing the bulk of the votes.

LANGER FINISHES HIS TESTIMONY IN OUSTER QUIZ

Wasington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—Sen. William Langer [R., N. D.] closed his testimony today before the senate elections committee which is hearing charges by North Dakota petitioners who are seeking his removal from office. He testified five days in his own defense.

Langer concluded his evidence with a denial that $56,800 he received in 1937 from sale of certain lands had any connection with the profits a Minneapolis firm made in selling bonds to North Dakota state agencies while he was governor. Previously he had acknowledged that while he received $25,000 in 1937 for land company stock other witnesses had contended was worthless, he never delivered the shares to the purchaser, and they now were missing.

Edward R. Burke, a former Nebraska senator and attorney for the petitioners, put into the record a compilation which O. R. McGuire, one of Burke's aids, said showed that Langer received $58,800 in 1937, 1938, and 1939, and that this equalled 25 per cent of the profit on county bonds and 10 per cent of the profit on state bonds sold to North Dakota agencies by the V. M. Brewer company of Minneapolis.

CALIFORNIA BUSY DIGGING OUT OF $1,000,000 QUAKE

Many Buildings Down or Cracked.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 14 (AP).—Damage estimated at upwards of $1,000,000 resulted today from an earthquake, centering on suburban Torrance and Gardena. Altho it was the heaviest since the disastrous shock of 1933, which cost 130 lives, no deaths or injuries were reported.

As the ocean fog lifted this morning throngs of curiosity seekers swarmed into Torrance, an industrial community of 10,000 population, where the property damage alone was estimated at $1,000,000, with broken windows accounting for $25,000.

The throngs were held back from gaping stores and industrial buildings by ropes and wooden barricades, as merchants piled up bricks and broken glass and set about straightening their jumbled stocks.

Fire Station Near Collapse.

The Torrance fire station, badly battered by the 1933 earthquake and given another jolt today, was on the point of collapse. Fire fighting equipment was moved to other quarters. Several gasoline and oil tank lines burst, creating a fire hazard, but no fires occurred.

A. H. Bartlett, Torrance city clerk, said "besides the havoc in the business district, I found on a tour of the residential area that many chimneys and fireplaces were thrown down. In some cases they fell on the houses, causing damage that cannot be estimated. Many houses were twisted on their foundations so that some of them are resting on only a few twisted piers and may be found to be unsafe."

Most of the window casements in the older business buildings were shattered. They look as tho something had hit them from the sky, not from the ground beneath. Walls of half a hundred business buildings have fallen and others will fall. One could almost stand and watch them disintegrate. Show windows, chimneys, and fireplaces toppled. Older structures bore the brunt of the loss. Reinforced concrete buildings erected since the 1933 quake appeared undamaged.

Guests Flee as Walls Crack.

Guests from the 30 room Torrance hotel, a landmark of the community, fled into the street as walls cracked. Three hundred residents of Torrance Pueblo, a Mexican community, were evacuated after leaking gasoline from two huge storage tanks ran into the streets.

In Gardena the damage was estimated at many thousands of dollars. Several buildings in the community of 6,000 were badly damaged. Windows in others were smashed and chimneys leveled.

The quake, an east to west shock, which occurred at 12:42 a. m. [2:42 Chicago time], awakened residents of Los Angeles and inland communities north and east as far as Glendale, Pasadena, and Whittier, and was felt heavily in Long Beach and other sea coast cities.

KNOCK ON WRONG DOOR; MAY HAVE TO TAKE THE RAP

Indicted Pair Make Error; It Pleases Government.

Two colored men, accused of being bootleggers, learned the answer yesterday to a question that might have been posed by Gertrude Stein: Where is the wrong place, is the right place, is the wrong place?

Thursday they were indicted by a federal grand jury as the operators of an illicit still at 4006 Prairie avenue. Yesterday their lawyer telephoned them to meet him at room 814 in the city hall. A short time later they walked into a public building at Jackson boulevard and Dearborn street and rode up to the eighth floor. Failing to find 814, they knocked at 804.

"We're looking for 814," they said to the man who answered the knock.

"There isn't any room with that number up here," said the man. "Who are you looking for?"

"We're looking for our lawyer," the pair replied. "We think we're in trouble and our lawyer said he would meet us in room 814."

"What are your names?" inquired the man at the door.

"Paul Fenner and Carl Jackson."

"Well, well. Do come in. I'm Mack Fisher, a deputy United States marshal; this is our lockup; and these warrants are for your arrest."

"Their mistake is going to save us a lot of trouble," said Joseph Tobin, chief deputy marshal. "If they had gone to the city hall, the right place for them, instead of the United States court house, the right place for us, we probably still would be looking for them."

INSTRUCTIONS . . . . . to a young lady who'd like to know for sure . . . . . about a bashful beau

Here's a small and simple strategy . . . . . (quite honest and the soul of tact) to help you learn the things you simply have to know:

First, maneuver him (this unsure male) into HENRICI'S . . . . tomorrow . . . . for a famous Sunday Dinner . . . . . (and that's about as much as you need do . . . . . except to be your subtle self). We may suggest a cocktail . . . . . or a mellow vintage wine (depending on the circumstance) . . . . . we'll help select a meal (without seeming to) that should create a fine expansive mood. And we'll stay far enough away to be forgotten while you eat . . . . . your famous Sunday Dinner . . . . . .

. . . . . and after that . . . . . while your coffee cools untouched (too bad, such good coffee) you may hear things he'd never think to say . . . . . at any other time.

That's strategy . . . . . and a grand dinner, too.

14 DAY BATTLE FOR TULA IS WON, RUSSIANS CLAIM

15 Waves of Nazi Tanks Smashed—Moscow.

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP).—Only the broken bodies of German battle-dead remained tonight in the mine sown outskirts of Tula, Russian military dispatches said, after 15 consecutive waves of Nazi tanks had been smashed in a two week battle for this southern key to the defenses of Moscow.

This proud claim was broadcast by the Moscow radio to climax a series of military reports which depicted the Germans retreating in every sector of the Moscow front.

Battle Won in Village.

The Tula battle was won on the mine sown southern approaches to the town, in the village of Rodezhesny, a Tass news agency account declared. There, some 100 miles due south of the Red capital, the Germans won a shaky foothold at staggering cost in men and equipment, only to be crushed.

This was the Russian picture on the other battlefields before Moscow:

MALOYAROSLAVETS, 65 miles southwest—Soviet troops wiped the Germans from the east bank of the Nara river after stubborn fighting and stopped a new Nazi thrust to the west bank.

KALININ, 95 miles northwest—The Germans were driven from 20 villages in 24 hours.

The Germans continued to bring up reserves to the Moscow front, but successful Red army assaults were reported in the direction [area] of at least one operating base, Zarechie.

Down 31 Nazi Planes.

A late Moscow communique said 31 German planes were downed out of large formations attempting to raid Moscow today. The Russians acknowledged the loss of five planes.

On both north and south extremities of the front the Russian position was described as equally good. The Russians made these claims:

The Germans were driven from strategic heights and forced back several kilometers in the arctic Murmansk zone; a mobile Schutz Staffel [élite] Nazi division was routed before Rostov-on-Don, northern key to the Caucasus.

Russian reënforcements were pressing toward the Caucasian front to block a German drive from the Crimea.

The Russian high command declared that between Monday and Wednesday Red ships had sunk four axis transports in the Baltic totaling 26,000 tons.

[A Moscow radio report picked up in New York said the besieged Red armies at Leningrad had broken thru the German encirclement at one point with artillery and dive bombing support and had driven thru to the Nazi rear.]

FIGHT FOR EVERY YARD OF RUSSIAN SOIL—GERMANY

Nazis Tell of Battles on Entire Front.

BERLIN, Nov. 14 (AP).—German military dispatches tonight reported that the Russians had attacked "in considerable force" with tanks and infantry on the Moscow front, and in this and the other frozen theaters of battle the opposing armies were declared locked in a dogged struggle for gains of yards rather than miles.

Military reporters said there were attacks and counterattacks all along the front, with the result that the Germans had made some slight progress.

Three Russian tanks were smashed in the Red army attack on an undesignated sector of the central [Moscow] line. A subsequent German countersmash led to hand to hand fighting in which 58 Russian casemates and a number of stoutly defended villages were taken.

Fierce Fight in Crimea.

With "village by village" fighting raging in the Moscow line, it appeared also that the Germans, at a critical stage of the battle for the Crimea, were being forced to battle for every yard of Russian soil on the peninsula.

The Crimean fighting was summed up by German military commentators as a general tightening up of the Nazi grip on Kerch and Sevastopol, with both cities still holding out. Both were under artillery fire.

German bombers raided Caucasian points across the strait and covered an extensive region of the Black sea's northeast coast. Among their targets were Novorossisk, an alternative Russian naval base and Anapa, the airport of which was described as one of the outer defenses of the Caucasian oil region and a training place for many soviet parachutists. Also reported raided were Tamanskaja, where the Germans said Russian troops escaping from the Crimea were being landed, and Tuapse, a spur of one Caucasian oil pipe line.

Bomb Sevastopol Harbor.

At Sevastopol in the southwest of the Crimea, gunners and aviators concentrated on ships and general harbor activity with orders to disturb the evacuation of Red army troops as much as possible. Two Russian coastal batteries were silenced there, two big freighters damaged, and important military installations in the harbor smashed.

One variation in the long story of the siege of Leningrad, on the north, came with details of the reported sinking of a big Russian transport by a mine near the Kronstadt naval base. The German reports said a terrific explosion tore the ship to bits. Otherwise, war on the Leningrad front was the same monotonous booming of siege guns which are firing across the narrows at almost point blank range on the Kronstadt naval works and occasionally shifting their range to plant a few shells in the Leningrad industrial districts.

NAZIS CLAIM 'ENEMY' KILLS ONLY CIVILIANS IN NIGHT AIR ATTACK

BERLIN, Nov. 14 (AP).—Enemy planes dropped a small number of bombs in eastern German territory last night and caused civilian casualties, the high command said today. [The British said bad weather prevented them from attacking Germany proper for the fourth consecutive night. German planes attacked the harbor of Falmouth, England, with "good effect," Berlin reported.

Raiders Kill 262 in Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP).—The ministry of home security announced today that air raids on Britain last month caused 262 deaths and injured 361.

German air activity over England today was light, only one plane attacking a town on the northeast coast of Scotland. No casualties were reported.

TRUCKLOAD OF HOGS STOLEN.

Stockyards police went hunting for a truck loaded with 23 live hogs yesterday. The truck, owned by Clarence Hitz, 325 North Monroe street, Rushville, was taken from in front of 43d and Halsted streets.

ANNOUNCERS OF 3 U. S. RADIO CHAINS BANNED IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Nov. 14 (AP).—Berlin representatives of the Mutual Broadcasting system, National Broadcasting company, and the Columbia Broadcasting system were banned from the air today by the Reichs Broadcasting company on charges that they submitted to their companies "unjustified complaints" without previously negotiating with the German company about their grievances. The German company issued the following statement:

"Representatives of the North American Broadcasting systems, NBC, CBS and MBS, at the Reichs Broadcasting company in Berlin have submitted their home companies unjustified complaints without previously informing the Reichs Broadcasting company about their wishes.

"This procedure after years of good understanding is unusual in the history of journalism and eliminates the basis of further trustful coöperation. The Reichs Broadcasting company therefore declines to further coöperate with these representatives and has notified the American companies accordingly."

[The Mutual Broadcasting system on Thursday canceled news reports from Berlin by John Paul Dickson, its correspondent, because of censorship. NBC's correspondent was banned four days ago and reinstated the next day, but NBC refused the reinstatement. CBS was notified early this week by is Berlin correspondent of increasing censorships on his broadcasts.]

Draws Gun on Four Naval Reservists; Police Nab Him

Frank Adams, 27 years old, was seized by railroad police yesterday as he got off a Wabash railroad train at Polk street station after pulling a gun on four naval reservists who were coming here on the same train to enter Great Lakes Naval Training station. Adams said he had won the gun in a gambling house in Decatur, Macon county. Police said he was intoxicated and told them that he drew the weapon after getting into an altercation with some one.

Plane Crash in Wisconsin Injures Husband and Wife

Soldiers Grove, Wis., Nov. 14 (AP).—Darrell Montgomery, 27 years old, of Moline, Ill., suffered a fractured skull and his wife, Flossie, received minor injuries when an army training type monoplane crashed near here today. The two were taken to Richland Center hospital. Montgomery was reported in a critical condition.

Army Flying Cadet Killed as Training Plane Crashes

Pine Bluff, Ark., Nov. 14 (AP).—Aviation Cadet M. N. Cahill, Hicksville, O., was killed today when his army primary training plane crashed as he approached an emergency landing field 15 miles south of here.

TRIAL BRINGS OUT ALLEGED PLAN TO SUBDUE U. S. ARMY

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 14 (AP).—Extension of the union defense guard idea among unions thruout the nation, so that American workers eventually would have a military organization "much stronger than the army," was described as a Socialist Workers party ideal in federal court today.

Elmer Buckingham, a truck driver and a prosecution witness in the trial of 28 persons on charges of plotting to overthrow the government, testified that V. R. Dunne, one of the defendants, envisioned this program in a talk before 150 members of the defense guard of General Drivers' union, local No. 544, organized in 1938.

After this testimony Judge M. M. Joyce asked United States Attorney Victor E. Anderson when the government expected to close its case. Anderson said it would be completed "sometime Monday."

Earlier in the day, Eugene J. Williams, a former member of the Socialist Workers party, testified that Dunne urged members who were drafted to organize cliques in the army, spread the party gospel, and when the time came, seize the guns and arsenals and turn them on those in power.

SLAYS CLOTHIER IN QUARREL OVER PRICE OF OUTFIT

An unidentified Negro gunman last night shot and killed Benjamin Leifer, 48 years old, 735 Waveland avenue, in the Leifer Brothers clothing store at 501 North Clark street. The killer escaped. Samuel Leifer, brother of Benjamin, said he and the victim were in the store when the Negro entered, selected and donned a tan topcoat, hat, and shoes, and then began quarreling about the price. Leifer said he ran out of the store to get help and heard a shot. He returned to find his brother dying. The gunman, who left an old brown cap and tan shoes in the store, is described as being 18 to 22 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and of medium build.

3 BALTIC STATES SHAKE OFF RED RULE'S HANGOVER

Recover Slowly with Aid of German Army.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 14.—After 13 months of Russian tyranny, the Baltic states are slowly recovering under German rule from the effects of the communist reign of terror by the GPU [secret police].

In Lithuania and Latvia, German civil authorities are in executive control with most administrative bodies and government organizations in the hands of Lithuanians and Latvians.

Estonia still is considered a region of military operations, but there most government functions are carried out by Estonians who are coöperating with German army officials. Thus far no friction has been reported.

The three countries have no armies. However,' their home-guards have been reorganized and are assisting the German army in many ways.

Two Schools of Thought.

Estonians and Latvians declare it is too early to think about restoration of the complete sovereignty of their countries. Some are confident this will be restored at the end of the war. Others believe their countries will become autonomous states, but with a limited economic and political life.

The Germans are doing their best to make friends in Latvia and Estonia. Both countries have been treated with consideration and respect. Newspapers are appearing in the national language, courts are functioning, and operas and theaters have reopened.

The fact that German armies already have saved thousands of Baltic citizens who were deported by the Russians has served to promote a growing feeling of friendship between the Estonians and Latvians and the Germans.

The Germans admit some regrettable mistakes have been made. In Riga, Latvia, a number of streets were renamed for German heroes. The official who did this was removed from his post a few days later. In Tallinn, Estonia, the city council voluntarily changed the name of the main thorofare to Adolf Hitler street.

Change Gauge of Railroads.

Altho the Germans have been in the Baltic states only three months, they have accomplished much in reconstruction, restoration, and organization work. All Baltic railroads have been changed from the Russian broad gauge to the normal gauge. This permits European rolling stock to traverse these countries.

Fitted with new machines from Germany, many factories again are in operation. Engineers and skilled workers in enterprises which were impossible to reopen have been offered temporary positions in Germany. In many cases employment was accepted.

In Estonia youths are being recruited for service in the German army. Many are volunteering. The food and pay are good. Jobs are hard to obtain because the war ruined industries in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania. The Estonian recruits are being used to assist German salvage battalions which clear up wreckage behind the lines. Similar recruiting is being carried on in Latvia and Lithuania.

There is no danger of either hunger or pestilence in the Baltic states. The Russians did not have time to turn private farms into collective farms.

The Germans have taken measures to prevent the Baltic states from being plundered of their last remaining possessions by strictly limiting purchases by German officials and army men. It is forbidden to purchase food in the Baltic states and mail packages to Germany. In fact, postal service between the Baltic states and Germany and other countries has not yet been restored.

Officially the Baltic states now are a part of Ostland, which, according to German plans, also will include White Russia, whose capital is Minsk. For the present Riga is the capital of Ostland and Reichscommissar Heinrich Lohse is the administrator of that territory. Ostland and the Ukraine are projected as future buffer states between Germany and Russia.

RUSSIA CALLS U. S. NOTE TO FINLAND 'BLOW AT HITLER'

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Nov. 11 [Delayed] (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull's advice to Finland to end the war with Russia or forfeit America's friendship was described today by S. A. Lozovsky, vice foreign commissar, as a "heavy blow at Germany." He said Finland's reply was equivocal because the Finnish government was dependent on Germany. Lozovsky said ther were strong sentiments in Finland against continuing the war.

[A Finnish note to Washington, D. C., rejected America's warning and said Finland was fighting only a defensive war. Diplomatic sources at Helsingfors and Washington have indicated, however, that the door was left open for further discussion of means to bring the Finnish-Russian fight to an end.]

Parliament to Meet.

WITNESS TELLS DEATH THREAT IN BOMBING TRIAL

Followed Confessions to Federal Agents.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 14.—A threat by a defendant in the oil pipe line bombing conspiracy case that two other defendants might be "bumped off" for confessing their complicity in the crime was related today to the jury before Judge Charles Y. Miller in Macon county Circuit court. The witness testifying was Pearle Hoskinson, former labor leader, originally indicted with 11 others now on trial.

Hoskinson, however, has pleaded guilty and is testifying for the state against the defendants—two ex-convicts and nine unionists. The threat, he said, was made in May, 1940, by Defendant Harry E. Meisenhelter, business agent for the Decatur Hod Carriers' union. It was directed, Hoskinson testified, against Defendants Edwin F. Roy and Cecil O. Wilson, members of the Hod Carriers' union executive board.

Four Confess to U. S. Agents.

Roy, Wilson, and two other defendants—Melvin Watkins, another member of the executive board, and Mrs. Louise Chvatal, stenographer for the Decatur Building Trades council—had confessed to federal agents in Springfield, Hoskinson declared.

"Meisenhelter said: 'A fellow in East St. Louis will take care of them and bump off Roy and Wilson,'" Hoskinson testified under questioning by State's Attorney Ivan J. Hutchens.

The bombing for which the 11 are on trial occurred five miles south of here on Feb. 9, 1940, and broke the Texas Empire company's pipe line. Similar bombings had occurred at other points on the line. The state charges the conspiracy followed unsuccessful union efforts in 1939 to force a closed shop on the contractor constructing the line.

The federal government investigated the explosions, but turned the matter over to state jurisdiction. The defendants were indicted here last July, more than a year after four of them purportedly confessed to federal agents.

Warned to Keep Silent.

"Meisenhelter told us all to keep our mouths shut when the agents called us to Springfield," Hoskinson said. "Watkins said to me: 'We've got to plead guilty and take Meisenhelter with us, or we'll all go down the river. The government knows too much.' Meisenhelter said he'd be in hell before he'd plead guilty.

"Then Wilson announced he had talked to the agents and told them all about it. Mrs. Chvatal said: 'What will we do if Wilson has talked?' So she and I and Roy and Watkins gave statements to the agents."

Earlier Hoskinson told of the events leading up to the bombing and said that the explosive was prepared in the basement of Meisenhelter's home in Decatur.

Stand by Your Guns.

All you have to do is to keep the faith, to remain steadfast to the right, to stand by your banner. Nothing should lead you to leave your guns. Stand together, ready, with match in hand. Allow nothing to turn you to the right or to the left. Remember how long you have been in setting out on the true course; how long you have been in getting your neighbors to understand and believe as you now do. Stand by your principles, stand by your guns, and victory, complete and permanent, is sure at the last.

A. Lincoln

Chicago, March 1, 1859.

A SECRET COVENANT TO DODGE TAXES.

Our state department has negotiated a treaty with Britain which would exempt much or all British property in the United States from federal, state, and local taxation. The administration sought to keep the whole matter from the public at least until the senate had ratified the arrangement.

The news that the treaty had been signed in Washington on Oct. 17 came to light only because some members of the foreign relations committee of the senate are men of courage. The state department wanted the committee to consider the matter in absolute secrecy. By the trick of voting absent members, a majority which approved this procedure was obtained, but fortunately some of the members of the committee had not sold their consciences to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull. Thanks to these senators, the country has a pretty good idea of what our state department flunkies have been trying to put over.

The first question which arises is why such a treaty was regarded as desirable or necessary. That inquiry raises some collateral questions. What taxes are the British government and British subjects trying to dodge? How can such exemptions be justified? Why should the British wish to dodge American taxes now that our government is lend-leasing to Britain all the dollars they can spend? How much money is involved? How much will the federal government lose? How much will the various state and local governments lose?

We don't know what the answers may be, but there is little doubt that the initiative for this treaty came from the British government. The existence of the treaty came to light on Thursday evening. The day before Mr. Carl Chatters, executive director of the Municipal Finance Officers' association, spoke at an Association of Commerce meeting in Chicago. As reported in THE TRIBUNE, Mr. Chatters "observed that the British government had protested Detroit's taxation of British owned arms plants in that city." Presumably, when these efforts failed, the treaty was put forward to serve the same purpose.

The secrecy with which it was attempted to cover up the deal is itself highly suspicious. If the arrangement was just and reasonable, why conceal it? How would American or British interests be injured by public examination of the treaty if it is a fair one to all concerned? How would German, Italian, or Japanese interests be furthered by open discussion? To ask these questions is to answer them. The attempt to impose secrecy was quite unrelated to any honest desire to aid Britain or to injure the axis.

Any one experienced in politics as they are played will suspect at once that the purpose of the treaty and of the secrecy is to promote some private skulduggery. In industrial circles it has been whispered for many months that some British contracts in this country were placed on highly favorable terms and that the American manufacturers who got the contracts weren't the only ones who profited from them. If there is any truth in these accounts, and some of them are highly circumstantial, it seems not at all unlikely that the treaty may have been intended to protect certain individuals in the possession of egregious profits and rake-offs from the munitions business.

Now that the lid has been lifted, it is to be hoped and expected that the members of the senate will insist upon knowing all about the deal. To do less would be to take the risk of furthering a scheme to graft and swindle.

TIME TO START THE LAKE FRONT AIRPORT.

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt is still negotiating with the air lines over the terminal facilities of the enlarged city airport, but the actual runways on the expanded field are now in use. Thus Chicago has one first class airport. It has taken nearly a decade of effort to get it, and its distance from the center of the city is still a severe handicap on air transportation to cities located within a couple of hours' flying time of Chicago.

Recently Le Roy Odell, consulting engineer, asserted to the students and faculty of the Illinois Institute of Technology that within another decade Chicago will need not one but eight or ten airports of the size of the city's present one. The estimate was based on the expectation that the volume of air passenger traffic will increase during the next ten years at the same rate that it has increased in the last few years. Mr. Odell's estimate may be a trifle on the rosy side, but it requires no crystal gazing to see that the time is not far distant when the present city airport will be insufficient to handle Chicago's air passenger traffic. The years of litigation involved in condemning the land required for the enlargement of the present airport suggest the difficulties that will be faced in the accumulating, parcel by parcel, of mile square areas for additional air terminal facilities. The cost of urban land is also so great that the price of such areas within any reasonable distance from the center of the city will be virtually prohibitive.

The obvious solution for this problem of airport expansion is the project which Chicago has foolishly allowed to lie dormant while it struggled with the enlargement of the city airport—that is the construction of a lake front airport. The experience at the city airport was that legal delays far surpassed in time consumed the time required for physical construction. On the lake front such legal delays would not be encountered. Such opposition as has been offered to the project has been not legal but rhetorical—and phony rhetoric at that. A lake front airport should be made the next and most pressing item on Chicago's public building program.

THE GREAT BETRAYAL.

The preposterous future which the most conservative of Mr. Roosevelt's war administrators present to the people of this country as their certain prospect is one which contains no hope for the continuation of the American republic as we have known it. The program contemplated is one which must change the destiny of every American and distort it into something another generation would have fought to avoid.

The conservative estimates of American war activity cover a minimum period of the next three years, even if the national effort is stepped up to include over half of the nation's productivity and more than half of its income. In these three years the national debt will rise to unpredictable figures. The men who are spending the money don't hesitate to talk of 200 billions.

In the three years industry is to shift from production for the satisfaction of normal needs to the satisfaction of military necessities in Asia, Africa, and Europe. The resources of the country will be diverted to a paralyzing degree from the making of things by which people live to the making of things by which they kill each other.

Donald Nelson, in charge of priorities, was not raised in any insane school of business enterprise or in circles hostile to free individualistic economy, but he, conceding that the small producer and the small business man are absolutely essential to American society, can find no encouragement to believe that this man will survive. He hopes he will, but he confesses that the government has not yet found a way to save him.

What we are now forced to call the middle class—forced because classes heretofore have been hateful to American intelligence—is apparently doomed to extinction. Not long ago it was noted that in Great Britain there was a new, impoverished class consisting of well to do persons whose enterprises had been destroyed by the war effort. They will find their counterpart here.

When the foundation of American political and economic life has been destroyed it must follow that everything represented by it and sustained by it will disappear also. If these are gloomy predictions they are not extravagant. They are confirmed by the prophecies of the men who are carrying out the program which will bring such results in its train.

Europe is already prostrated and, according to reliable reports, exposed to a winter of famine in many sections, particularly in the conquered and occupied countries which have been bled by war, made destitute by national misfortunes, and exposed to the worst rigors of the blockade. Is it to be imagined that Europe can stand three more years of these conditions while the United States is ruining itself in a war into which its government is heading as rapidly as it can?

The promises of destruction made by Mr. Roosevelt's advisers and administrators are promises which will be kept. To the communistically minded men who have been in the forefront of the Roosevelt an thought from the beginning, the outcome is desirable. They have sought transformation to what they have politely called the planned economy which in Europe they recognize as Hitler and despotism. These promises will be kept and these prophecies fulfilled, altho the crooked way to war has been paved with deliberate falsification, bad faith, and broken words. Everything that Mr. Roosevelt has done is something he specifically declared he would not do.

And nothing but suffering and misery will come of it. There will be no new order, neither Hitler's nor Roosevelt's. A great dawn such as the world has never seen is not arising and will not arise. The freedoms which are the war cries of people seeking conflict to extinction are vapors. By the guidance of falsehoods the American people have been led into the crooked road of sacrificial illusions.

POOR MR. GREEN.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor greeted the sentencing of the movie labor racketeers, Browne and Bioff, with this statement:

"Exploitation by those who have been selected to represent working men and women in the organized labor movement is a crime of the greatest magnitude. It cannot be excused or condoned.

"The conviction and penalties imposed upon George E. Browne and William Bioff ought to serve as a warning to those who seek to use the labor movement for exploitation purposes. The highest and best interests of the workers of the nation are served when men who deceive them and betray them are removed from official positions and adequately punished for the commission of crimes of which they have been found guilty."

Those are the right words, but they came at the wrong time. Mr. Green's own record would look better if he had uttered them when he addressed the convention of Browne's and Bioff's union in June, 1940, at Louisville. At that convention Green praised Browne and Browne praised Bioff, who currently was serving an old sentence for pandering in Chicago.

Mr. Green's honesty of purpose can only be defended by the assumption that he is also one of the most stupid and unaware men who has ever held a position of public importance and trust. Nevertheless, we insist, he is an honest man.

DOUGHBOY'S CLEAN LIFE.

[The Elgin Courier-News.]

The post property officer at Fort Dix in New Jersey, where a large number of Uncle Sam's selectees are being trained for the army, is getting writer's cramp. Half his time is consumed in scribbling requisitions for soap.

Not only did he recently ask for 25,000 cakes of face soap, but also for 135,000 tablets of laundry soap, 10 tons of dishwashing powder, and 13,200 pounds of soap grit for cleaning pots and pans.

It's pretty evident that when the army gets thru with them, all those lads are going to make excellent husbands. They will be able to launder a handkerchief and polish a pan with the best of them.

That's national preparedness, that is.

MR. PEPYS GETS A GIFT.

15th Nov.—Did receive a gift a few days ago that I prize highly, and it came from good John Kelley, a friend of my youth, who journeyed from a distant state to join the Chicago press veterans at their banquet. He brought me a little book in leather binding that he has cherished as a curiosity, and it is indeed a rare item, for it was printed in 1785 in London. Its title page reads, "Memoirs of George Anne Bellamy, Including All Her Intrigues, with Genuine Anecdotes of All Her Public and Private Connections, by a Gentleman of Covent Garden Theater."

This lady, whose names were an eccentric form of Georgiana, was famous on the London stage for her beauty, so much so that she acted Juliet to Garrick's Romeo, and was thought the finest Juliet of her time. More than that, she was notorious for her amours, and no courtesan was ever looser in her habits. Maybe if she lived today she would be a Hollywood actress with five divorces, but the Georgian customs were simpler.

Perhaps historians have never thought of looking into the story of such a sinful minx and featherhead as George Anne for footnotes to the epic of America, but there is one in this book, and John Kelley himself pointed it out to me. It seems George Anne knew Gen. Braddock, under whom Washington served in the French and Indian war. He was slain in the massacre near the present site of Pittsburgh, and I have visited that battlefield of the old wilderness.

George Anne was domiciled in sin with a fellow named Calcraft, who lived by his wits, and she helped him get jobs buying supplies for regiments in the British army. Now the book says:

"On Calcraft's account she got acquainted with as many military men as she could. And she succeeded so well as to have generally seven officers of the first rank at their table.

"Gen. Braddock, who was just appointed to go to America, gave her his agency without her asking for it. The general, who had known her from infancy, supped with them the night before his departure. He showed her a map of the country to which he was destined. 'Dear Pap,' said he, 'we are sent like sacrifices to the altar.' His prediction was fully verified by the event. He left a paper with Miss B. which proved to be his will."

This may be a discovery, and if so let the historian who borrows it give John Kelley, former Chicago police reporter, full credit.

THAT COVETOUS FEELING.

We envied him, altho his clothes
Were torn and tattered;
He seemed to feel, beset with woes,
That nothing mattered.

Despite the fact that he was sad,
Our yearning faces
Revealed that with him we'd be glad To exchange places.

Without the thing he held, perhaps
We felt ill treated;
For we were hanging onto straps
While he was seated.

Armistice Day—the West Side.

They were walking under the elevated structure when the whistles began to blow, a lad who was probably ten years old and a little toddler no more than three. At the low sound of the first siren the pair stopped. The elder lad turned toward the east, drew his thin, black-stockinged legs together, and brought up his hand in a smart salute. He held it thus for a moment and then, remembering his little charge, who was tugging at his knickers, the lad bent over and whispered something to the child. With his free hand he took the baby's pudgy fist and held it up to the blue hood of his snow-suit.

For a full minute they stood saluting together. They did not see me, standing quietly behind them. And so we were three, looking toward the east, under the rusty, dingy pillars of the "L." I could see the great steel piers stretching in an endless series into the distance, until they were lost in the soft gray nothingness of the atmosphere. The curved arcs swept upward from each side and met in the center to form Gothic arches of steel; the effect was that of looking down the pillared nave of a medieval cathedral. For a magic moment we were not under the grimy steel trestle of the elevated; we were beneath the lofty, vaulted roof of Rheims. Timosius.

AUTUMN, 1941.

The world had been as beautiful before,
Altho entrancing glints of color shone
On ruby sumac boughs, and maples wore
A cope which gleamed with every jewel tone.
The brooding cobalt of autumnal sky
Above the purple hills and bronzen plain,
The breathless hush of deep tranquility
Seemed vibrant echoes of an old refrain.

But on a day when war's mad terrors razed,
Familiar loveliness assailed my sight
With such a startling glory that, amazed,
I turned away as from a blinding light.
Now, calm serenity must be forsworn
And beauty is too grievous to be borne.

One for the Boner Book.

(Newspaper Variety.)

One of the department editors acquired a new secretary who, after she had been around a few months, thought she knew her stuff. She came to the Sunday makeup editor one day to complain that a passage in her boss' article which had been "killed" had gotten into print and caused certain gnashing of teeth.

"You killed it?" asked Mr. Makeup.

"Certainly I killed it," answered young Miss Bjones.

"How did you kill it?"

"I crossed it out on the proof and wrote 'kill' on the margin."

"What did you do with the proof?"

"I dropped it into the wastebasket."

CLEANLINESS HELPS TO PREVENT FOOD POISONING.

AN attack of food poisoning is usually a brief affair. Nature attempts to get rid of the offending articles thru natural channels. The upset may last for a short time and there may be no serious aftermath. Every little while, however, we will learn of a severe bout which has come because contaminated edibles have been swallowed.

How does such a seizure announce itself? Within two to six hours after eating, infected material may start on a rampage thru the intestines. Not infrequently the cause is some member of the Salmonella group of organisms which has found its way into meat loaf, milk and egg puddings, salads, cream pies, etc. Now and then toxicity may be so extreme that life is in danger.

Following the unfortunate meal, symptoms of nausea and pain may appear. This means that generous quantities of bacteria have entered the bowel. Depending upon the resistance of the individual, distress may be observed within an hour or two or the response may be delayed for approximately a half day. Occasionally, however, the onset will be speedy. In fact, the stomach may reject its contents before the victim can journey to the bathroom.

In addition, intestinal cramps will come on, with the development of a diarrhea accompanied by intense pain. If the discharges from the bowel are profuse, so much fluid may be lost that vital organs will not be able to function satisfactorily. Oftimes the patient is afraid to take a drink of water because it will be vomited immediately. Thirst is marked. The breath is fetid and the pulse feeble. There may be a temperature, and any one who looks at the victim will realize that he is ill.

It is the job of the family physician to supply the tissues either with Ringer's, glucose, or salt solution so that damage to the heart [muscle degeneration] will not occur. At any rate, the critical character of the attack demands prompt replacement of fluid and minerals. In the event that this is not done, the fabric of the body may dry to an excessive degree and be unable to carry on. In fact, uremia [stoppage of the output of the kidneys] may become a dangerous problem.

There are a number of emergency remedies which may be employed—digitalis for the heart or atropin to allay the spasms of the intestinal tube. A profuse diarrhea may be eased quickly by extract of Jamaica ginger or aromatic sulfuric acid. It is not unusual to witness great relief following the ingestion of the acid.

We encounter no small amount of trouble from "filled" pastry. Custards form ideal culture beds. Eclairs, cream puffs, and cream pies may be generously sown with germs should the one who prepares the filling suffer from inflammation within the nasal passages or the throat. Organisms from the nostrils may reach the hands and thus be transferred to the mixture.

Much can be done by insisting upon cleanliness in the home, public restaurants, and bakeries. Those who are "ailing" should not report for work. A case was reported recently by Simonton in which a lemon pie showed about 10,000,000 bacteria per teaspoonful. Needless to say those who indulged were quite uncomfortable for a few days.

As most of us know, recooking will render many foods comparatively safe. But we must make certain that the baking temperature for casseroles is not less than 400 degrees F. and that the process continues for 45 minutes.

Finally, mention should be made of the importance of clean dishes, eating utensils, etc. The chances are that a fair number of sore throats come from inadequately washed glassware, spoons, etc., used at soda fountains and quick lunch counters. A campaign which will insure sanitary tableware will enhance the health of every community.

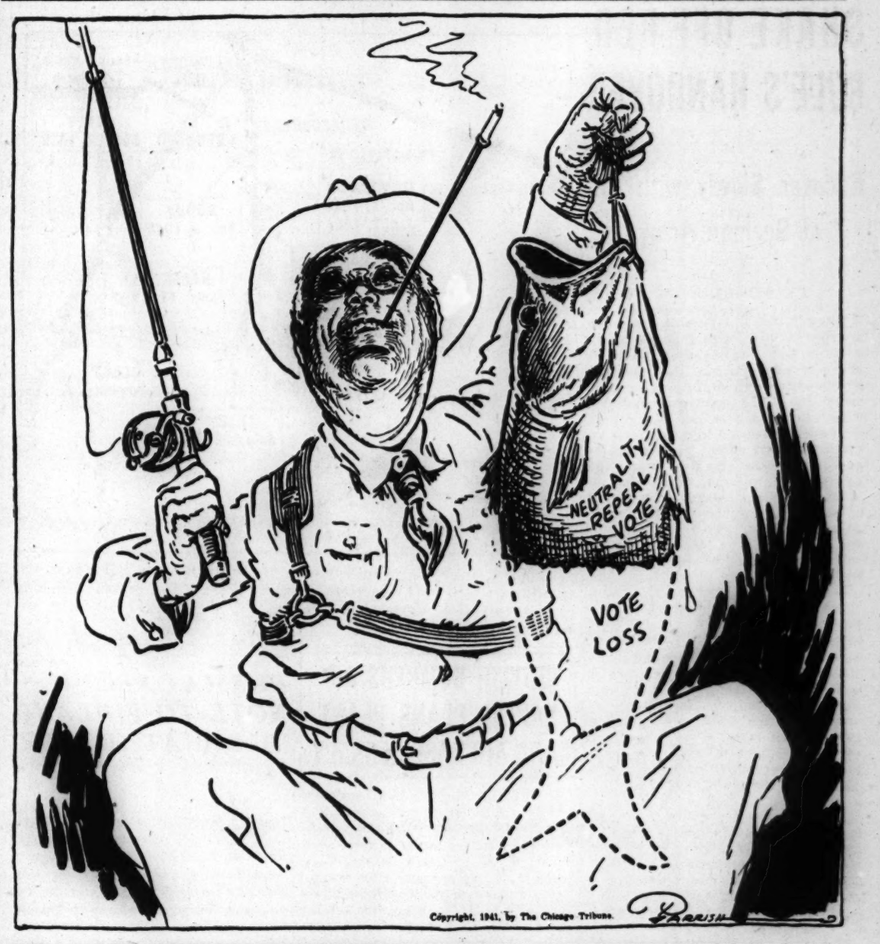
NOT SPONTANEOUS.

D. A. writes: Where do bedbugs derive from?

REPLY.

From other bugs—their parents. They breed rapidly. They may enter the home via infested clothing, furniture, etc.

THE BIG CATCH!



VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

A LITTLE MAN'S DILEMMA.

Highland Park, Ill., Nov. 13.—F. B. Riggs of Cambridge, Mass., in this morning's paper has a call for tall men. All well and good; but how about having a call for small men, individuals like myself who are under 5 feet in height? I can testify from my own experiences that it is no easy matter for a fellow of 4 feet 10 to find steady employment. Quite the other way.

I have written many letters of application, which have been liked by those receiving them, and have been asked to come in for interviews. Upon putting in a personal appearance, however, the attitude of these men changes—at once, simply because of the fact that I am under 5 feet tall. How long will it take people to give an equal chance to small men? Companies are willing to employ small women; why not also employ small men? After all isn't a person's intelligence and education more important than the fact that he is unusually small, a thing over which he has no control? How about it, little fellows?

HUGH S. PORTER.

THE WAR THIRSTY AGAR.

Waukesha, Wis., Nov. 12.—The war party manages to pollute every meeting or convention of any kind in the United States with its cries for war.

For instance take the recent hysterical speech by Herbert Agar to the teachers of Wisconsin, at the Auditorium in Milwaukee. He would have you think that the war was our responsibility and that we should help throw the world into darkness. I suggest he go first if he's so anxious. He seems to see no honor in this country if it doesn't sentence its youth to fighting—to death.

Here's hoping the good teachers of Wisconsin [and I am one] will take this person's speech with a grain of salt.

A PEDAGOGUE.

RAIL LABOR DEFENDED.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Replying to Ned Alvord, whose recent letter in your column compared rail labor conditions in 1894, 1916, and the present: I would advise him to read "Railroads in a Crisis," and become better informed on the American railroad situation. To say that rail labor ever, in all its history, demanded or received anything which in any way interfered with railroad operation in America or impaired the honest financial functions of our railroad system, is, to say the least, an outright falsehood.

R. J. NUGENT.

IS YOUR BLOOD ABOILING?

Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 11.—Armistice day always reminds me of the sadder things connected with war.

We are now going thru the same strike era that France went thru under Leon Blum—if you can remember—and our war will follow just as theirs did.

The Armistice day parades all over the country this year are for the purpose of getting our blood aboiling. Honestly, mine doesn't, tho; does yours?

J. B. HOLLOWAY.

ALL SERVICE MEN SHAVE.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Now that collections of Smokes For Yanks are being made why not add shaving needs? Surely not every service man smokes but they all shave. Why not collect shaving kits, blades, soaps, and shaving cream? These will also be appreciated.

NATE GERSHON.

TRIBUTE TO THE SHERIFF.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Sheriff O'Brien is the best sheriff Cook county has had since THE TRIBUNE was organized. For you to call him, in an editorial in today's paper, a hoodlum because he withdrew the county police escort from the Maywood dairy is not only contemptible but indecent.

The public acts of any public official may rightfully be criticized, but THE TRIBUNE does not criticize, it vilifies. Must a public official act according to the personal whims of the Tribune Tower or suffer the bitter mud slinging of, at times, the World's Greatest Nuisance?

Mr. O'Brien has collected about one million dollars in delinquent personal property taxes by commencing sheriff's sales to satisfy old judgments. No other sheriff in the memory of man in Cook county has ever collected a nickel of back taxes in that manner. And another thing worth noticing is that the county jail enjoys nation-wide recommendation and it is under the sheriff's jurisdiction.

By profession Sheriff O'Brien is a public accountant and by the highest standards of conduct he is a gentleman of excellent character. JOHN E. BURNS.

"I HATE WAR!"

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Who was it that said:

"We are not isolationists except insofar as we seek to isolate ourselves completely from war . . .

"I have seen war. I have seen war on land and sea. I have seen blood running from the wounded. I have seen men coughing out their gassed lungs. I have seen the dead in the mud.

"I have seen cities destroyed.

"I have seen 200 limping, exhausted men come out of line—the survivors of a regiment of 1,000 that went forward 48 hours before.

"I have seen children starving. I have seen the agony of mothers and wives. I hate war!"

It was—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Aug. 14, 1936. J. P. H.

NOT A CHARLES LAMB.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Permit me to thank you for your editorial on "How to Carve a Pig—Don't."

I considered my life wasted because of never having a pig grace our "board" on Christmas day. Finally my wife bought and prepared one last Christmas and invited a few friends—with the result you so well brought out.

What a mess it was when put on the table for me to carve. Never again for any of us. Thanks again for a big laugh.

HUGO MOORHEAD.

SOLID IVORY.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—Voting on a bond issue to construct municipal distribution lines to deliver Hetch Hetchy power to the consumer [which Ickes went to San Francisco to campaign for] that city for the umpteenth time has just landed hard with both feet just where Ickes' collar button was of yore.

His appointment as coördinator of "solid fuel" was announced over the radio. I nominate him for coördinator of solid ivory.

With so many elephants dying, he will have a genuine shortage to console him for the gasoline one that wasn't there at all, and surrounded by solid ivory he would be in a most congenial atmosphere.

THE OLD PIRATE.

DENY CRAB ORCHARD GRAFT.

In a recent issue THE TRIBUNE printed a letter from Anna, Ill., signed by "C. W. Rayburne, 128 West Vienna street." He charged that you had to have a union card to get a job on the Crab Orchard government project; had to pay a bonus, and altogether would need about $100 to start.

W. C. Rayburn of Anna writes that there is no C. W. Rayburne known in that town.

The Sherwin-Williams Defense corporation writes to say "that such a condition would not be tolerated on this project. We hire all of our men, other than supervisors, thru the state employment office and, in addition, a committee of disinterested residents of the several cities in the area makes a further check on the applicants."

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

DRAWING OF WILL.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Do you have a copy of a will or wills? If so, I would be very glad to have the same. K. H.

While the statute does not require the employment of an attorney, we consider such employment advisable. If you try to economize by dispensing with expert help, you are likely to make mistakes which will cost much more than an attorney would have charged to see that the job was done right in the first place. In addition, an attorney might make valuable suggestions as to the wisdom of your testamentary plan.

If, despite the above, you wish to try to handle the matter for yourself, you should obtain a printed form from a stationer and see that it is executed in strict accordance with the attestation clause which precedes the space for signature of witnesses. The services of a notary are not necessary, and it is not safe to assume that a notary will be a competent adviser.

BLAST KILLING 4 LAID TO A SPARK FROM HORSESHOE

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 14 (AP).—A horseshoe which apparently caused a spark probably set off the powder mill explosion in which four men were killed Wednesday, Coroner Harold F. Diller said tonight. The blast at a plant of the Western Powder Manufacturing company was termed accidental by a coroner's jury, which attributed it to a spark of unknown origin.

Dr. Diller said that altho the cause never may be established, evidence convinced him that a metal-shod horse struck a rail of a narrow gauge railroad, making the spark.

Two horses were killed by the explosion and George De Vault, plant manager, testified that both wore metal shoes. He said a spark within 100 feet of the building, where four tons of a special highly explosive powder was stored, could have set off the blast. The railroad, which the horses crossed in hauling materials, was just a few feet from the demolished building.

Dr. Diller said he believed the spark touched off fragments of powder spilled along the track from transfer cars, and that this in turn acted as a fuse, carrying the flame to the main supply in the pressing room.

FARMERS ASSAIL LABOR UNIONS AT BUREAU MEETING

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 14 [Special].—Accusing labor unions of hampering transportation of farm products to market and of harassing farm cooperatives by attempting to force organization of their employés, the Michigan state farm bureau today adopted a resolution favoring broader Wagner act exemptions for farmer operated enterprises.

Delegates at their closing session amended a labor policy resolution on the floor, inserting a demand for "freedom of highways and freedom of delivery at markets for agriculture and its coöperatives."

Representatives of numerous bureau affiliated coöperatives charged union organizers with "high pressure tactics and misleading arguments" in attempting to unionize cooperative employés. Vigorous farmer opposition to "union intimidation" was advocated by floor spokesmen, including G. S. Coffman, Coldwater, director of a coöperative dairy whose employés are on strike.

WIDOW ATTEMPTS SUICIDE IN PROBE OF MATE'S DEATH

Dubuque, Ia., Nov. 14 [Special].—Mrs. Gladys Patch, 44 years old, attempted to commit suicide today, police said, in the midst of an investigation of the death of her second husband, L. R. [Dan] Patch, 49, a wealthy beer distributor and sportsman.

She was reported to be in a critical condition after taking an overdose of sleeping tablets in her home this morning. In a note delivered later to her attorney, Mrs. Patch wrote that she had "never harmed a hair" on her husband's head, and said she was "going to my Maker with a clear conscience."

Patch's body was found Wednesday near a roadhouse where he had celebrated Armistice day with friends. His wife said she had been with him at the roadhouse but had driven home and left him there. She said that when he had not returned several hours later she returned to the roadhouse and found his body.

They were: Mr. and Mrs. Luther Mote and their children, Charles Joe, 5, Donna Lou, 3, and Nancy Ruth, 15 months; Mote's sister, Mrs. Frank Cochran, 45, and the latter's daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Egbert, 23.

2D STENCH BOMB MARKS ITALIAN POLITICAL FEUD

Granata Captain's Saloon Attacked Twice.

For the second time in six days, a stench bomb early yesterday drove customers from Romeo Capocci's saloon at 1508 Harrison street. That fact may be connected with a bitter feud between hitherto friendly leaders of the west side Italian-American Republican bloc.

Concerned directly or indirectly in the story making the rounds last night were the following: Ald. William V. Pacelli, boss of the 20th ward; State Representative Peter C. Granata and his brother, William John Granata, 27th ward committeeman, and members of the Illinois Industrial commission; State Representative James J. Adduci, and his brother Joe Adduci.

Capocci's troubles date from Nov. 4, when as captain of the 36th precinct of the 27th ward, he produced 113 straight Republican votes for the G. O. P. judicial ticket, which was what Committeeman Granata wanted him to do.

Adduci for Democratic Ticket.

Such success was, however, completely contrary to what Representative Adduci and his brother wanted, since they were working for the Democratic ticket that day, despite their Republican label. Watchers from the Chicago Businessmen's committee said that Capocci was threatened with unpleasant treatment if he brought in more than 20 straight Republican votes.

But he brought them in, altho there were three Granata-Adduci clashes during the day. Joe Adduci is alleged to have started the unpleasantness early in the day by telling Granata, "You're getting too big for your pants," when they met in front of the 35th precinct polling place, 1450 Polk street. A few more words followed, but there were no blows until, shortly afterward, Granata and the Adduci brothers tangled in front of the poling place at 1459 Harrison street. This fracas was short.

When Granata next met the Adducis, according to friends, in Capocci's precinct polling place, however, Joe struck him from behind. Granata returned the punch and the scene was set for a merry brawl, until Policeman Fred C. Schurlau, assigned to the precinct, pulled his gun and ordered all the principals outside. On the way out, Rep. Adduci is alleged to have threatened to get the policeman fired.

First Stench Bomb Saturday.

The first stench bomb was thrown into Capocci's saloon last Saturday night, four days after the election, and the second came early yesterday.

The row between Granata and Adduci was the first notice that the little group of potent political leaders on the near west side had split, since Peter Granata, John's brother, and James Adduci have been close to one another in the legislature, generally voting alike on bills and holding membership in a little clique of Chicago Republicans who frequently voted with the Democrats.

In general, this group has been considered responsive to Ald. Pacelli's wishes, but Rep. Granata is now understood to be no longer close to the alderman, whose district he represents, and as a consequence, may be "left at home" next year when house members run for reëlection.

U. OF C. SOPHS DEFEAT FROSH IN TUG-OF-WAR

The sophomore class of the University of Chicago, with the assistance of some fraternity men spectators and a tree, yesterday defeated the freshman class in the annual tug-of-war.

The freshmen, however, felt that they had the upper hand at the botany pond ducking which followed. The fraternity support suddenly left the ranks of the sophomores, leaving them outnumbered.

The tug-of-war got off to a slow start when both teams tied their ends of the 245 foot rope to trees. After the judges freed the rope, the tug was resumed. This time the sophomores jumped to a fast start and wound their end around another tree. They won.

As usual, several spectators also received a muddy bath in the botany pond, with the 250 participants. Last year the freshman class won.

JOSLYN PAYS $1 TO END WIFE'S SUIT FOR $50,000

The $50,000 damage suit which Mrs. Charlotte C. Joslyn brought against her former husband, George R. Joslyn, son of a wealthy manufacturer, because he was a day late in returning their two children, was closed yesterday under an agreement which awarded Mrs. Joslyn nominal damages of $1.

Judge Joseph B. Hermas made the award after attorneys for both sides had agreed to it. Only a week ago Joslyn refused an offer by Mrs. Joslyn's lawyer to bring the case to an end if he would pay 1 cent damages.

The Joslyns were divorced in 1938 after a year of sensational litigation, and Mrs. Joslyn was awarded custody of the children. Joslyn then married Miss Ethel Urban. When the children were to visit him he posted a $50,000 bond to guarantee their return.

NON-CLASSIFIED STATE EMPLOYES GET PAY TODAY

Civil Service Group's Checks Held Up.

Part of the legal snarl tying up salaries of the state's 26,000 employés was untangled yesterday by Attorney General George F. Barrett. In a letter to State Treasurer Warren Wright and State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder, Barrett directed these two officers to remove from the "frozen" salary list the names of thousands of workers whom he has found are not involved in the mixup.

The tangle arose last Monday when Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan issued an injunction directing that the pay of certain temporary state employés be withheld on the plea that they were appointed illegally without consideration of waiting civil service lists.

All Pay Stopped.

Rather than chance violating the injunction, Barrett on Wednesday ordered that the pay of all state workers be held up until it could be determined just which ones were affected by Judge Finnegan's action, which he condemned as causing "disruption, confusion, and disorder of governmental functions."

Barrett's letter yesterday freed the salaries of all state workers not directly under civil service. These include elected officials, judges, and court appointees, persons appointed by the governor, faculties of state schools, highway department workers, and a score of other classifications.

Majority to Get Pay.

Today is pay day for 1,500 employés. The other 24,500 workers are paid on Nov. 28. Several thousand of these—all except civil service employés—will receive their pay then, even if the legal tangle still exists.

However, Barrett hopes to have it solved by then. Yesterday he filed a petition with the Illinois Supreme court asking expungment of the injunction which has caused the difficulty. In his petition he charged that Judge Finnegan's order was so indefinite and far reaching that its strict enforcement would hurt thousands of workers entirely uninvolved in the mixup.

The Supreme court directed Judge Finnegan to answer within five days.

MRS. SHOEMAKER, 82, MOTHER OF CARTOONIST, DIES

Mrs. Estelle Shoemaker, 82 years old, mother of Vaughn Shoemaker, cartoonist for the Chicago Daily News, died of a heart attack yesterday in her home at 7233 Harvard avenue a few hours after a car in which she was riding was in a minor collision.

Her physician said the attack apparently resulted from the shock of the accident. Mrs. Shoemaker had lived in Chicago since 1885, and since the death two years ago of her husband, William H. Shoemaker, former head of the commercial department of Wendell Phillips High school, with Mr. and Mrs. Mark Svedberg.

Svedberg was driving one of the cars in the accident. Two other sons also survive. Services at 2 p. m. Monday at Stone church, 70th street and Stewart avenue.

"Justice Deferred"

By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1941: By William MacLeod Raine)

SYNOPSIS.

When a small boy, Jack Waugh saw his father ambushed and murdered in Santa Rita. Returning after 20 years, determined to bring his father's murderers to justice, Jack rescues Mary Lane from a holdup and possible death. She has with him a letter written by Corbett Carey containing the message that sent his father to his death, and he has good reason to believe that old Ab Clinton instigated his father's murder. He visits Luke Dixon, an oldtime, and friend of his father. Luke warns Jack against trying to get even with old Ab, as he is ruthless and unscrupulous, and it would be hard to prove Ab guilty. Jack decides to call on Mary while he is planning the best course to take.

INSTALMENT VI.

STEPFATHER.

Presently a woman in her mid-forties joined Jack and Mary. She was slender and well gowned, a woman sweet and gracious.

"I'd like you to meet my mother, Mrs. Carey," the girl said. "Mother, this is Mr. Waugh."

"I'm very glad you called, Mr. Waugh," the older woman told him. "I want to thank you for the great service you did my daughter."

Jack brushed her thanks aside. He had done very little, he said. His mind was preoccupied with something else. Mary had introduced her as Mrs. Carey.

"Is dad in the garden?" the girl asked.

"Yes, I've sent for him. He'll be along presently." The mother turned to their guest. "Will you be long in Santa Rita, Mr. Waugh? It is a pleasant little city. We must try to make you like it."

"It has been 20 years since I saw it last. I was a small boy then. The place has grown out of my memory."

"You lived here?" Mrs. Carey asked.

"Not in town. Out in the ranch country."

"That's interesting. My husband used to be a cattleman. In fact he still has a ranch. Perhaps you have heard of him—Corbett Carey."

"Yes, I've heard of him." The eyes of Waugh had become opaque, almost expressionless. Mary had a feeling that he had suddenly withdrawn into himself. She wondered why.

A grayhaired man came into the room. He was past middle life, and he had taken on the spread that comes with years. Slightly bowlegged, he was tanned and still vigorous. His clothes he wore carelessly, as an outdoor man frequently does. Corbett Carey was less youthful in appearance than he had been when Jack had seen him last, but Waugh recognized him at once.

Mary introduced the men. Jack was busy pouring a cocktail for Mrs. Carey and was unable to shake hands. The old cattleman stared at their visitor.

"Goddlemighty!" he exclaimed. "You're Pete Waughs' son."

"Yes," Jack replied. The muscles of his jaws hardened. "You knew my father pretty well, didn't you, Mr. Carey?"

The older man was still startled at his recognition of the guest, and perhaps, too, at the expression in the cold, steely eyes, slightly narrowed, that rested so intently on his. There was no friendliness in them.

"Sure did," he answered, a little taken back. "We ran cows on adjoining ranges for 15 years. I knew him like I did my own brother. Pete was the outstanding cattleman in this district. Not the biggest, you understand, but in some ways the most influential. He was one man you could tie to and not be let down. The territory lost one of its best citizens when he was killed."

Waugh did not lift his gaze from the man. The face he looked at seemed a frank one, apparently friendly and with nothing to conceal. Yet there was a hint of disturbance in it, as if the son's question had stirred up a distressing memory.

"I think I have a letter you wrote my father," Jack said.

"Might be." Carey hesitated, and continued. "We had business dealings, being neighbors like we were."

"This wasn't a business letter."

Mary was surprised and a little shocked at Waugh's curt manner. In his eyes there was a cold glitter, almost hostile in its keen appraisal of the other. It was as tho he were judging her stepfather.

Carey waved aside the matter of the letter. He spoke to his wife. "When I first settled in the Sweetwater Valley, Peter had just started the Lazy W ranch. Ab Clinton's outfit was the biggest one in 50 miles. He was always crowding the rest of us, and we kinda looked to Pete to lead us and stick up for our rights."

"The letter I mentioned was sent to my father the day he was murdered," Waugh explained.

As one does when puzzled, Carey shook his head. "Don't remember a thing about it. I reckon it wasn't important."

"It took my father to his death," Jack said, his voice low and clear.

Mrs. Carey cried out, astonished and alarmed. "What do you mean?"

"You recall that we rode to Santa Rita that night, he and I, to pay for the government land he had bought. You haven't forgotten that too, have you?"

"Of course not." Carey let annoyance creep into his voice. "I'm not a fool. Everybody knew that, after . . . after what happened at the Longhorn."

"But you don't remember sending him a letter from Santa Rita by one of your riders, telling him you had just found out the money for the land had to be paid before noon next day or the sale forfeited, and that Ab Clinton was all ready to step in and buy?"

Mary did not like her guest's manner. It put her stepfather on the defensive. "Are you blaming Mr. Carey for sending your father a friendly reminder?" she asked.

"I'm trying to jog his memory, and I'm not having much luck," Waugh said coldly. "All I ask is a plain answer. Your name is signed to that letter, Mr. Carey. Did you or didn't you write it?"

Carey flushed, angrily, "If you're claiming I helped his enemies set a trap for your father—"

"I'm trying to get at the facts. That letter started him on the journey at the end of which assassins were waiting to murder him. How did they know he was coming just then, unless they had been told about the letter?"

"I won't take talk like that from any man alive," Carey burst out. "Peter Waugh was my friend. I would have fought beside him to the last ditch. Even if you are his son you can't accuse me of treachery."

"After he was dead did you stand by Luke Dixon and his group to the last ditch? I've heard you sold them down the river when you let the Clintons buy you out."

"You've been talking to old Begad. He's a stiffnecked lunkhead who didn't have sense enough to give up when he knew he was licked. I had to sell or go broke, and not being a fool, I sold. I don't know why I'm telling you this. I'm under no obligations to explain my actions to you, sir. Your attitude toward me is an insult."

"Because I ask you for an explanation of that letter. Why shouldn't I ask? If you had nothing to hide you would give me a straightforward answer." Abruptly Waugh flung a blunt question at him. "Do you know who killed my father?"

"Couldn't even guess, I reckon."

"Yes, I could guess. So could you."

"I'll guess." Waugh's voice was still low and deceptively gentle. "Some of the killers of that Clinton clan."

"What has that to do with my father?" Mary demanded.

"Just what I'm trying to find out," Jack replied.

A fifth person had come into the room by way of a French window, a handsome young fellow, slender and graceful, carefully dressed in sport shoes, white trousers, and a brown coat with tie and socks to match. He had no hat to cover the light curly hair above the sun-bronzed face. Apparently the scene interested him, for he made no effort to interrupt it or announce himself. Leaning against the window jamb negligently, he waited, a sardonic grin on his lips, as if waiting for his cue.

"If you think my father could have done such a thing, why did you come to his house?" Mary demanded, very slim and erect, the sting of a whiplash in her voice.

"I didn't know it was his house," he retorted. "A young lady who gave her name as Miss Lane invited me. But you are quite right. This isn't any place for me. I must not outstay my welcome. It has been very nice to meet you all."

JUDGE STANTON'S MOTHER-IN-LAW, MRS. MILLER, DIES

Mrs. Annie Miller, 85 years old, the daughter of a Chicago merchant and the mother-in-law of the late Judge Walter T. Stanton, died yesterday in her home at 8109 Throop street. Mrs. Miller, a semi-invalid, became ill of pneumonia after she attended a wake for Judge Stanton, who died last Saturday.

Born in New York, she was brought to Chicago as a girl. Her father, John Bowen, operated a general store behind which his family lived at the northwest corner of Madison and Wells streets. The store burned in the Chicago fire, and the family for a time lived with an uncle on a farm at 39th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Mrs. Miller was the widow of John Francis Miller, a commission merchant in the stockyards. She was the mother of 14 children, 11 of whom survive.

Five Children Burned to Death in Montana Home

Missoula, Mont., Nov. 14 (AP).—Five children died in their blazing home today while their widowed mother, Mrs. Frances Perrine, was across the street caring for an invalid neighbor. The dead were Elmer; 9; Francis, 5; Richard, 4; Michael, 3, and Donald, 5½ months old. The baby died in a hospital after his mother carried him from the blazing house.

INDIGNANT WIFE SPOILS COUPLE'S TOUCHING STORY

Judge Orders Hearing on Contempt Charge.

Mrs. Margaret Swanson, a gray haired mother of four, was indignant last Friday when she saw her name under a picture in THE TRIBUNE, she told Judge Erwin J. Hasten in Safety court yesterday.

Picture of Margaret Jones that made wife indignant.

Mrs. Swanson, who lives at 3132 South Karlov avenue, was irked, she said, because the picture was not hers, but that of Miss Margaret Jones, 28 years old. She said Miss Jones is a West Madison street barmaid and a close friend of Mrs. Swanson's husband, Theoron, 49.

Miss Jones was arraigned under the name of Mrs. Marguerite Swanson and was charged with driving while intoxicated in the wrong lane of Washington boulevard on Nov. 5. Swanson attempted to take the blame and said that he and his "wife" had just come here from Cleveland, O., so he could get work as a garage mechanic, and that she was relieving him at the wheel of their car.

Woman Put on Probation.

So poignant a story did they tell that court attachés got busy on the phone trying to get Swanson a job. Judge Hasten placed "Mrs. Swanson" on six months probation, but revoked her driver's license for a year.

"For 25 years my husband was a steady, hard working, reliable man," Mrs. Swanson said. "Then last summer he took up with this woman, lost his job as a garage manager for a food concern, and left me and the children. I traced him to Cleveland where I found them in a flat. I brought him home the day before he was arrested and I guess she followed."

Judge Hasten ordered the probation department to bring Miss Jones to court and issued citations for contempt of court against her and Swanson.

Crerar Chauffeur Freed.

William Setterfield, 53 years old, a chauffeur for Mrs. Marie Crerar, 209 Lake Shore drive, widow of John Crerar, coal operator, yesterday was freed by Judge Hasten of a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Setterfield's attorney, Anthony S. Ras, said the complaining witness, Mrs. Anna Kroeger, 31, of 101 Marengo avenue, Forest Park, who was not in court, had no desire to prosecute. He said apparently Setterfield had not realized the car had injured Mrs. Kroger's foot. The accident occurred Nov. 5. Mrs. Crerar was in the car at the time, but, unaware of the accident, ordered the chauffeur to proceed, Setterfield said.

He was fined $1 for not having a safety sticker on the car.

MISSOURI TOWN PROSPERING AS GRETNA GREEN

Kahoka, Mo., Nov. 14 (AP).—Illinois and Iowa laws requiring medical examinations before the issuance of a marriage license have turned this village of 1,800 inhabitants into a Gretna Green of the middle west.

Map locates new Gretna Green.

Because of its proximity to populous areas of the two adjoining states, Kahoka has experienced an influx of couples taking advantage of Missouri's liberal marriage requirements. The increased tempo of ringing cash registers occasioned by their visits has merchants smiling.

In the first 10 months this year Clark County Recorder Archie Starr issued 4,052 licenses—an increase of 2,699, or approximately 200 per cent over the 1,353 total for all of 1940. The 1939 figure was 1,133.

Clark county's fee from each license is $1.50—or approximately $600 a month at the present clip—but Recorder Starr estimates $25,000 to $30,000 in additional business has accrued to hotels, restaurants, taverns, gasoline stations, clothing stores, and jewelry shops.

ESTATE OF $880,000 LEFT TO NEPHEW BY F. B. TUTTLE

Penned in his own handwriting, the will disposing of the $880,000 estate of Frederick Bulkley Tuttle, Chicago's inveterate bachelor, who died last Monday at the age of 94, was filed yesterday with Frank J. Lyman, clerk of the Probate court.

The principal heir to the estate, which consists of $500,000 in personal property and $300,000 in real estate, is a nephew, Dr. Theron Wendell Kilmer of New York City. Dr. Kilmer receives an outright bequest of $100,000 and also the big old home at 2022 South Michigan avenue, where Mr. Tuttle lived for the last 60 years, sturdily resisting the encroachments of commerce in the neighborhood.

In addition, Dr. Kilmer receives the residue of the estate after other bequests have been fulfilled. Among these is one of $20,000 and some real estate to Albert Paul Becker, who was Mr. Tuttle's secretary for 28 years and who often accompanied him on trips abroad.

Cecil Barnes and the Northern Trust company were appointed executors.

Edith Atwater Bride of Actor in N. Y. Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

THIS morning in New York a wedding of interest in Chicago is taking place. Miss Edith Atwater is the bride and Hugh Marlowe the bridegroom. The news will come as a surprise to their friends here, for the young actress and actor only decided to be married a day or two ago. They telephoned their respective parents in Chicago, Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hipple, and told them the news. It will be a quiet ceremony with no wedding trip, for the bridegroom has two performances of "The Land Is Bright" today and he plays again on Monday night. He has one of the leading rôles in this new play.

Chicago Society Debut Made by Bride in 1930.

Miss Atwater, who was seen here recently in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," is rehearsing for a new play which will open soon in New York. She made a social debut here in 1930 when she spent the winter with her maternal grandparents, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, and the late Mr. Lobdell. The next year Miss Atwater went to New York, where she has lived ever since, except for some time she spent in Hollywood making pictures. Her longest stay in Chicago since she went on the stage was a few years ago when she was playing with Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God."

Mr. Marlowe, who is well known in radio and movie circles as well as on the stage, is in reality Hugh Hipple. He was married before, to Peggy Davis of Chicago, from whom he was divorced in 1938. He and his bride will live at 10 Mitchell place in the same building in which Miss Atwater now has an apartment. Mrs. Pynchon is planning to go to New York after the new play opens to meet her new son-in-law. Her other daughter, Mrs. James A. Drain Jr., returned to her home in Michigan City just recently from a visit with Miss Atwater.

Virginia Frost to Become Easterner's Bride Today.

For her marriage today to Louis Everard Hamor of Bar Harbor, Me., Miss Virginia Frost will wear a pearl necklace that was given to her at the age of 16 by her grandmother, the late Mrs. Marvin Hughitt. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the Lake Forest home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Charles Sumner Frost. Old lace from Mrs. Frost's wedding gown trims her daughter's gown and headdress. Miss Frost also will wear the veil in which her sister Mrs. David Dangler, was married.

The bride's brother, Marvin Hughitt, has come from Tucson, Ariz., to give her away. Other out of town guests at the small ceremony will be Mrs. Hughitt; the bride's aunt, Mrs. Alfred Hoyt Granger of Washington, D. C., formerly of Lake Forest, and Mrs. Carl Plonk of Asheville, N. C.

Miss Frost's three nieces will attend her, Miss Nancy Dangler as maid of honor and the latter's younger sisters, Margaret and Mary Jean, as junior bridesmaids. Mr. Hamor will have David Dangler Jr. as best man and Henry Adams Dangler as usher.

Mr. Hamor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hamor of Bar Harbor, will take his bride on a southern wedding trip. They will be at home in Hollywood, Fla., until April, when they will go to Bar Harbor.

Marriage of Joan Reid Is in Wilmington Today.

In Wilmington, Del., this afternoon Miss Joan Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid of North State parkway, will become the bride of Lieut. Elliott Detchon, son of the Elliott R. Detchons of Lake Forest. The ceremony will take place in the home of Miss Reid's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brittingham. Because Lieut. Detchon must report back to the marine base at Quantico, Va., on Monday, he and his bride will have no wedding trip. They have taken an apartment in Alexandria, Va.

The wedding was originally planned to take place here, but when Lieut. Detchon was not granted a leave it was shifted to Wilmington. Miss Reid will be attended by her sisters, Mrs. Alanson Donald and Mrs. Russell Trufant Foster, and Miss Edith Cowles, who is going from Sarah Lawrence college for the ceremony.

Donald R. McLennan Jr. of Lake Forest will be Lieut. Detchons' best man, and the ushers will be a group of his former classmates from Yale.

Lewis Linn McArthur Jr. to Entertain for His Niece.

Lewis Linn McArthur Jr. will give a supper-dance at Camellia house on Jan. 2 for his debutante niece, Miss Betty McArthur. Miss McArthur will make her bow at a tea on Dec. 20. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Selim W. McArthur of Scott street.

Roy McWilliams will tell the Alliance Francaise of his experiences as American consul in Biarritz, France, when he speaks at 11:30 o'clock today at the Arts club. Later the alliance will give a luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams. Among those present will be Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. William Little, Maj. Eugene Raymondeaud, Mrs. Laird Bell, Miss June Lockett, and Mrs. Ralph Cornelison. Robert Hall McCormick is president of the alliance and Mrs. James H. Winston heads the woman's board.

Snyders Invite Guests for Northwestern Game.

President and Mrs. Franklyn B. Snyder of Northwestern university have invited a number of guests to watch the university's traditional football battle today with Notre Dame. Among those seeing the game from the president's box in Dyche stadium will be Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilson. The Snyders

Wedding Day for This Former Chicagoan

Lovely Edith Atwater, daughter of Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon, who deserted social life in Chicago to make her debut on the stage in New York about 10 years ago, is being married today. Her bridegroom is Hugh Marlowe, who also hails from Chicago, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hipple. He is an actor, now playing in "The Land Is Bright" in New York.

New Blouses Are Perfect for Dark Garb

BY REA SEEGER.

Demure high round necklines, deep vee necklines and the newest just below-the-elbow length sleeves plus high color, interesting shirred and tucked details make some of the newly unpacked blouses just what you have been waiting for as accents for a separate skirt or a suit. Blouses such as these are winter affairs, some of them festive ideas glittering with gold braid, others with necklines specially cut for small sequin turn-over collars, still others with shining simulated jeweled buttons.

If you want something other than strictly tailored blouses these are the models. They're fresh, crisp and brightly colored and should easily provide all the dramatics necessary for any dull dark skirt or suit. Some of the brand new designs come in a stunning bright red, white, black and one of the loveliest of leaf greens. They are made of dull textured rayon crêpe which is so satisfying and slenderizing. The neckline is a honey, deep shallow vee cut with a soft turnover collar. Embroidered in shimmering gold braid on the left side of the chest is a most effective scroll design that looks like a large monogram.

Another model, particularly appealing, features a curved stitched band of the material tied in a soft bow at the center. This is a simulated shirt front bosom effect. The colors are knockout, old-gold, hydrangea blue, white, red, pink, green and yellow. The fabric is a soft basket weave texture and the sleeves are tucked along the inner side in three soft folds.

Extremely simple blouses of many bright shades ready for dress parade collars or just to be worn as background for jewelry are cut with careful simplicity, shirred at the sidelines to fit revealingly in the long torso fashion.

Clinging crêpes in strong colors and blacks make these perfect finds for the money. Jersey blouses with intricate shirred panels as the only accent complete these timely arrivals. All are long of silhouette, some button down the back, some half way down. All have modest price marks for all their color and glamor.

White Collar GIRL

Letter Reform.

Alice E. Hower, in town for a few days, set many an office abuzz with discussion. Miss Hower, letter counselor and author of a text book, says that letters beginning "We are sorry" are poor business.

Faced with the task of tactfully overcoming a form of letter consistently used by a certain large firm, which began "We regret to inform you," Miss Hower found her sense of humor invaluable. She so successfully convinced the executives and employés of the wisdom of soft pedaling such words as "sorry" and "regret" and substituting more confident, optimistic terms, the office wags forwarded to her their resolutions to begin their correspondence hereafter only in such fashion:

"Hurrah for you! Your insurance has lapsed!"

Or, replying to a caustic attack on the company: "Thank you so much, Mr. Smith, for calling us a bunch of cut throats."

Or, writing to a client who has broken his leg: "How simply ravishing you must look in your cast!"

Miss Hower says that even in this age of informality letters continue to fly thru the mails ending, "Your obedient servant," or "Thanking you, I beg to remain," instead of the unpretentious but suitable, "Sincerely yours," or the now popular "Cordially yours."

Working Wives.

Of the 10½ million women employed in the United States, 3 million are known to be married, with a possible 2 million more whose marriage is a secret. The large number married but not telling may be due to prejudice against the employment of married women, a prejudice fast disappearing under the stress of the rearmament program.

With clubs for tall girls, clubs for short girls, for twins, for left handed people, and what not, how about a "I'm Married and I Like It Club" for business girls?

The mother of two children, a writer, about to be interviewed on a radio program, was nonplused to find the announcer was determined to address her as "Miss." His explanation was that "Miss" is far more professional than "Mrs."

"My ancestors were Puritans," she said meekly, thinking of her children, but knowing full well that no one appreciated her lame little joke.

Helpful Advice.

When in doubt, don't! This sage advice has spared a successful business girl—with a salary which looks like a congressional appropriation—many a blunder. Her employer gave it to her when she took her first job. His theory is, when you argue yourself into doing something against your instinctive judgment [which in a woman is usually good judgment] you invariably regret the decision.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

The mothers who believe that beauty is more habit than heritage will be charmed with two new children's products for little girls.

One, for the girl old enough to be fastidious but young enough to love toys, is a wood veneered cradle, copied from a baby's cradle of generations ago, that holds a soap doll dressed in a white wash cloth. Tucked under her skirts are a small sized bottle of toilet water and a cylinder of talc. Soap, toilet water, and talc are lightly scented with an old-spice perfume.

The toiletries are good; the soap is especially created for a child's use. When her nice "daintifiers" are removed the child has a charming doll's cradle to play with. The flowers that decorate the sides are smiling faces and there is one especially attractive decoration—a guardian angel to watch over the soap baby, whose name, incidentally, is "Abigail."

The other attractive child's gift is a package of three little soap babies. The box in which they come is also of wood veneer, and just as cunningly decorated as the cradle.

All round the sides of the box are whimsical scenes that occur in each child's day, from having mother wash her face in the morning to the tucking-in at night. The cover is decorated with three little doll figures and the names of the soap dolls within are Matilda, Martha, and Jane.

These little gifts are quite inexpensive. They serve a double purpose in that while they're good grooming aids they're also the kind of thing that makes for habits of cleanliness.

Opera Sellout List Is Joined by 'La Traviata'

"LA TRAVIATA."

Opera in three acts and four scenes by Giuseppe Verdi to a libretto by Francesco Piave based on the play, "La Dame aux Camelias," by Alexandre Dumas, fils. Presented by the Chicago Opera company in the Civic Opera house, Friday evening, Nov. 14, 1941. The cast:

Violetta Valery.....Helen Jepson
Alfredo Germont.Michael Bartlett [debut]
Giorgio Germont....John Charles Thomas
Flora Bervoix.....Paula Knight [debut]
Baron Douphol...Harry Swanson [debut]
Gaston de Letorieres...Giuseppe Cavadore
Dr. Grenvil.....Richard Wentworth
Annina.....Hazel Sanborn
Marquis D'Obigny.....Edward Stack
The Littlefield Ballet.
Conductor.....Carlo Peroni

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Chicago Opera company last night added one more sell-out to its amazing list, playing Verdi's "La Traviata" before an audience which cannot grow bigger until they move local opera from the Civic Opera house to the Chicago Stadium [which Allah forbid!].

This was the first of the season's popular priced board of education presentations, with top prices off about 40 per cent from the regular top. It looked for an alarming half hour as if the performance, too, was going to be about 40 per cent off, but in the second act singers and musicians began to glow warmly with the beauty of the work with which they were dealing, and from that point on deeply affecting moments came along with a gratifying regularity.

Helen Jepson, as is her wont, began working on her hearers' sensibilities with beautifully contoured and aptly colored phrases. The somber voice coloring she uses in the second act during her colloquy with Germont père, and the subtle way she gives the soaring melody in triple time [in the following scene] its distraught, despairing quality are two examples among many of her ability to freight music with the most profound emotion without breaking its line and making it merely declamatory to do so.

John Charles Thomas has a genius for taking a decadent, lushly beautiful tune like the "Di Provenza il mar" and, by the forthright way in which he sings it and the simple dignity of all his musical devices, entirely remove the curse from it. He received what was probably the most thunderous ovation of an ovation packed evening at the close of the scene in which the "Di Provenza" appears.

Michael Bartlett, the American tenor, who was making on this occasion his Chicago operatic debut, had a little trouble in the first act, but the total impression he made was good. His voice was of rather nice quality, tho not notably resonant and not thoroly reliable. At one time his style would seem very smooth and beautiful and quite in the best Verdi tradition, at another it would grow explosive or over-romantic. He was thoroly at home on the stage.

The Littlefield ballet contributed importantly to the gayety of the third scene, dancing with a lightness and patness and grace that made the ballet seem a neat parenthesis in the action rather than a sudden break. Carlo Peroni conducted with his familiar vigor and, in the suave second scene, with his equally familiar grace and flexibility.

BIDU SAYAO.

Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, New York, arrived in Chicago yesterday to rehearse for her local operatic debut, which will take place at the Civic Opera house this afternoon in the Chicago Opera company's performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville." Her rôle will be that of Rosina, whose love for a certain Count Almaviva [to be sung by Nino Martini, who also will be making his Chicago operatic debut] is the basis of the comedy. Altho Miss Sayao has never sung in opera in Chicago, she is not completely unknown here. She appeared at the Auditorium as soloist with the Woman's Symphony orchestra some years ago.

Ceiling on Hosiery Costs Considered by Price Controler

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—The ladies will be glad to hear that Price Fixer Leon Henderson today announced a drive by his office to keep down the prices of nylon hosiery, declaring there have been "unwarranted price increases" during the last few weeks.

He said he has requested data from the industry on prices and production and this questionnaire will determine whether a price ceiling will be established and probably a price reduction from the current level.

"If it does become necessary to establish a price ceiling it will be well below the current peak prices being charged by a few of the 230 odd manufacturers in the industry," Henderson said.

He added that part of the responsibility for the price boosts rests upon jobbers and retailers offering higher prices or bonuses to get an abundant stock for Christmas trade and these merchants face severe inventory losses if it is necessary to impose a ceiling.

Good Morning!

This is like the little girl with the little curl right in the middle of her forehead. . . . When it's good it's very, very good and when it's bad—why it's pretty bad. "Horrid" wouldn't be quite the word, I think.

What strikes you most forcibly is the crudeness of the script. . . . It's author is either a hermit or a non-observer. Certainly he doesn't know people. He does cook up some of the most impossible situations and spring some of the most unlikely dialog!

It's a shame that Robert Montgomery had to be so wasted after his sensational successes of recent day. If I were he, I would most certainly in the future insist on picking my own stories or—just not play.

He portrays the wastrel, lovable younger brother of a gay man about town who takes advantage of the naiveté of a country girl whom he meets on a train bound for New York and a career. . . . Tommy discovers Nancy busily trying to forget, starts out to help her do so, and in a drunken moment marries her. . . . AND falls head over heels in love with her, to discover that in her heart there remains "unfinished business"—mainly his brother, that conscienceless Steve Duncan. . . .

Ensuing complications are occasionally interesting—that is, when they are believable. . . . So many of them are just too plain dumb to make you bat an eye. So dumb that, often Miss Dunne appears harassed and awkward. Mr. Montgomery, of course, is like oil. He's smooth anywhere.

Able players people the supporting cast—as you can see, and I'm sure the director did the best that could be done with the material at hand.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 14.—A star of not long ago recently decided she'd like to go back into films. Tired of inactivity and all that. So she went to her old agent, for whom she'd made lots of money. He was most enthusiastic about her decision to return to the screen. "Great!" he exulted. "And the first thing we do, we change your name."

On one of the back lots two days ago a hero was to struggle with a bear, so a stunt man was engaged to do the rassling. The stunt man was not any too happy about it. Bears apparently have not been informed that there are no seasons in this palm lined dust bowl, and the stunt man knew it was gettin' along toward hibernatin' time. . . . Bears get cross at this period, and the stunt man voiced his doubts about the whole project.

"Aw, he won't hurt you," said the animal's trainer. "Look!" And he shoved a fist close to the bear's jaws, and nothing happened. . . . An instant later the stunt man did a double-take when he noticed that all the trainer's fingers on that hand were missing down to the last knuckle.

Dale Carnegie, friend-winner and people-influencer, had a lunch date at Warners' the other day with Edward G. Robinson—but Eddie couldn't make it because Jane Wyman had kissed one of his front teeth out. But literally. . . . Jane was supposed to greet Robinson at Grand Central for a scene in "The Night Before Christmas." She flung herself upon him and gave him a hearty buss, and pop went a big corner of an upper front tooth. In some pain, Robinson retired to the dentist's. It didn't hurt Miss Wyman a bit!

A new young hopeful in Columbia's "Martin Eden" is Ian MacDonald, husky, good natured, not too good looking chap who's playing the rôle of a tough sea captain, Butch Ragan. Producer B. P. Schulberg found MacDonald playing a bit in a Columbia western, gave him this sizable part and, on the basis of the first three days' rushes, is urging the studio to put the lad under contract.

"He isn't," says Schulberg, "handsome, but the girls around the lot have been asking who he is, and that's a good sign. . . . Metro had a young fellow once, and the first indication that they had something was when girls in the commissary looked at him and wondered who he was. Fellow named Gable."

MacDonald is from Helena, Mont., and his father's a minister. MacDonald is his mother's maiden name. He has been trying to crack Hollywood off and on for four years, acting most of the time at the Pasadena playhouse. Whenever he got broke he'd get himself another grubstake by going back to Montana and being rear end man on an oil sprinkling truck for the state highway commission. "Martin Eden" is his first big film chance.

In Warners' screen biography of George M. Cohan Richard Whorf will play the late Sam H. Harris in his youth, and Rosemary De Camp, Martha Scott's protégée, will be George M.'s mother, Nellie. . . . Warden Lewis E. Lawes checks in tomorrow or Monday as adviser on the Warner filming of his book, "My Life in Sing Sing." . . . Twentieth-Fox has paid $45,000 for screen rights to Mary O'Hara's novel about a boy and a colt, "My Friend Flicka." It'll be Roddy McDowall's first starring picture. . . . Same studio has signed Carmen Miranda to a seven year deal calling for two or three pictures a year. . . . Ida Lupino, due for a test with Jean Gabin in "Moon Tide," failed to show for the appointment. Test director finally called her home, queried a servant. The servant found Ida unconscious in a bathroom. She'd knocked herself out with fumes from a hair cleaner. She was brought to and made the test later in the day.

Exhibitors always yelp about bad business and bad pictures. Sam Goldwyn's favorite exhibitor story is about the Chicago chap who was showing one of the great hits of the era, Doug Fairbanks' "Robin Hood." Doug himself phoned the exhib one day to ask how things were going. "Every seat is taken, they're standing in the aisles and there's a line around the block," came the reply. "If this keeps up I'll break even."

Sitting quietly on the "Martin Eden" stage every day is Esther Power, assistant director of the experimental theater at Vassar. She's on a sabbatical and is putting in her time in Hollywood, hoping to formulate a course in movie making for the college. . . . Republic is planning a departure for Gene Autry—a mystery yarn. With a western background, of course. . . . Same studio's technical expert on the south has forced cutting of a scene in Joan Blondell's "Lady for a Night." John Wayne is bleary eyed, and Joan says it looks like a hangover. Expert says it couldn't have happened in the south of the '80s, and that hangover came into use around 1910. . . . It's a fifth grandchild for C. B. De Mille.

Stenographic report made by a spy in the cutting room where Josef von Sternberg was working on "Shanghai Gesture." Sternberg speaking on a phone: "Men's shop? The other day I ordered two bathrobes. . . . O, you know about it. . . . Did you decide I should have buttons? . . . Those you sent both had buttons. . . . I like buttons on other people, but not for myself. I don't want buttons. Can you get me one without buttons? . . . Two and a half years ago I had one from your shop, but I took it to France and left it there. . . . Yes, I'll wait. . . . Send it to my office. A buttonless bathrobe. What? O, no, I'll probably keep these. Maybe I'll decide I want buttons and then have this much trouble getting buttons. . . . Now I want a buttonless one. . . . Yes, three altogether. My dear fellow, do you know that you are holding up what may be the best picture of the year, or the worst? . . . Two button ones I have now. I want one without buttons. . . . Yes."

FIRST RECIPE WINNERS.

First winners in Mary Meade's cooking contest conducted by The Tribune will be announced in editions starting next Monday. The Tribune's home economics editor is offering daily prizes of $5 for the best recipes submitted. Complicated or fancy recipes aren't necessary, Mary Meade states. The simplest recipe may win the prize. Housewives who have collected the recipes that they find most popular with their families are urged to submit them so that other women can diversify their menus.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There seems to be some confusion in the minds of many housewives regarding the different types of yeast and the sizes of the packages. Several women have telephoned us recently to ask how much of a large, household size package of yeast to use in making rolls.

Since most modern recipes call for two cakes of yeast instead of one [for the sake of speeding up fermentation], manufacturers have been packaging compressed yeast in double size for the convenience of the housewife. She may use half of one of the large packages, or all of it, in a batch of yeast dough. There's no need to worry about using too much, for the larger amount simply hastens the action of leavening, and won't affect the flavor of the bread. Inferior flavor more often is the result of using too little yeast, with its consequent slow fermentation.

Yeast these days comes in three types instead of the former two. The newcomer is a combination which combines the good qualities of dry yeast and the compressed.

1. Dry yeast contains yeast plants in a dormant state, mixed with cornstarch. The dry yeast keeps for a long time, but must be soaked in warm water before using, and requires much longer for fermentation than do the other types.

2. Compressed yeast is made from active yeast plants and starts action as soon as it is mixed into the dough. Compressed yeast must be bought fresh, as it loses potency rapidly.

3. Granular yeast comes in little packages instead of cakes. It starts action immediately, and has the advantage of keeping well.

"Better Homemade Breads and Rolls" is the name of our booklet on breadmaking and its problems. It's available for 23 cents, by mail. There are recipes for all kinds of yeast and baking powder breads, rolls, coffee cakes, and muffins, along with a discussion of methods and reasons for difficulties which may be encountered.

"Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes" is another booklet which should interest homemakers at this time of year. It's only 5 cents, by mail, and contains many good recipes, all of them thoroly tested and popular with our staff and with readers.

Nov. 15, 1941.

Universal Day — Keep stepping. Take in a new play or movie.

The Cycle of Numbers—After the unexpected which five brings into the cycle, we have six, and you can see why we use the term adjustment with that number. When you get all set with a four, and along comes a surprise element with the five, you have some adjusting to do in a six year to get back into a harmonious pattern again. You don't try to fit your life back into the four square, but you now make a new pattern which includes consideration for the other elements. This means adjusting to a group which is outside that small square you had. You learn to work with and for the group, and so you learn service and to be less selfish in your plans. The love you learned in a three year was friendship, while the love of the six is domestic, maternal, paternal, neighborly, and the charitable love toward those dependent on you.

Would you like to know your own personal numbers for each day of the coming year? Follow directions on the coupon below and send for complete calendar with daily, monthly, and yearly guide for 1942. Send 5 cents extra if you want balance of 1941.

Front Views and Profiles

Museum Movies.

Information as to the whereabouts of some of the great artists, musicians, writers, and sculptors who flourished in France before the German invasion was given in this space the other day. The information was that learned by Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who, at a recent private club program, showed her own informal motion pictures of these famous men and women, and told what she had been able to find out about them since the German invasion. The movies, now of historic interest and museum importance with the breaking up of the great cultural life of France since the war, offer glimpses of the homes and studios of the artists, many of which have since been rifled by the Germans or bombed. Pictures of Braque, Derain, Segonzac, Pruna, and Despiau were among those shown the other day and their whereabouts given. Other artists that appear in Mrs. Goodspeed's pictures, and what news she was able to ascertain about them as told in her talk:

Picasso. He is living quietly in Paris, and has gone back to his sculpture, since it is difficult to get paints in France now.

"Having been connected with the Loyalist government of Spain, which made him curator of the Prado, he is not popular with the Nazis," said Mrs. Goodspeed.

"They went to his studio and looked around and decided that he could continue working. . . . for they seem to know his value in the market, tho they don't like his art. They have taken his personal collection of paintings away from him. But, angry as he is, he says, 'Let them shoot me. I'll never leave Paris.'"

Matisse. He now is living at his home on the Riviera, still gravely ill after a serious operation.

Paul Valery, greatest of modern French poets. He stayed on in Paris and continued his classes at the College de France last summer. Exhausted, he asked permission to go to the south of France for a rest and is there now.

Jacques Maritain. The movies were taken at his home outside Paris. He is now living in New York, writing and lecturing on Thomism. With him in the pictures is Lourie, the Russian composer, who is also in this country.

Serge Lifar. The movies show Lifar on a Paris terrace doing a bit from his La Vie de Polichinelle. When the Germans entered Paris, Goering sent for Lifar, told him he was the greatest dancer in the world. He now is head of the Paris opera.

Gertrude Stein, in her garden near Aix les Bains, with Alice B. Toklas and the two dogs, with a view behind of the Rhone valley.

"A recent letter from her says the French are washing their clothes in ashes for lack of soap, and she asks for soap and wool for the children. I suppose they are still digging in the garden, but now it is potatoes instead of roses."

Marcel Duchamp. He has given up painting and is developing his art along other lines, with mechanical objects for subjects. He is expecting to get away from France for the United States soon.

Zadkine, with his statue of Minerva in the background. He now is in New York, where an exhibition of his gouaches and small terracottas is now being shown.

Colette, with Roussy Mdvani Sert, who since has died, photographed in the apartment of Misia Sert, who is one of the few still living in her same house in Paris.

Mary Garden, posing as Louise from the terrace on top of the Hotel George V, looking over Sacre Coeur. She recently wrote Mrs. Goodspeed from Aberdeen, Scotland, where she is taking care of her octogenarian mother. The British are her people and she will not leave until the war is over, she said.

Vuillard, in his studio, one of his paintings on the easel behind him. He has died since Mrs. Goodspeed took the pictures of him and they probably are the only ones in existence.

Marcoussis, the French etcher and husband of the painter, Halika. He recently died.

Marie Laurencin. She is said to be still in Paris and refuses to leave, managing to live somehow.

Colette, the favorite French romantic novelist. She now lives at Lyon and writes articles for the papers and magazines. She cannot go back to Paris because her husband is a Jew and cannot get into occupied territory.

The Sarcastic Teacher Is Not Sporting One

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The subject which I listened in to the other day was sarcasm. And how intensely those boys and girls felt about it!

"I wonder if teachers know how they make a boy or girl feel when they use cutting sarcasm before a class. They make you feel so small that sometimes you want to crawl into a hole. That's one reason why I'm glad I'm thru high school," said one young girl.

"It didn't make me feel that way," said another girl. "It used to make me just fighting mad. Jimmy [her brother] said he'd like to take a sock at some of 'em, and that's just about the way I felt."

"What I don't understand," said one of the boys, "is what they think they get out of it. What do they think they gain by trying to rob you of your self-esteem? Practically every teacher I had in high school turned on the old sarcasm. And you couldn't do anything. It sure isn't sporting, but there was one teacher who was different. She treated us as if we were persons worthy of respect and courtesy. Even a small gang that was always in bad with the other teachers got along all right with her. She made you feel like somebody. Everybody liked her and a lot of the students are her friends to this day."

Sarcasm is a destructive approach by parents or teachers in dealing with children. Young people in their teens are trying, usually with difficulty, to find their way. They are not sure of themselves, and the last thing in the world we should do is to detract from their confidence and self-esteem.

Has your small child the "NO!" habit? What can you do about it? What can be done about meal-time tantrums? The answers to these and many other problems of child training are given in the new book, 'You and Your Young Child,' by Gladys Huntington Bevans, Tribune child training editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street, and at Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan avenue. Price, 15 cents. Postpaid, 18 cents.

DORIS BLAKE'S LETTER BOX

Have you a perplexing problem on which you need friendly counsel? Write to Doris Blake in care of the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Time to Squelch Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: A fellow who works in the same office with me continuously asks me for dates. I know he has been married only a short time. How does one discourage a person of this sort? M. B."

"Out with it," M. B. Tell him you will not date a married man. If that doesn't discourage him, be so cool and indifferent that he won't dare to say more than hello.

Perhaps He's Shy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a boy very much, but I don't know whether he likes me. When I talk to him he is always very cool and does not say much. His friends tell me he likes me a lot. What shall I do?

"CONNIE."

If you feel shyness may be his "curse," encourage him by including him in a small party you are having in your home.

An Age Chasm.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 16 and I am going out with a young man of 25. Do you think he is too old for me? Also, do you think I should allow him to kiss me? WONDERING."

He is much too old for you, and you should not let him kiss you. Seek the friendship of boys your own age.

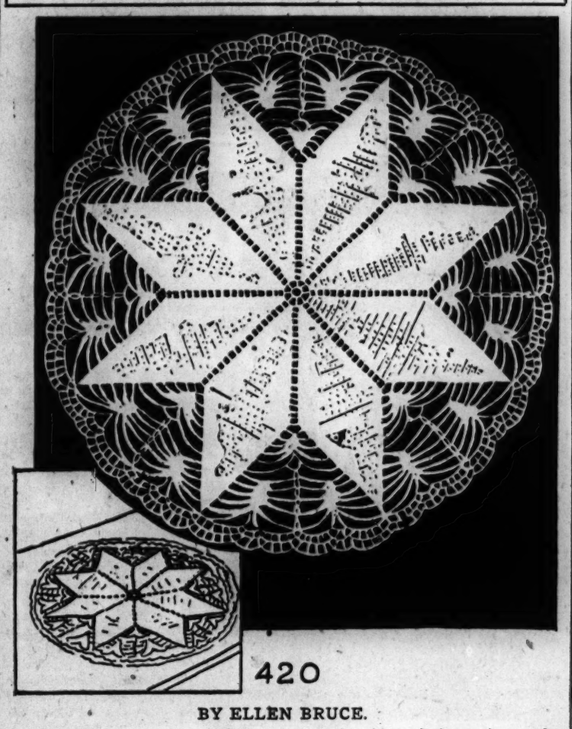
Star Centerpiece Doily



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted centerpiece doilies are effective bits of decoration under lamps, fruit dishes, or for the center of dining tables. This doily measures approximately 14 inches in diameter when completed and possesses graceful edging which adds to the attractiveness of the center star design. One hank of ecru mercerized crochet cotton will complete one doily.

For instructions in crocheting the star centerpiece, No. 420, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

LAST SATURDAY'S QUESTION.

Question 25: East-West vulnerable, the bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
1 diamond	1 heart	1 no trump	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

You are West, declarer at three no trump. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

WEST [declarer]	EAST [dummy]
♠A 7 5	♠K 4
♥A J 10	♥5 4 2
♦9 6 3	♦K Q J 10
♣J 9 8 2	♣A Q 10 7

North opens the heart seven; South plays the queen. What are your plays to the first and second tricks?

Answer: You must win first trick and immediately lead a club, preferably the nine or eight, for a finesse against the king. You cannot afford to pass the first trick, because a spade shift would easily defeat the contract. Nor, having won the first trick, can you afford to clear the diamond suit before knocking out the club king. For full explanation and reasons, see "Today's Hand." [No demerit for improper play, but for correct play take 15 points credit.]

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 33: You are West, declarer at a three no trump contract. The opponents made no bids. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

WEST [declarer]	EAST [dummy]
♠K J 10	♠9 6 4 3
♥K Q 4	♥A 7 6
♦K 6 3	♦A 7 2
♣A K 5 2	♣6 4 3

North opens a low heart. What are your plays to the first two tricks?

TODAY'S HAND.

East, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

♥7 3
♦A 8 5 2
♣6 4 3

WEST
♠A 7 5
♥A J 10
♦9 6 3
♣J 9 8 2

EAST
♠K 4
♥5 4 2
♦K Q J 10
♣A Q 10 7

SOUTH
♠Q J 9 2
♥K Q 9 8 6
♦7 4
♣K 5

This deal formed the basis of question 25, above.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 diamond	1 heart	1 no trump	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

North opens the heart seven, South plays the queen. Declarer [West] must win, otherwise South will shift to spades and certainly defeat the contract [with two spade tricks, one heart, one diamond, and one club.]

Having won the first trick, declarer must clear club suit before knocking out diamond ace, for this reason:

If South has club king, and North the diamond ace, an immediate diamond lead by declarer is fatal. North wins and leads another heart; South wins and drives out declarer's remaining heart stopper. Now declarer cannot run nine tricks without clearing club suit; when South wins with club king, he cashes two long hearts.

But if declarer immediately knocks out club king, South's hand becomes harmless. [The best method of finessing clubs is to lead the nine or eight, in order to retain the lead three times, if necessary, in the West hand.]

If South had both diamond ace and club king, the contract would be hopeless. If North had club king, any line of play would succeed.

The point is to guard against the only position of cards the declarer can control.

Stretch Your Way Up When Alarm Rings

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Do you hate to get up, hate to get up, hate to get up in the morning? But get up you must, and there must be some way of making it a less painful operation.

There is. And, to repeat the old bromide, there's a grand way of killing two birds from one sling, the sling being a good old stretching workout before the toes touch the floor. For a quick method of assembling your energies for the morning tub, breakfast, and rush for the train, here's the trick.

Turn off the hated alarm bell, open your eyes wide, take a long and very deep breath, stretch your arms high, your legs long, and yawn a great big noisy yawn. Settle back to get ready for another deep breath, stretch, yawn. Do this five times. Settle back a minute. Then take a couple of normal, natural, easy breaths, put your hands on your shoulders, raise your chest, take a deep breath, push the head and elbows back, twist the body to the right, stretch the left arm up and stretch the right arm out. Give a good twist, writhe and wriggle, and let go that gold old yawn.

That is the way to rise to a day of fitness, suggested by Dr. C. Ward Crampton, major, medical reserve corps, United States army.

And can't you see what that stretching will do for your waistline, your hipline, and the yawn for your chin and throat line?

Student Is Selected as Most Paintable Girl for Art Week

Bonnie May Ness, 4424 North Wolcott avenue, was selected as Chicago's most paintable girl yesterday in a contest at the Art institute. As queen of National Art week, Nov. 17 to 23, Miss Ness will preside at the opening day ceremonies in Chicago. In addition, Constantine Pougialis, Chicago artist, will paint her portrait, which will be donated to a service men's center. Miss Ness is an Art institute student and a model in her spare time. Thelma Whalen, a professional model, 5510 Cornell avenue, was second in the contest, and Mary Mayoh, a salesgirl of 1628 Humboldt boulevard, third. All three will visit the sales of works of art during Art week.

Luncheon Parties Precede This Afternoon's Opera.

Upham, Mrs. Wentworth G. Field, Mrs. Frederick Babson, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Mrs. James C. Ames, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, the Johnston Bowmans, Robert Allerton, Mrs. Conrad Poppenhusen, the Thomas W. Hines, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Mrs. Clyde M. Carr are a few of the many who have matinée tickets.

Miss Louisa Hoe, a concert singer and opera star, will be the especial guest at breakfast at the Tavern club tomorrow. Miss Hoe, who sang at the Tavern on a Rudolph Ganz program last winter, will give a song recital in the club's lounge after breakfast tomorrow.

Smith College Club to Fete Author Mary Ellen Chase.

The Chicago Smith College club is planning a breakfast tomorrow morning in the Tower room of the Drake hotel to welcome Miss Mary Ellen Chase, author, lecturer, and professor of English at Smith college, to Chicago. Mrs. Herbert H. Riddle, new president of the club, will preside at the opening breakfast at 12 o'clock. Other new officers who will serve with Mrs. Riddle as a reception committee are Mrs. Clarence Englund and Mrs. Arthur R. Hoch, vice presidents; Mrs. Otho S. Sprague, secretary; Mrs. Hilger P. Jenkins, treasurer, and Mrs. Otto S. Schmidt and Mrs. Ward Castle, directors.

Also on the club's calendar is a benefit performance on Nov. 25 of "Hay Fever." Proceeds from the play, to be given in the Goodman theater by the theater troupe, will go to the club's scholarship fund.

Tomorrow at 4 o'clock there is to be a special preview of the Lincoln Dioramas at the Chicago Historical society. At 4:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy will entertain members of the society at tea in the senate chamber. Among these whom Mrs. Cudahy has asked to pour are Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, and Mrs. William R. Odell.

Insist on Beau Calling at Home Before a "Date"

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"My boy friend and I broke off. As my girl friend says, he gave me the brushoff. But the truth is, we broke off because I became sick and tired of meeting him half way. He never would come to my house to get me, which he could have done without a taxi or street car. I had to meet him at a certain corner. So, finally, I just got wise to myself when he left me one evening late at that meeting place corner ten blocks from my home. Do you think girls should meet fellows half way, or be more exacting? WONDERING."

From your own experience, Wondering, you ought to have learned the wisdom, or lack thereof, of meeting young men half way. You got what usually happens to a girl who puts herself out to make things easy for men. And it isn't all the young man's fault. There is a basic masculine reaction, pyschologically, to account for the reward the girl gets. Styles change, architectural lines change, modes of living change, but man is an immovable object in the face of progress.

In your case, Wondering, this means you rob the man of the zest of the chase when you let him know you'll be there any time, any place, he dictates. We don't like, any more than you, his letting you find your way home alone late at night, but that explains what we're trying to tell you. You're not the treasured darling you'd be if you had to be called for and delivered safely inside your door. You're not as precious a possession, we might say, since you're a dead certainty. You're just too eager to please.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 14.—Two years ago tomorrow Minnesota's invasion of Iowa City was repelled by the touchdown passes of Nile Kinnick and the Gophers were beaten after establishing a 9 to 0 lead. Since then Minnesota has won 15 consecutive games and returns tomorrow to complete a two-year cycle that includes the 1940 conference title and now bids fair to add another.

Forty-two thousand fans, 7,000 of them from Minneapolis, will see the rivals in the 35th game of the series that was started in 1891. This Dad's day throng, easily the largest home crowd of the Iowa season, may see the major upset of the Western conference. The Gophers are almost prohibitive favorites, such is the rabid enthusiasm of the visitors' followers, but neither the Hawkeyes nor their coaches concede anything.

Fast Field in Prospect.

Coach Eddie Anderson's optimism probably is based on the pleasureable anticipation of having his speedy runners, Bill Green and Bernie Mertes, perform on a fast gridiron. In four of Iowa's six games this year, rain and a slippery field have handicapped the Hawkeyes. Fair weather is promised tomorrow.

Iowa may be overpowered since the Minnesota line will outweigh the Iowa forwards 17 pounds a man. Certainly no team packs a greater wallop than Minnesota for Full Back Bill Daley, operating behind the biggest line in the conference, leads the conference in average gain.

Gophers Past Peak?

Some aver they see indications of a Minnesota breakdown in the one point victory the Gophers scored over Northwestern and last Saturday's dull conquest of Nebraska, a team now beaten four times. Nebraska clamped down on Gopher power by using, six, seven, eight, and even nine men in the front line.

The Iowa squad is in its best physical condition since September. The key to the Hawk running attack is Bill Green, who caught Kinnick's winning pass against Minnesota two years ago. Tom Farmer is just enough of a runner to make his passes stand up. Bill Parker's pass catching ability is another asset. When needed, Jim Youel, an alternate for Farmer, can be relied upon to kick the Hawks out of danger, or perhaps kick them into position to score.

Smith, Frickey Ready.

Coach Anderson and his assistants anticipate that Minnesota will make extensive use of its star backs, Bruce Smith and Herman Frickey, who were injured three weeks ago at Michigan. Without Smith's forward passing, Minnesota settles to a routine line attack.

Twelve special trains will bring many of the Minnesota thousands and the university's 120 piece band to the stadium tomorrow at noon. Special trains also will be run from Des Moines and Davenport. The Minnesota players will make the two hour trip from their overnight camp in Des Moines by rail and will arrive at noon. Kickoff is scheduled for 1:30 o'clock.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Just between you and me [and if you can get Lana Turner in on it so much the better] what chance has a top ranking football team to go thru its season undefeated and untied? . . . The question came up at an informal session of the High street quarter backs of Columbus, probably the best group of second guessers to be found in the United States. . . . The answer was both pro and con, yes and no, and what's the national debt now, neighbor? . . . To begin with, it doesn't follow that because a team is able to survive its schedule undefeated that it is the best in the land. . . . More than likely, it is tops in its own back yard at most. . . . The frontiers of intercollegiate football are so far flung these days that only an unusual array of circumstances can establish any team as national champion, newspaper polls and such notwithstanding. . . . No one team ever meets all the other headline teams, due not only to schedule difficulties, but to the surprises that each new season unfolds. . . . Without much warning a lowly rated team in October may develop so amazingly that it is in the king row in November. . . . Two weeks ago, for instance, would you have bet your copper mines against my polo ponies that Pittsburgh, overwhelmed by Michigan and Minnesota and beaten by Purdue and Ohio State, would drop Fordham from the undefeated ranks? . . .

According to the Associated Press compilations, there were 18 undefeated teams as this piece was written. . . . Among them are such well known strangers as Midland, St. Cloud Teachers, Mississippi Southern, Pacific Lutheran, and Thiel. . . . The only schools in the all victorious class whose teams are known thruout the land are Minnesota, Duke, Texas A. & M., and Duquesne. . . . From which you may gather that the chances of a major eleven bowling over every opponent in its path these days are none too bright. . . . So any team that goes thru its schedule unbeaten merits a few cheers. . . . There was a time when some of the so-called big elevens arranged schedules that were more or less fool proof. . . . That is accomplished in the same fashion that certain prize fight managers establish reputations for their gladiators by sending them against setups. . . . That practice has been eliminated in football. . . . There is little nourishment, financial or otherwise, in a sucker diet. . . .

One thing the fading season has proved beyond question—the best college football is played in the middle west. . . . Show us a combination of teams from any other section that compares with Minnesota, Notre Dame, Michigan, Northwestern, and Ohio State. . . . And don't forget about Missouri, either.

Columbus, O., Nov. 14.—Keep this under your hats, boys, and don't breathe a word about it to a soul, but the University of Illinois football team is planning to contribute one of the season's major upsets in Memorial stadium tomorrow.

Bob Zuppke, who led a band of 37 Illini into Columbus this afternoon, didn't explain exactly how he expects to go about whipping an Ohio State team that has met only one defeat this fall, but there were murmurs of a secret weapon he has saved for this occasion. It seems he had planned to use it against Notre Dame, Minnesota, Michigan and Iowa, but somehow word leaked out in advance and spoiled everything.

Can It Be a Forward Pass?

Columbus fans, who are just coming out of the dizzy spells resulting from last week's 46 to 34 victory over Wisconsin, fear Zuppke has observed definite weaknesses in Ohio State's anti-aircraft equipment. The Badgers threw 28 passes and completed 15 for a total gain of one hundred and ninety-eight yards.

There are several question marks about this year's Illinois team, but none has stirred more wonder than the lack of its usually devastating aerial game. Last season the Illini topped the Big Nine in forward passing. Their quarter back, Dick Good, was the leading individual aerialist in the conference with a record of 31 completions in 57 attempts.

Good Isn't So Good.

Good hasn't been hitting his targets with old time accuracy this fall, but Coach Paul Brown of the Buckeyes warned his players today that Good may come back tomorrow. It is significant that Zuppke has named him for the starting assignment at quarter back, the spot usually occupied by Lavere Astroth at the opening kick-off.

There will be five sophomores in the Illinois battlefront tomorrow. Walter Correll will start in Myron Pfeifer's place at full back and Isaiah Owens, colored end, will replace James McCarthy at the right flank. Don Griffin at left half, Bob Wilson at left guard and Alex Agase at right tackle are the other sophomore starters.

Expect Quite an Audience.

This will be homecoming game for the Buckeyes and L. W. St. John, Ohio State's athletic director, predicts a crowd of more than 45,000. There isn't anything novel about homecomings. They all have their glamor queens and reunion gatherings dripping with nostalgia. But this is an exception to the rule, for the 1941 homecoming is the day the class of 1916 celebrates its silver jubilee. It marks the 25th anniversary of Ohio State's first Western conference football championship and its first All-American athlete, the immortal Chic Harley, who will be toasted in absentia.

It's too bad Harley's health will not permit his presence tomorrow, because few athletes have left such an indelible impression upon their alma maters as Harley has at Ohio State.

Irish Prepare to March on Wildcat Stronghold

This scene might lead Notre Dame fans to believe that Coach Frank Leahy will be forced to start his second or third team against Northwestern in Dyche stadium this afternoon. The injuries being treated in the Notre Dame team room by Trainer Scrapiron Young (second from left), however, are minor ones and all the boys will be ready. They are (left to right): Capt. Paul Lillis, tackle; Ray Ebli, also a tackle, and Bob Dove, end. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Angelo Bertelli, sophomore forward passing expert for the Irish, gazes fearfully at the sky for signs of rain. His fears were unfounded, as the weather man has promised a fair day for the game.

LESNEVICH BEATS MAURIELLO AND RETAINS CROWN

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Gus Lesnevich retained his world light heavyweight championship in Madison Square Garden tonight by giving Young Tami Mauriello an artistic beating in 15 rounds. Lesnevich weighed 173¾ pounds, Mauriello 173½.

Turning in his second decision in three months over the lad from the Bronx, the rugged Russian from Cliffside, N. J., had Tami wabbly three times during the fight, piling up a big early margin, and was the decisive victor, despite an amazing comeback by Mauriello.

It was Lesnevich's first defense of the 175 pound crown since he became undisputed king of the division three months ago—and it may be his last. He had trouble getting down under the light heavyweight limit for this one and has his eye on the big boys now.

Referee Arthur Donovan and both judges voted for the champion and the Associated Press score card gave him eight rounds, with five for Mauriello and two even.

A surprisingly good turnout of 12,213 contributed to a gross gate of $28,268.

Wisconsin Hopes to (1) Do More Scoring; (2) Display a Defense

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 14.—The Badgers who have soared to fame this fall by piling up points and then giving them all back to their opponents with some extras thrown in, are going, they hope, to unleash a new technique tomorrow when they get together with another foe of long standing—Purdue's Boilermakers.

Hoping to prove that the giving away of 167 points in six battles has exhausted their generosity, the wearers of the Cardinal jerseys expect to turn loose some fresh but highly polished defensive tricks on which they have been laboring since being nosed out, 46 to 34, in last Saturday's track meet at Ohio State. Some new faces make up part of the revised strategy but 25,000 spectators will not be surprised if Coach Harry Stuhldreher embellishes the defense with butterfly nets to aid in the interception of passes and flit guns with which to purge hostile legmen.

Confidence—Plus and Minus.

The futility of his boys as defenders has Stuhldreher, an old hand at the football art, completely baffled and in view of those 167 enemy points his confusion is easily explained. The problem is additionally complicated by the fact that the Badgers have scored 125 points on their own account, but even with all this have beaten only Iowa and Indiana.

"All I can figure," declared the Badger boss today, "is that it is a combination of confidence and lack of confidence.

"They know they can score so go ahead and do it with abandon. Their defense took a wallop from both Marquette and Northwestern, and it created an overcautious mental state. They just haven't been able to loosen up when the other fellows have the ball. We've spent the week trying to correct this fault and maybe it will bring results. You'd think that a team polished on offense would find defense easy, the latter being far simpler to grasp than the former."

Lineup Juggled.

One of the lineup alterations will be at center where things haven't been going so well on defense for Dick Thornally. If Wisconsin kicks off Len Calligaro, a reserve full back, will be in the spot. Otherwise Thornally will be present. Robert Hanzlik will be at left end, another change calculated to improve the possibilities of stymieing the other guys. Dick Loepfe also has been granted a vacation, his starting rôle at left tackle having been awarded to Bob Baumann who in addition will take over the punting chores.

Whether all the consternation over a defense for the Boilermakers is warranted is a question. The Purdue boys haven't gone in heavily for scoring this fall. They have accumulated only 27 points, 14 of them while losing to Ohio State, 7 while beating Iowa, and 6 while compiling a victory over Pitt. But Purdue's six enemies have counted only 42 points in a half dozen battles, indicating that the Badgers' scoring knack many undergo its most severe test since the Marquette opener in which they were held to one touchdown.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Northwestern and Notre Dame players and coaches and 48,000 lucky holders of tickets for this afternoon's Wildcat-Irish football game in Dyche stadium last night rejoiced at the prospect of ideal weather conditions for the contest. Earlier forecasts yesterday and Thursday had promised another rainy Saturday of the kind that frequently has beset both Wildcats and Irish in their football endeavors this season. To produce the anticipated thrills, both Northwestern and Notre Dame need firm turf and dry air.

The weather man, in his revised prophecy, said there would be some light sprinkles around daybreak this morning, but that otherwise the day would be from cloudy to fair. The sprinkles won't hurt, for the playing field has been covered snugly since Monday.

Mud Might Spoil the Show.

There was some hope for a good day, even before the meteorologist wrote his new menu. The sun broke out yesterday when it wasn't scheduled to do so and Dorsey, the Tribune bootblack, reported there wasn't a chance of rain because his corns didn't hurt. Dorsey says in 20 years he hasn't failed to have misery in his feet the day before a rain.

Concern over the weather wasn't prompted altogether by thoughts of personal comfort, altho that's an item of course. Both the Wildcats and the Irish are relying upon passes and frisky running. Neither functions well in the mud. The Irish have proved this more emphatically than the Wildcats. The Notre Dame boys were able to beat Carnegie Tech only 16 to 0 in the mud and they were mired to a scoreless tie in their engagement with Army. The Wildcats showed themselves fair mudders by beating Kansas State, 51 to 3, in the rain and last Saturday they contended with the elements sufficiently well to eke out a 20 to 14 victory over Indiana.

It May Be DeCorrevont.

Most of the fans who will form the capacity crowd in Dyche stadium probably are looking forward to a great passing duel between sparkling sophomores. Their names are Otto Graham of Northwestern and Angelo Bertelli of Notre Dame in case you just got in from Iceland and haven't been reading the sports pages. Naturally, both of the star passers want a dry day. It is difficult, of course, to handle a wet ball accurately and, beyond that, a passing expert needs firm footing and so do his receivers.

Coach Lynn Waldorf of the Wildcats has said he may not go thru with his plan to start Graham if forecasts go awry and it's raining at game time. In the event Graham doesn't start it will be Bill DeCorrevont. If it isn't actually raining Graham will get the call.

With all the ballyhoo, honest ballyhoo, about the possibility of passing pyrotechnics, Don Clawson, 220 pound Wildcat full back, now sans some 20 pounds of excess meat he had at he start of the campaign, is sure to be called upon to lead a lot of traffic.

Irish Hold Big Edge.

The great interest apparently is based on the possibilities of the game itself. True, the Irish have not been defeated, but they have been tied. And the Wildcats have been edged out twice in their own league, 14 to 7, at the hands of Michigan, and 8 to 7 by the mighty Gophers. Nor is it to be a battle to establish an edge in the series which had its start 52 years ago. Of the 20 games in the series, Notre Dame has won 15 and Northwestern 3. Two were tied. Currently this ratio is made less painless for the Wildcats thru the recollection that Northwestern won, 20 to 0, last season. The other Northwestern victories were 14 to 7, in 1935, and 2 to 0, in 1901.

We don't want to seem to be nagging, but again we remind you that the game starts at 1:30 o'clock. Last Saturday a lot of folks sauntered in late, in the belief the 2 o'clock starting time still was in effect.

All the usual efforts to handle a

REDSKINS COME TO TOWN TODAY ON A BEAR HUNT

Get Chance Tomorrow to Avenge 73-0 Beating.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Chicago today will be visited by a band of redskins whose ferocity, at least in intent, will match that of those old time redskins who participated in the Fort Dearborn massacre. These modern Redskins, who use footballs instead of tomahawks, hope to commit mass football murder against a colony of Bears who have been tearing up the Wrigley field turf these last few Sundays.

It isn't what these Bears have been doing in their own back yard which has the Redskins infuriated. They have come all the way from Washington to repay in kind the 73 to 0 lashing they suffered last year when the Bears were on a sightseeing trip to Washington.

Well, to get down to cases, the Redskins, as you probably gathered despite all the historical lace, are football players. And ditto the Bears. The Redskins, who are making their only 1941 appearance west of Pittsburgh, will arrive this morning. They will work out on Wrigley field at 11 o'clock, after the Bears have gone thru their final exercises.

Expect 35,000 at Game.

The Redskins will have a large audience for their revenge act. Indications were last night that barring unforeseen bad weather, 35,000 will sit in. As when they last met, a championship, tho in the distance? is the prize. A defeat for either the Bears or Redskins will mean virtual elimination from the National Football league race.

Jim Conzelman dismissed his Cardinals after a short workout yesterday, tho it was the best day of the week for practicing purposes.

"They had a lot of pep and I wanted them to conserve it for Green Bay Sunday," he explained. The players think they have a good chance of knocking over the Packers. Conzelman revealed that Johnny Clement was off in the corner of the field working on some new stuff to try against Green Bay. "I just hope it works," said Conzelman. "Looked to me like he was faking shovel passes, then throwing forwards."

Johnny never lets any one know what he's going to do in a game, including his teammates. Dick Evans, end, and Frank Balazs, full back, will start for the Cardinals against their former teammates.

Packers Hold Workout.

Up in Green Bay, was the telephonic report of Coach Curley Lambeau, the Packers enjoyed their first day of practice under good weather conditions. The gridiron, which had been frozen by cold and raw winds, thawed a bit. Curley wasn't cheered, tho, by reports for rain and colder weather today. He reported the advance sale is better than for any game this year except the one with the Bears. Tony Canadeo, his sensational half back from Gonzaga, injured in the Detroit game on Oct. 26, will be able to play.

Flip a Coin, if Any, and Beat Football Pool

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 14 (AP).—At last it can be told. This business of picking Saturday football winners is just as simple as flipping a coin.

In the interest of pure science—and because they hadn't won a gridiron pool all season anyway — four anonymous experimenters locked themselves in a bare room with nothing but a coin, two football cards, and a half dozen cheese sandwiches. The sandwiches were an afterthought.

This Is the Experts' Way.

First the experts picked a card by scientific projection of infinite possibilities. [You and I would call it guesswork.] They weighed such mighty factors as potential power, probable penalties, and whether pigs have wings. They gave points and took points, wound up with a "sure thing" card, with such selections as Fordham over Pittsburgh, with Pitt granted 20 points; Texas [minus 27] over Baylor, Army over Harvard, and Navy over Notre Dame.

As a last minute gamble, they projected their projections to the point of predicting an upset of Tulane by Alabama. This was fortunate, because of the entire 10 game card that was the only winner.

This Is the Recommended Way.

Then they took the other card and gravely flipped a penny. The coin asked no favors and received none. Right down the card it went, picking Holy Cross over Brown, Washington over California, Michigan State [plus six] over Purdue, Iowa [less six points] over Illinois, Marquette [plus six] over Detroit, and Mississippi State [less six] over Auburn.

Everything would have been just dandy if the experiment had stopped right there. The card, if played, would have yielded 20 for 1. But four more picks would make the odds 100 to 1, and besides there were some sandwiches left. The coin took Princeton [plus seven] over Dartmouth—and there went the parlay.

The next toss was Columbia [plus seven] over Penn, a winner, but the last two were bobbles when the spin came up South Carolina [less seven] over Kansas, and Arkansas [plus seven] over Rice.

Tulsa Awarded Women's Amateur Golf for 1942

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Southern Hills Country club, Tulsa, Okla., today was awarded the 1942 women's national amateur championship by the executive committee of the United States Golf association. At the same time the committee announced that in the 1942 meet only 32 players would qualify for the championship flight, in contrast with the 64 of previous years.

A Wildcat's Life Isn't All Touchdowns

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Don Clawson, Northwestern's one-man gang, proves there is more to being a football star than carrying the ball thru opposing lines. Here the Wildcat full back makes certain his scholastic standing will not interfere with his gridiron activities. Notice to Notre Dame fans who may recall how Don tore the Irish line to shreds last fall: His credits are in perfect order and he'll be in the starting lineup today.

All other modes of transportation will be stepped up, of course.

PICK NOTRE DAME SQUAD.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 14 [Special].—Following a light workout featuring dummy scrimmage on offense and defense, Coach Frank Leahy named a squad of 35 Notre Dame football players to leave tomorrow morning for the Northwestern game in Evanston.

The Irish will entrain at 7:50 a. m., arriving in Chicago at 10 o'clock. They will have lunch in a loop hotel and will leave for Dyche stadium by bus at 11 o'clock.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The Catholic Youth organization White team last night beat the Madison Athletic club, 5 to 3, in the first match for these clubs in Chicagoland Amateur Boxing league competition. A crowd of 1,200 fans filled the Madison arena on the west side to near capacity to see the exciting show.

By their achievement the CYO Whites joined the CYO Greens, Milwaukee, and the Ashland Athletic club in a tie for the league leadership.

Madison Rally Falls.

Altho it was fighting a losing battle after the fourth contest, chiefly because of losing two verdicts by default, the Madison representatives made their best stand in the last two matches, both of which they won. Pat Maloney and Jimmy Baratta were responsible for these stirring conquests, the former outpointing James Hunt and Baratta conquering Al Reasoner.

At the half way mark the CYO Whites were leading 3 to 1, but two of their points were the result of forfeit decisions. Johnny Mezzario, bantamweight, and Francis Smith, featherweight, both of the Madison club, defaulted to Harold Dade and Willie Moon of the visiting delegation.

The rival teams split two middleweight matches, Curtis McDaniels, CYO, stopping Nick Collias of the Madison club in two rounds, and Matt Slobodnick, Madison, conquering Harry McElroy, CYO, in three. McElroy was floored for a nine count with a right to the chin in the first round, and never fully recovered from the blow.

Johnson Clinches It.

Melvin Johnson, CYO lightweight, assured his team of a tie when he knocked out Joe DeFalco of the Madison A. C. in the second round. Frank Bausone, 1938 CYO bantamweight champion, then clinched victory for his organization by winning a split decision over Joe De Orio, Madison 135 pounder.

118 pounds—Harold Dade, CYO Whites, won by default from Johnny Mezzario, Madison A. C.

126 pounds—Willie Moon, CYO Whites, won by default from Francis Smith, Madison A. C.

160 pounds—Curtis McDaniels, CYO Whites, stopped Nick Collias, Madison A. C. [2]; Matt Slobodnick, Madison A. C., beat Harry McElroy, CYO Whites [3].

135 pounds—Melvin Johnson, CYO Whites, knocked out Joe De Falco, Madison A. C. [2]; Frank Bausone, CYO Whites, beat Joe De Orio, Madison A. C. [3].

147 pounds—Pat Maloney, Madison A. C., beat James Hunt, CYO Whites [3]; Jimmy Baratta, Madison A. C., beat Al Reasoner, CYO Whites [3].

National AAU Convention to Open Today

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 14 (AP).—Consideration of applications for 193 new records, selection of sites for 1942 championships, and voting on numerous proposed constitutional amendments, including one pertaining to registration of men in service, promise a crowded program for the national convention of the AAU opening its three day session tomorrow.

The record applications include everything from track and field to horseshoe pitching. The tracksters leading the list with 66 claims. Women swimmers contribute 64 of the applications, and men swimmers 53.

Philadelphia Bids Again.

Prominent among the track and field marks up for approval are the 10.2 seconds' performance of Harold Davis of the San Francisco Olympic club for the 100 meter dash; the times of :46 for the 400 meters and :46.4 for the 440 by Grover Klemmer, also of the Olympic club; hurdle times of :13.7 for the 110 yard and 110 meter, 22.3 for the 200 meter, and 22.5 for the 220 yard, by Fred Wolcott of

BY HERBERT VEDDER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 14.—That famed old Michigan standby, "a punt, a pass, and a prayer," will be on the other side of the line of scrimmage for once when the Wolverines clash here tomorrow with the Columbia Lions in an intersectional battle expected to draw a capacity crowd of 33,000 to Baker bowl.

Defeated only by the Minnesota power house, Coach Fritz Crisler's invaders are heavily favored by virtue of their strong, fast line and a smashing running game sparked by Capt. Bob Westfall and Tom Kuzma. The standout in the aerial department is Columbia's Paul Governali, tho Kuzma may toss a few himself.

Paul's Quite a Man.

"Passin' Paul" is rated with Notre Dame's Angelo Bertelli as one of the finest flingers in the game. His coach, Lou Little, has gone so far as to say Governali is the best college passer he has ever seen—bar none. Asked about Sid Luckman, he said Paul is every bit as good as the Chicago Bear star was at Columbia.

It is not enough to cite Paul's record of 41 pass completions out of 109 tries for a total of 515 yards in six games. In the Penn game last Saturday, he pitched perfectly 28 times in 29 tries. That only 13 were completed for the still impressive yardage of 188 is blamed on receivers, who just couldn't seem to hang onto the ball. Mr. Governali also has lugged the ball 472 yards in 110 tries this fall.

Michigan Is Confident.

Coach Crisler brought a thoroly confident band of 36 young men into town this morning. They took a light workout in Baker field this afternoon and were pronounced fit for anything Columbia has to offer. They have a healthy respect for Little's strategy and for Governali and his mates, but think they can handle any emergencies.

The Wolverines have had plenty of time to study the Lion attack, with a two week rest since their game with Illinois, and are in good shape. Only one lineup change appeared likely. This would send Phil Sharpe to right end in place of Rudy Smeja to fill in for the injured Joe Rogers, but this was not definite. Harlin Fraumann will start at the left flank, but may give way to Jack Karwales because of a weak ankle.

Wave the Flag (a Small One) for Ol' Chicago

Annual Homecoming day was celebrated by the University of Chicago on Stagg field yesterday, but a contingent of about 200 old Maroon grads who attended the spectacle found nothing familiar or reminiscent about it except for two things:

The nostalgic items which recalled the glory that once was Chicago's were [1] the massive confines and smooth carpet of grass of Stagg field itself and [2] the post mortem discussions and renewals of old acquaintances in the Reynolds club following the presentation of an anemic imitation of a football game.

The game was the six man variety, played on a field 80 yards long. The opposition was provided by Illinois Tech, an institution renowned for its engineers, but no ball of fire on anybody's gridiron.

You Guessed It: Maroons Lose.

Illinois Tech, tho, could hardly miss by following in the mold cast by so many other and greater teams during the last decade, and handed the Maroons a 20 to 18 defeat.

Maroon supporters found a measure of consolation in the fact that four separate teams represented Chicago in the titanic struggle, one playing each quarter. The first team left the scene trailing, 8 to 0, because George Patterson of Illinois Tech had taken the opening kickoff and thoughtlessly run it back some 70 yards to a touchdown. Ivo Buddeke kicked the goal, which in the six man variety of the game is worth two points.

What's This? What's This?

In the second period the team representing the Maroons defied modern tradition by scoring two touchdowns, but both tries for the point failed.

The spectres of Michigan and Ohio State rose before the Maroons in the third period, however, and before reason triumphed over instinctive fear Illinois Tech had shoved across two touchdowns.

The Maroons really rolled in the fourth period. Three successive running plays featuring David Comstock, Walter Baird, and then Comstock again took the ball over.

Loss of the game, however, paled into insignificance later, when a real catastrophe occurred. An old grad miscued an easy shot on the eight ball in the side pocket and created a rip in the No. 3 pool table in the Reynolds club. Authorities hope to hush this incident up.

Fenger Faces Senn; Tilden Meets Crane

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

It sounds strange, but there were four sports minded groups in Chicago last night which had little interest in the Notre Dame-Northwestern game in Evanston. The quartet included Fenger, Senn, Tilden Tech and Crane Tech, and the reason for lack of enthusiasm in the big game is simple. They have important engagements this afternoon, too, the contests involving an opportunity to reach prep football's biggest event of the year—Mayor Kelly's All-City affair on Nov. 29.

There were efforts during the last few weeks to bring the four sectional winners into Soldiers' field in a double header, but coaches failed to agree and the pair of semi-final games will be played on widely separated gridirons. Fenger, which can almost call the lake front arena its home field, having made three straight appearances in the All-City game, will meet Senn in Soldiers' field. Crane Tech and Tilden Tech will travel to Hanson Park, Central and Fullerton avenues.

Fenger Has Fine Record.

There also will be different starting times, Fenger-Senn beginning at 2 o'clock and Crane-Tilden at 1:30.

Fenger again parades into the semi-finals with the best offensive and defensive records in sectional competition, but the city champions, who produced Don Griffin in 1939 and Ray Florek in 1940, have no individual star this season. There are, however, two players—Al Baffo and Bob Grueter—in the well balanced Fenger back field capable of breaking loose for touchdowns. Senn's ball toters—Bill Brown, Sherman Ascher and Norman Harris—have tossed away clippings about Fenger's defensive strength [the champions were scored on only once in eight games] and are ready to do some fast footwork.

Senn's disregard of great reputations was displayed four years ago, the last time it appeared in the Public School league title playoffs. One of the lads in Austin's back field that season was Bill De Correvont, who had scored against west section teams almost every time his signal was called. Austin won the game, 13 to 6, but Willie failed to cross the Senn goal line that afternoon, altho he contributed a few long runs. Senn's 190 pound line hopes to duplicate that performance against Fenger today.

What! No Mirrors?

Charles Harvey of Tilden Tech probably is the most perplexed coach of the four leaders in the two battles. Harvey has considerable respect for the tricks of Coach Floyd Brown of Crane Tech. Brown played John Porcelli at full back in four games while Austin scouts charted plays. When Austin played Crane Tech Master Porcelli appeared at left end and there was little defense on pass plays. Harvey expects a couple of Crane Tech guards or tackles wearing false mustaches and perhaps Coach Brown himself, to be in the back field this afternoon.

Tilden Tech's followers point out Crane Tech may have several good deceptive maneuvers, but the central section squad also will reveal hocus-pocus plays. Those who watched Tilden Tech win the sectional title from Phillips last week know Crane must stop two players—Eddie Uvodich and Ray Schumacher—to win the game. Uvodich is a talented open field runner, producing three long runs despite the muddy field against Phillips, and Schumacher is a hard plunging full back.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 14 (AP).—Pittsburgh's Panthers, who astounded the football world by bumping Fordham out of the undefeated ranks, and Nebraska's Cornhuskers, who have lost their last four games, will meet here tomorrow.

If the good weather holds, a crowd of 35,000 is expected. This would be tops for the season here.

Juggle Yale and Princeton Back Fields

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14 [Special].—The Yale and Princeton football teams rested tonight for their 65th meeting in the bowl tomorrow in football's oldest rivalry. Both teams announced changed lineups.

Coach Spike Nelson moved Howey Seymour from blocking back to a running post at No. 3 for Yale. Jack Potts goes in at quarter back and Hugh Wallace at full back. This is to strengthen Yale's running game. Stephen Stack, a 200 pound sophomore, is to open at right guard in place of Jack Reid.

Bo Peters May Play.

Coach Tad Wieman is sending Paul Busse to quarter, with Jack Van Ness in Bud Rose's place at full back. Princeton also reported that Capt. Bo Peters, its best back who is injured, might play, but the Tiger attack is built more around Bob Perina as a passer.

Neither team has won since its opening game. In the rivalry, begun in 1873, Yale has won 33 games and Princeton 21, with 10 ties.

BROWN AT HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14 [Special].—Rated the favorite, Harvard's football team is expected to use a wide open aerial attack against Brown in the stadium tomorrow. Coach Dick Harlow is apparently expecting a bit of the same from his former pupil, Skip Stahley, Bruin coach, for the Crimson players have been drilling on defense against Brown passes all week. Harvard held a light workout this afternoon. The game will be the 42d contest in a gridiron rivalry dating back to 1893.

DARTMOUTH AT CORNELL.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 14 [Special].—Dartmouth will face Cornell tomorrow on Schoellkopf field in the 25th game of their series with a revamped lineup. Stub Pearson, formerly a tackle, will start at blocking back, and Nick Daukas, brother of Cornell's Lou Daukas, has been named to start at left tackle for the Green in place of injured Charles Camp. Cornell's starting lineup also may show one shift, with Charley Weiss at tail back instead of Lou Bufalino.

ARMY FACES PENN.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 14 (AP).—Army and Penn, both beaten once this season, will meet tomorrow on Franklin field before a crowd expected to reach 65,000—including 600 cadets—in the third game of a series renewed last year.

The game stacks up as a battle between two evenly matched teams altho Penn is rated a slight favorite by many observers. Army fell last week, 20 to 6, to Harvard, a team beaten, 19 to 0, by Penn in the opening game of the season.

Jere Maupin, the Cadets' forward passing ace who was kept out of the Harvard game because of injuries, is scheduled to return to the lineup against the Quakers.

Penn, beaten only by Navy, 13 to 6, will be at full strength with the exception of Bert Kuczynski, injured last week against Columbia and is expected to be out for the remainder of the season. Sophomore Frank Quillen will start in his place.

Pennsylvania and Army first met in 1901 at West Point with the Cadets winning, 25 to 0.

WALLACE BEATS WASHINGTON IN TITLE DUEL, 20-14

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 14 [Special].—Lew Wallace of Gary defeated South Bend Washington, 20 to 14, for the Northern Indiana conference football championship in the annual east-west playoff before 10,000 here tonight. Bill Krall, senior half back, scored all three of Gary's touchdowns, plunging three yards in the fourth quarter for the winning marker.

Julius Rajkovich passed thirty-two yards to Krall, and Louis Papak kicked the point to give Lew Wallace a 7 to 0 first quarter lead. Washington tied it early in the second period with Stan Dubicki passing to Gene Pazkeit in the end zone and Bernie Rzepnicki adding the point. Wallace then drove sixty-five yards to take the lead, Krall plunging from the 1 yard line and Papak kicking the point. Dubicki raced twenty-two yards to score for Washington and Rzepnicki again kicked to tie the score.

Kelly Soccer Team Beats Tilden for Title, 3 to 2

Kelly rallied in the second half to defeat Tilden, 3 to 2, yesterday in Gage park and win the Chicago Public High school league south section soccer title. The winning points were made by Capt. Charles Petruzalek, playing center forward. A penalty point in the closing minute of the game broke the 2 to 2 tie. Kelly will face Lane Tech, north section champion, next week for the league crown.

Lake Forest and Millikin Clash Today

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 14 [Special].—Three vital issues will be at stake here tomorrow when Millikin university's eleven takes to the gridiron against Lake Forest college in the final game of the season for both teams.

Uppermost is the 1941 Illinois College conference championship, but immediately behind this consideration and hinging upon victory will be Millikin's chances for its first undefeated and untied team in 21 years and the best defensive record in the history of the school.

Last Saturday, in beating North Central, 6 to 0, Millikin knocked out a previously unbeaten eleven and scored its seventh straight victory, five of them in conference competition. Lake Forest, also unbeaten this season, has whipped Millikin for four straight years and over a period of 14 meetings has won eight games and lost four. Two were tied.

Earlier this year Millikin conquered Illinois Wesleyan, which with Lake Forest was co-champion of the conference in 1940. Victory tomorrow would give Lake Forest the championship for the second straight season, a consideration adding considerable spice to a contest in no need of seasoning.

NORTH CENTRAL SEEKS FIFTH.

North Central will be seeking its fifth victory of the season and second place in the Illinois College conference when it meets Illinois college today in Naperville. To accomplish second place, North Central will have to score its first victory over Illinois college in the history of the two schools and Millikin will have to turn back Lake Forest in another conference clash. Illinois college scored 6 to 0 and 12 to 7 victories in 1934 and 1935, when the two elevens last met. This year North Central, which has won four, tied one and lost one, expects to triumph.

WHEATON MEETS EUREKA.

Wheaton college team meets Eureka college in Wheaton today in the opening of intercollegiate football rivalry between the two schools.

Both teams are evenly matched. Eureka has a better won and lost record, but Wheaton has played a more difficult schedule.

A post-season game for Thanksgiving morning has been arranged between North Park Junior college and Wheaton. The game will be played on the Wheaton gridiron.

Marquette and New Mexico Clash Today

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 14 [Special].—Wide open football is anticipated here tomorrow afternoon when Marquette matches the forward passing of Jimmy Richardson and Bob McCahill against the "accordion shuffle shift" of the University of New Mexico in an intersectional Parents' day game in the Hilltopper stadium.

Both teams are hoping for a fast field. Marquette's strength rests in the throwing arm of Richardson who, in six games has completed 46 of 71 passes. Only two of his tosses have been intercepted.

Coach Ted Shipkey of New Mexico is presenting an intricate offense which combines T formations, spreads, wingbacks, and the Notre Dame system. He has a fast team, with half backs Leon Server and Red Smith as the offensive stars.

Coach Tom Stidham plans to open with six sophomores in the line. Tomorrow's game will mark the first meeting between Marquette and New Mexico in any sport, and the initial appearance of a Lobo team east of the Mississippi river.

RED WINGS ARE NEXT ON CARD FOR BLACKHAWKS

The Detroit Red Wings and the Chicago Blackhawks will meet for the first time this season tomorrow night in the Stadium.

The Hawks returned yesterday from their 2 to 1 triumph over the Brooklyn Americans, which was attained in New York Thursday. The two road games netted the Hawks three points, which were enough to send them to the top of the league.

The Hawks will work out in the Arena from 1 to 2 o'clock today. The 60 minute drill will be devoted to passing and shooting. Manager Paul Thompson is of the opinion that the Hawks are now in peak condition and he does not want to overwork them in the face of the three impending home games and one on the road.

FEMININE ROLE IN FINANCE IS JUST AMAZING!

General Mills Meeting Provides Proof.

An amazing thing happened yesterday at the informal get together meeting of stockholders and executives of General Mills, Inc., in the Palmer House—

James F. Bell.

Board Chairman James F. Bell, who came, fatherly and smiling, from Minneapolis, to tell the shareholders about their company, had to coax the womenfolk to ask questions, and only one yielded to the impulse.

The question uppermost in her mind was:

"What is the company's most money makingest line?"

Above a roar of laughter, Bell answered: "That's competitive information, and I'm afraid I'd better not tell."

A Chore from Navy.

Bell revealed a sidelight on the activities of the big flour and cereal producer in his remarks at what he called "one of these little meetings."

It was that General Mills, in its research work, developed so many special machines and tools that the navy asked the company to do some armament work of a confidential nature. Bell said this work probably will not yield much of a profit, but might "bring in a little to help pay rising taxes."

About 220 shareholders attended the meeting. Similar meetings have been held this month in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Detroit, and others are scheduled in Boston, New York and Minneapolis, company headquarters.

Bell declared that ownership in general has become "the forgotten man" in America, and called upon stockholders, as typical representatives of ownership, to try to make their voices heard along with those of agriculture and labor.

Vitamin Flour Sales Up.

He said that the sale of vitamin enriched flour, because the expensiveness of vitamins adds to its cost, is expanding most among the classes and areas that need it least.

An eight minute sound film, in which animated characters explained the company's operations and its earnings results, was presented, along with charts showing how climbing taxes have made it necessary to boost the volume of gross business greatly to maintain net earnings.

Lumber Makers Ask SPAB to Make Nails Available

Lumber manufacturers appealed yesterday to the Supply Priorities and Allocations board to allocate a supply of nails to maintain the construction industry and to give priority to materials needed for farm buildings. The plea was contained in a resolution adopted at the close of the annual convention of the National Lumber Manufacturers association in the Blackstone hotel.

Copper Shortage for This Month Reported by OPM

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 [Special].—A copper shortage of about 7,000 tons is faced by arms industries this month, the Office of Production Management said today. Copper demand this month for direct military and lend-lease use totals 150,000 tons, against a supply of only 128,197 tons, it said, but metal recovered from scrap will add 14,000 to supplies.

WHEAT AND SOY BEANS ADVANCE; CORN PRICES DIP

Short covering and buying attributed by brokers to belief the United States would become further involved in Europe's war lifted wheat futures in the early trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. December wheat rose about 1¾ cents before profit taking checked the advance. Futures closed ⅝ cent to ½ cent higher, with December at $1.15 a bushel.

A weather bureau forecast of wet weather early next week brought in commission house buying of soy beans and the close was 2⅝ to 2¾ cents higher. Corn lost ¼ to ⅝ cent, while oats advanced ⅛ cent and rye gained ⅝ to ⅞ cent.

Russia has begun purchase of cereals in North America. Sale of 60,000 barrels of flour by Canadian mills for shipment via Vancouver to Vladivostock was confirmed yesterday. The prospect that Russia might purchase American rye was said to have been a factor in helping along the advance in the price of that grain.

GOOD SHOPPING WEATHER HELPS BOOST IN SALES

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Good weather enabled the nation's merchants this week to move the largest quantity of goods since the boom week at the end of September, Dun & Bradstreet said today, reporting sales averaged 12 to 18 per cent above last year for the country as a whole.

"A quickening of trade activity was felt thru all merchandising lines, altho winter apparel again scored the most noticeable increases," the credit agency said. "Retailers who had ascribed more than usual importance to the pre-Thanksgiving market as a gauge of demand appeared generally gratified by the pick-up.

"Intensified promotional activity accompanied the rise in trade. More emphasis was put on special prices, particularly in nondefense areas, to combat developing consumer resistance to advances. The recent lag in clothing lines was reflected in an earlier-than-usual start of fall clearances in some centers."

Argentina Forbids Futures Trading in Wheat, Linseed

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 14 (AP).—The government in a surprise decree tonight forbade further futures trading in wheat, linseed, and sunflower seed. It said the action was "to avoid disturbances of markets" and ordered that pending futures operations be closed out at today's final prices. The decree also fixed basic prices for the new 1941 crops of wheat and linseed and provided that the only exports would be made from government grain board purchases of the new crops.

STOCKS REVIVE ON HOPE OF COAL DISPUTE ENDING

Gains Range to 2 Points for Many Issues.

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—The stock market stepped out in a fair rally today as hopes revived for a settlement of the coal labor dispute.

Price advances ranged from fractions to more than 2 points in the forenoon with activity pronounced at intervals.

Gains Trimmed Near Close.

Quotations were shaded in the majority of cases in the final hour when the President's statement was released disclosing he had urged the conferees to get together quickly and warning that the government would not enforce the "closed shop." Some who had thought an agreement might be forthcoming immediately seemed a bit disappointed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks retained a net advance of .4 of a point at 39.7, best day's upturn since Oct. 18. Transfers totaled 840,340 shares compared with 830,880 yesterday.

CHICAGO VOLUME UP.

Volume of trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday was 60,000 shares, the largest since May 22, 1940, as a brisk rally checked the downward trend of prices. Sixty-five issues advanced, while 30 declined, and 31 closed unchanged.

Volume leaders were Chicago corporation, 22,000 shares, up 1-16 to 9-16; Commonwealth Edison, 7,550, up ½ to 21. Central & South West Utilities common, 2,050 shares, unchanged at ⅛.

In the last half hour, after the New York close, Consolidated Oil declined ¼ and Zenith Radio ¼, while Lion Oil Refining advanced ¼ and New York Central ⅛.

PLAN TO ADJOURN PULLMAN 'TRUST' CASE TO MARCH 2

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 14 (AP).—The government announced today it expects to complete oral testimony in its anti-trust suit against the Pullman company next Tuesday. The three judge Federal court instructed Foster Hamilton, special assistant United States attorney, to adjourn his case at that time until March 2.

Government attorneys said it is unlikely that J. P. Morgan and other top-flight financiers who had been subpenaed as defendants and witnesses will be called to testify.

Edward G. Budd, president of the Budd Manufacturing company, testified at today's session—the last until Tuesday—that his company had not sold any lightweight sleeping cars since 1936 because of the "hopeless situation of the market," and added, "We have not pressed for that type of business."

The government contends the Pullman company and its subsidiaries monopolize the railroad sleeping car business and restrain trade in the manufacture of other passenger cars.

Week's Assemblies of New Cars Placed at 92,990

Detroit, Nov. 14 (AP).—This week's assemblies of passenger cars and trucks, according to an estimate by Ward's Reports, Inc., will total 92,990 units. This compares with 93,585 last week and 123,143 last year.

ALLIS CHALMERS RAISES WAGES IN 'BONUS' PLAN

A plan of supplementary "defense bonus payments" which will add about 1 million dollars annually to the wages of 21,000 Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company employés was announced yesterday by Max W. Babb, president.

Hourly paid employés will receive a 2 cents an hour bonus, and comparable adjustments will be made in the pay of salaried employés. When employés receive time and a half overtime pay the bonus is 3 cents an hour and when they receive double time pay 4 cents an hour is added.

The plan augments a general 5 cents an hour wage increase in April. It goes into effect immediately.

Delay Hearing on NASD's Disciplining of Members

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission postponed today until Jan. 12 its review of disciplinary action taken by the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., against some members for alleged violation of terms of the selling agreement used in distribution of a Public Service Company of Indiana bond issue a year ago. The hearing had been called for Nov. 17.

CURTISS-WRIGHT PROFITS DOUBLE THOSE FOR 1940

Omnibus Corp. Reports Its Earnings Fall.

Curtiss-Wright corporation's September quarter profit was more than 2½ times as large as that of the corresponding quarter last year, the company announced yesterday. But the Omnibus corporation, Chicago, disclosed its net for the first nine months of the year was equal to approximately half its earnings in the comparable 1940 months.

Curtiss-Wright, which has many millions in government aircraft contracts, earned $5,792,733, or 70 cents a common share, in the September quarter, against $2,069,670, or 20 cents a share, a year before.

9 Month Net 16 Million.

For the first nine months of the year Curtiss-Wright earned $16,457,071, or $1.98 a share, against $8,305,639, or 88 cents a share, in the 1940 period. The amounts set aside for federal taxes were not disclosed.

Net earnings of Curtiss-Wright's principal subsidiary, Wright Aeronautical corporation, also more than doubled. That company earned $2,795,947, or $4.66 a share, in the September quarter, against $1,206,963, or $2.01 a share, a year before. For the first nine months its profit was $8,137,548, or $13.56 a share, against $3,806,952, or $6.34 a share.

The Omnibus corporation, principal subsidiaries of which are the Chicago Motor Coach company and the New York City Omnibus corporation, reported profits of $533,676 for the first nine months of the year, against $1,051,061 in the first nine months last year.

Blames Wage Increases.

Omnibus earnings, the report stated, were affected by the recent wage increases and "by the constantly increasing cost of materials and supplies" while earnings of the company's two New York subsidiaries were adversely affected by the 12 day strike in March.

Cooperage Industry Gets Hardware Priority Aid

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Office of Production Management priorities division today granted the cooperage and wooden container industries priority assistance in obtaining needed hardware, including wire and nails, saws, knives, and other tools. Officials predicted it would stimulate operations of the industry and substitution of wooden for metal containers.

H. A. WHEELER WARNS OF PUBLIC'S WRATH AGAINST UNION LABOR

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—A warning that the public may react against labor unions was voiced today by Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Railway Business association, in a report on "railways and organized labor" published by the association.

Harry A. Wheeler.

"Public sentiment," wrote Wheeler, "has been more often with labor than against it as the years have brought higher standards of living to all. But if moderate counsels do not prevail in the field of organized labor, it may invite a public reaction that will demand curbs and controls to halt the headlong pace which comes so often with power intoxication.

"Each day presents new evidences that labor leadership is giving little or no consideration toward either the capital interests that provide the work opportunity, or the general public, which is slow to anger but when aroused can become a consuming fire."

AUTO INDUSTRY PUSHES NEARER ITS ARMS GOAL

Vast Progress Seen in Detroit Survey.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—Altho constantly criticized by Washington armchair experts and labor leaders who charge obstructionism the automobile industry has done a tremendous job in a relatively few months in converting its peace time productive capacities and engineering experience into mass arms making.

Observers who completed a tour of the industry's heart in this area during the last fortnight reached this conclusion today.

Instead of obstructing, the industry's top engineers and executives have almost completed preparations for the mass manufacturing of war materials that will dwarf any efforts previously conceived in this country. Some of their new factories already are in production, others are just beginning to get into action and many more still are in the blue print or brick and mortar stages.

Nevertheless, in 1942 the automotive industry will produce a billion and a half dollars' worth of arms of all categories—including military trucks and buses.

Big Advance in 1943.

And in 1943 this all-inclusive arms production will be more than two and a half billion dollars—almost as much as the industry's entire passenger car and truck production in 1940, which was a banner year.

The men responsible for the vast organizations of the auto industry are sensitive over governmental criticism aimed at them, both directly and indirectly. They assert that within a few months they fully expect to devote 100 per cent of their total capacities and efforts to arms building.

This means abandonment of the commercial markets they built up over 25 years of constant expansion and improvement of their products. It means, they said, loss of their sales organizations which play a most important part in marketing cars. Finally it means abandonment of the revenue sources that enabled the industry to grow and to show the whole world how to produce precision motors and cars by the methods now known as "American mass production."

Concerned Over Future.

These leaders who see ahead no course other than to throw their companies into arms building with all the drive and power possible, are concerned over the future. They do not know what effect today's changes will have in the future. They fear that the economic status of the automobile industry will be changed, its future growth stunted.

But these fears are not allowed to interfere with gearing for the manufacture of tanks, airplanes, engines, propellers, machine guns, automatic cannon of all calibers, tractors, trucks, and other military vehicles. The men who formerly thought in terms of passenger cars delivered today think only of war materials, how and where they are to be made, the training of personnel to make them, and development of new production methods.

At the moment the industry at large has orders aggregating almost four billion dollars' worth of war goods. They have been awarded over a period of 16 months, but the largest proportion has come in the last four months. Other and expanded orders continue to be recorded on the books of the automobile makers.

Complicated Instruments.

All these orders are for complicated instruments of war. In no instance—except for military passenger cars and trucks—were these weapons adopted for mass production. This is an important point that is not understood by the majority of the politicians in Washington or by the majority of the nation's automobile drivers.

As soon as the first orders were received the industry's engineers began making studies of the various weapons to determine how they could best be made in the vast quantities required. For the first time in the history of aviation efforts were made to break down the building of aero motors and aircraft "frames" [the industry's term for airplane structures] for quick mass production.

The aircraft industry—almost unable to break away from the hand building methods used since the days of the Wright brothers—said that mass production of such precision instruments as high powered aero motors could not be achieved. Airplane makers were equally pessimistic over the ability of automobile manufacturers to make large planes by mass production.

Just Machines to Them.

But to the engineers, the shop foremen, the tooling experts of the auto industry, aircraft engines and airplanes were just "more machines." If they had to be lighter and stronger, or if they had to be machined to closer tolerances these requirements were not too dissimiliar to their usual tasks. And so the job of preparing for their mass production got under way.

Today the record of accomplishment is a long and impressive one. The Chrysler corporation in its Detroit "arsenal" is turning out more than 1/10 of the army's design for a 30 ton medium tank daily. This figure, beyond the wildest dreams of the most optimistic army engineers, soon is to be raised to 15 complete tanks daily. And Chrysler expects to double that by June, 1942.

The Ford Motor company, starting from scratch in November, 1940, without even a structure for housing its machine tools, has commenced de-

Traffic League Calls Seaway Plan Unsound

Administration pressure for approval of the St. Lawrence waterway and power project was condemned yesterday at the closing session of the National Industrial Traffic league in the Palmer House. The association, which represents producers of about 80 per cent of the freight tonnage shipped in the country, passed a resolution urging that the plan be abandoned.

The resolution condemned the St. Lawrence waterway and the proposed Florida ship canal as "economically unsound, of no defense value, as tending to divert materials and men from other necessary work, and as being injurious to agriculture, industry, the ports, and the railroads."

First Official Stand on Plan.

The resolution was adopted after considerable debate. Altho the St. Lawrence waterway has been the subject of discussion at the meetings of the association for years, this was the first time that the organization has taken any official action.

J. K. Hiltner, traffic manager of the United States Pipe and Foundry company, Burlington, N. J., sponsored the resolution. He is chairman of the association's intercoastal and coastwise traffic committee.

Support for the resolution came from Buffalo, Cleveland, and other cities. Groups supporting the waterway had as their principal spokesman, Allen Dean, manager of the transportation bureau, Detroit Board of Commerce.

Says Canal Is Not Wanted.

During the debate, J. H. Donnell, manager of the Tampa, Fla., traffic bureau, told the group that the citizens of Florida do not want the ship canal. "We want to correct any mistaken idea that the people of Florida want it," he said, "they are opposed to it."

The traffic men also passed a resolution stating that the threatened strike of truck drivers would be a national calamity and they urged both the unions and the truck operators to submit their differences to an "impartial board or commission under a democratic process such as that exemplified by the railway labor act."

IGNORED BY RIVER GROUP

Miami, Fla., Nov. 14 [Special].—The controversial St. Lawrence waterway and Florida ship canal projects failed to appear today in debate on resolutions adopted by the National Rivers and Harbors congress at its annual convention.

Opponents of the St. Lawrence power and navigation project did not revive their request that the congress declare itself opposed to the administration proposal. Supporters on the development did not ask that it be indorsed but said they were satisfied with the congress' blanket approval of the government's preparedness projects.

Lively debate on the waterway and ship canal projects had been expected but did not develop.

The congress opposed creation of more government regional or valley authorities, urged that water traffic between ports be exempt from rate regulation by the interstate commerce commission, and indorsed the President's program to defer nonarmament projects as a post-war backlog.

STOP 'COERCING' DEALERS, GEN. MOTORS ORDERED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Federal Trade commission announced today that it had ordered General Motors corporation and General Motors Sales corporation, Detroit, to "discontinue coercive and monopolistic practices in their relations with General Motors dealers."

The order was based, the FTC said, on a finding that "General Motors Sales corporation coerced and compelled dealers to purchase parts and accessories solely from it and prohibited purchases from outside sources, except in cases of emergency."

The commission said in a statement that in cases where parts and accessories other than General Motors products have been found on a dealer's premises, "threats have been made" that the dealer's contract would be canceled.

Henderson Puts Ceilings Over Steel Castings Prices

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 (AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson established maximum prices today on carbon and low-alloy steel castings at levels prevailing last July 15. He said price stability for castings was vital to the entire armament program since castings "are an element of cost in virtually every industry which uses machinery."

RECORD U. S. IMPORTS FROM LATIN AMERICA FORECAST THIS YEAR

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The United States will have to import approximately 12,700,000 tons of materials—including an estimated 7,800,000 tons of "strategic and critical" materials—from Latin America during the year ending next June, Breckenridge Long, assistant secretary of state, declared tonight.

In an address broadcast nationally and transmitted by short wave to the other Americas, Long indicated these shipments, setting an all-time record, would strain shipping facilities.

The estimated 12,700,000 ton figure compares with 10,400,000 tons imported from the same area in the year ending last June.

Plan to Extend U. S. Securities Rule Opposed

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers and three governmental fiscal agencies today opposed proposed amendments to the securities laws which would require registration with the Securities and Exchange commission of "private placement" issues sold directly to insurance companies and other buyers. Unlike issues marketed publicly, such securities do not go thru the registration process under present law.

Frayser Jones, appearing for the NAM, disputed statistics presented to the house interstate commerce committee by representatives of the securities industry that private placement issues had doubled or trebled in recent years as a result of enforcement of the securities laws. He said the proposal for registration of private sales was "a purely negative, in fact a punitive, suggestion."

Asks Lightening Burden.

The NAM, he said, believes that the private placement problem can best be dealt with "by remedying the burdens of the registration procedure which have influenced many issuers, and in many cases upon the advice of investment bankers, to resort to private placement."

The federal reserve board, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and the controler of the currency jointly told the committee in a statement that they were unanimously opposed to the proposal to require registration of privately financed issues.

"Burdens on Issues."

They said it would place "unwarranted burdens" on issuers. The statement, presented by Francis C. Brown of the FDIC, said in part:

"It appears to be the hope of representatives of the securities business that this amendment will impose sufficient restrictions on financing directly with banks and other institutional investors to cause industry to finance to a greater extent thru securities dealers as middlemen."

OPM IMPOUNDS NATION'S SUPPLY OF MAGNESIUM

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Office of Production Management today ordered all magnesium supplies impounded subject to federal rationing.

Moving to direct all available magnesium and magnesium products into armament industry, Donald M. Nelson, OPM priorities director, ordered that all supplies "in whatever form or by whomever held" be reported to OPM before Nov. 30.

Magnesium has been under strict priority control since last March 20. The new order, however, provides for complete allocation of all supplies by Nelson on a monthly basis.

Officials said the major reason for the order was that magnesium stocks existed in the country in the form of scrap, finished and semifinished products, powder and discarded products made principally of magnesium.

Asserts Army Demands Curb Watch Making

Largely as a result of heavy orders from the army and navy, the Elgin National Watch company has been unable to fill all its orders for watches from wholesalers and dealers, Thomas A. Potter, president, said yesterday in assailing the indictment of his company on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust laws.

Thomas A. Potter.

Elgin National Watch, with the Hamilton Watch company and the Waltham Watch company, was indicted in New York on Thursday on charges of preventing certain persons, partnerships and corporations from buying, selling, distributing or dealing in their watches.

Working at Capacity.

"We have been working at capacity for the last few years," Porter said. "It has simply been impossible for us to fill all orders because of the heavy demands from the army and navy for our watches and certain other specialized equipment.

"In the first four months of this year about 15 per cent of our shipments have been for defense purposes, and by the end of the year the percentage will be from 20 to 25 per cent.

"We are now working on about 9 million dollars of defense orders, including about $1,200,000 of watches destined for the army and navy. We cannot make any more watches, consequently we cannot supply all dealers and others. We have been oversold since last June."

Employs 4,300 Workers.

Potter said that Elgin National Watch now has about 4,300 persons employed in its huge watch works in Elgin. Some of the workers are employed in the production of intricate equipment for the army and navy, most of it highly secret.

Potter was especially critical of the charge that the alleged restrictions imposed by the watch companies had made possible heavy importations of Swiss watches.

"We certainly do not favor the import of watches from abroad which take bread and butter from our American workmen," he said. "The inability of the American watch companies to make all the watches demanded of them has contributed to imports of watches, but the reciprocal trade treaties have also been a factor."

Navy Orders 21 More Airships from Goodyear

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—The navy announced today that it had awarded the Goodyear Aircraft corporation a contract for construction of 21 additional nonrigid airships. Previously, the navy had ordered six of these long range patrol type craft, of which three have been delivered.

OPM DEPUTY SAYS U. S. CAN SHORTEN WAR AND LESSEN AFTER EFFECTS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 14 (AP).—Philip D. Reed Jr., deputy director of OPM's materials division, tonight urged that 50 per cent of the nation's production capacity be diverted to armaments as a means of shortening the war and lessening its after effects on the national economy.

Addressing the sales executives' conference of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Reed, who is board chairman of General Electric company, asserted the war's duration depends on the time it takes to swamp the totalitarian powers with planes, ships, tanks, and guns.

"Only the United States," he said, "can produce these things in anything approaching the desired quantities. By doing it the short, hard way it will in the end produce less lasting dislocation."

PREDICT STEEL RATE DROP THRU LACK OF SCRAP

Chicago Mill Supply Adequate Now.

Dwindling stocks of scrap iron and steel will force the steel industry to reduce operations considerably in 60 days or sooner, officials reported yesterday. The scrap supply is slim but has been adequate in the Chicago area thus far to maintain steel making at near capacity levels, altho curtailment has occurred in other districts.

Leigh B. Block, vice president of the Inland Steel company, said government estimates indicated the nation's steel operations will drop to 85 per cent of theoretical capacity early in 1942. He said some restriction of his company's output will occur at that time because its scrap requirements will outdistance supplies.

Carnegie Not Yet Affected.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest steel making subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, has not reduced operations in its Chicago mills because of the tight scrap situation but future adjustments were foreseen unless the supply is increased, officials said.

"We are eating up our scrap inventories on a hand to mouth basis," a Carnegie-Illinois executive said.

Block said that there is little hope of expanding the collection of scrap. Unprecedentedly high steel operations in the last year, he said, have consumed stockpiles of scrap which ordinarily would be available now. Industrial sources of scrap, such as factories and railroads, are not scrapping equipment at the usual rate because of the demand for all available facilities and the difficulty of obtaining replacements.

Inventory Report Delayed.

Block observed that a more accurate picture of the scrap supply will be available when the government receives reports from scrap producers, consumers, and dealers on amounts on hand, used, and sold.

Reports required by the Office of Production Management are due Nov. 20 at the Pittsburgh, Pa., bureau of mines office. The survey, first due today, was delayed because the forms involved had been revised.

The OPM's emphasis on expanding pig iron production is recognition of the scrap shortage, Block explained. In making steel, the proportion of pig iron used can be increased to replace scrap, but some scrap is needed in the process.

He said, however, that the OPM's plans to increase pig iron production will not be effective for a year or more—the time required to build new facilities. Meanwhile, efforts to increase scrap collections have not uncovered a sufficient supply.

Doubts Effect of Ceiling.

"The amount of scrap which can be brought in from remote areas has been overestimated," Block said, in commenting on government estimates that 3 million tons would be obtained from areas far from steel districts.

Discussing the price ceilings on scrap, Block observed that higher prices would not materially improve scrap collections because actually there was little scrap available. Scrap dealers, he said, have explored every available source.

5 BROTHERHOODS ISSUE RULES FOR BIG RAIL STRIKE

Executives of the Big Five brotherhoods yesterday issued the rules which are to govern the conduct of the 350,000 operating workers in the railroad strike scheduled to start Dec. 7 and gave the sequence in which the men are to strike on the individual roads. About 180 railroads, divided into three groups, are involved.

The strike is scheduled to start at 6 a. m. Dec. 7 on the roads in group No. 1, which includes some of the major systems such as the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Santa Fe, Southern and Southern Pacific. The strike is set for 6 a. m. Dec. 8 for group No. 2, and at 6 a. m. Dec. 9 for group No. 3.

Meantime, there was no change in the uncertain situation affecting the 900,000 members of the 14 non-operating unions whose executives have denounced the recommendations made by President Roosevelt's fact finding recommendations for a settlement of the wage dispute but have taken no strike action.

Altho the operating unions apparently are preparing to strike, railroad circles believe that President Roosevelt will intervene to prevent a walkout.

President Approves 'Defense City' at a Cost of 50 Millions

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14 [Special].—Sidney Hillman, co-director of the Office of Production Management, announced today that President Roosevelt has approved a United Automobile Workers [CIO] proposal for creation of a "defense city" between Detroit and Ypsilanti, with 10,000 homes at a cost of 50 million dollars.

Hillman estimated that the project could be ready for the expected expansion of this area's arms industry within the next year. He said that not all details of the project have been approved, but made public a letter from Mr. Roosevelt assuring Hillman of the President's "interest" in making this housing project a reality as a symbol of the America we are defending and the America we are rebuilding for the future."

Currier Project Involved.

Hillman intimated but would not state definitely that the "defense city" would replace the much discussed Wayne housing project on which the Currier Lumber company was low bidder with a proposal to erect pre-fabricated homes.

[Hillman recommended against award of the contract to Currier because the company employed CIO labor and he feared trouble from the AFL, according to his testimony before a senate committee. Thus far the contract for the project has not been awarded. In Washington it was said last night that the housing plan which Hillman announced in Detroit would be in addition to the Wayne project.]

Plans Government Aid.

The proposed community, to be built on the most modern type of city plan, would have homes for about 30,000 persons. It would be located between Detroit and Ypsilanti to relieve the housing shortage developing because of the Ford Motor company's bomber plant at Willow Run, expected to have 70,000 employés next year.

The union proposed that the model community be owned by its residents and built with funds borrowed from the federal government. It would have complete municipal facilities, with a civic center, parks, and recreation facilities. The housing plan was presented to Washington officials on Sept. 26, but was not disclosed until today.

President's Views

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—Defense housing is a terribly complex problem, President Roosevelt told questioners at a press conference today, partly because it must be determined whether to build permanently or to supply dwellings that would be torn down—or might fall down—after the emergency ends.

He recalled that the government for years had been trying to eliminate substandard housing. And in the current emergency, he said, there is a question how much the government should continue this elimination. That involves the question of permanency, he explained. In some communities which have had a heavy influx of arms workers, Mr. Roosevelt remarked, the decision on permanent or temporary homes rests entirely on a guess whether the influx will be permanent or temporary.

The United States Housing authority, in any event, he indicated, will continue to handle permanent construction. And he predicted a more unified program among the three or four agencies in charge of temporary, emergency housing.

No. Shore Gas Merger Vote Set for Dec. 2

A reorganization plan for the North Shore Gas company, involving merger with its affiliate, the North Shore Coke and Chemical company, will be acted upon at a special stockholders' meeting Dec. 2, A. C. Winters, vice president and treasurer of both companies, announced yesterday. Proxies have been mailed to stockholders.

The plan, approved by the Securities and Exchange commission, represents a compromise with the gas company's preferred stockholders' committee which opposed terms of an earlier proposal, Winters said.

Refinancing Is Involved.

The reorganization is vital to the refunding of a $4,604,000 bond issue, a joint liability of both companies, which matures Jan. 1. The refinancing would consist of a new bond issue of $3,700,000 and $700,000 in serial notes, expected to be underwritten by an investment syndicate headed by the Central Republic company.

The gas company serves a population of about 130,000 in suburban communities north of Chicago. Its headquarters are in Waukegan. Both the gas and coke companies are controled by the North Continent Utilities corporation.

Offered Common Shares.

The plan provides that the holders of the gas company's preferred stock, on which $56.25 in dividend arrears will have accrued by Dec. 31, would receive for each share $2.50 in cash and 3.027 new common shares. The preferred stockholders would receive about 61 per cent of the new common and the rest would be given to the coke company in payment for almost its entire assets.

After the reorganization North Continent would have approximately a 35 per cent interest in the gas company.

BUSINESS ADVISED TO MAINTAIN SALES FORCE, ADVERTISING

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 14 [Special].—Industry was advised today to continue the maintenance of its sales forces and advertising programs by Maj. Frederick W. Nichol, vice president of International Business Machines corporation. He spoke before the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

Maj. F. W. Nichol.

"During this emergency," he said, "it is advisable for business to keep its name and regular products before the people, even tho we have been forced to discontinue some products temporarily.

"Salesmen are needed today, not only to cover the markets created by widespread employment and larger earnings, but to maintain goodwill."

ECONOMY PLAN OUTLINE GIVEN BY MORGENTHAU

Thinks U. S. Might Save a Billion.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—A five point program for government saving was outlined today by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., but he emphasized that even drastic cuts in nonmilitary expenditures would not obviate the need for stiffer taxes.

Morgenthau gave his ideas about how to curtail nonessential spending in a statement read to the newly created Committee on Reduction of Nondefense Expenditures. The group is composed of Morgenthau, Budget Director Harold Smith, and a dozen members of the senate and house appropriations and taxing committees.

The treasury head said he believed it possible to knock a billion dollars out of the budget annually. Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], chairman of the investigating committee, declared, "We can make a reduction of at least 1½ billion dollars."

Asks Roads, Farm Aid Cut.

In his statement, Morgenthau suggested specifically:

1. Complete elimination of the estimated 139 million dollar federal appropriation for highway aid to states in the fiscal year 1942-'43.

2. Elimination or drastic reduction of the activities of the Civilian Conservation corps and the National Youth administration and consolidation of all vocational training activities under a new bureau of defense training.

3. Drastic reductions in the aid to agriculture programs, including both those involving direct expenditures and those financed by loans.

4. Postponement of all reclamation projects not deemed necessary for the generation of power for arms industries.

5. Reexamination and postponement of all river and harbor and flood control projects not essential to human life and safety.

No Attempt to Save Now.

There were general expressions of optimism after today's meeting that the new committee would be able to accomplish some reductions in nonmilitary spending beginning with the 1942-'43 fiscal year, opening next July 1. Morgenthau and Byrd agreed that nothing could be done about the current budget.

In his statement, Morgenthau asserted that besides the specific economies he mentioned "there are other instances where there appear to be overlapping and duplication both in effort and in expenditure of funds."

He said, too, that the government in some cases had undertaken programs aimed at adjusting inequities in the economic system.

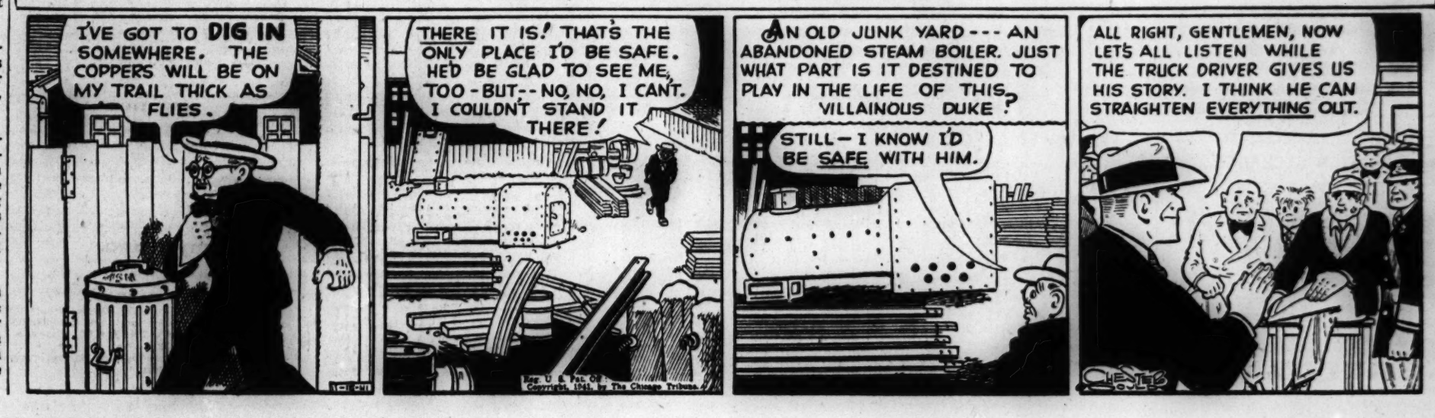
DICK TRACY—Speak Man



I'VE GOT TO DIG IN SOMEWHERE. THE COPPERS WILL BE ON MY TRAIL THICK AS FLIES.
THERE IT IS! THAT'S THE ONLY PLACE I'D BE SAFE. HE'D BE GLAD TO SEE ME, TOO - BUT -- NO, NO, I CAN'T. I COULDN'T STAND IT THERE!
AN OLD JUNK YARD --- AN ABANDONED STEAM BOILER. JUST WHAT PART IS IT DESTINED TO PLAY IN THE LIFE OF THIS VILLAINOUS DUKE?
STILL - I KNOW I'D BE SAFE WITH HIM.
ALL RIGHT, GENTLEMEN, NOW LET'S ALL LISTEN WHILE THE TRUCK DRIVER GIVES US HIS STORY. I THINK HE CAN STRAIGHTEN EVERYTHING OUT.

liveries of 2,000 horse power 18 cylinder Pratt & Whitney Double Wasp motors. New casting applications, utilization of constantly moving assembly line carriers, and other radically different methods have cut the number of man-hours required for each engine appreciably and helped toward a volume goal of 40 motors a day. This will be achieved by spring, 1942.

Packard Motor Car company is also commencing to build Rolls-Royce Merlin engines — 3,000 for the United States and 6,000 for England. The first few production engines have gone overseas already and some are flying in a model P-40E pursuit plane in this country. But it will probably be weeks before five a day come off the line. Peak capacity will be 40 a day by June, 1942.

General Motors corporation with more than a billion dollars' worth of orders has been unable to get its tank, air-cooled aero motor, or airplane plants rolling yet.

Near Production Point.

But the corporation's Buick, Chevrolet, Aeroproducts, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Fisher Body divisions are nearing the time when new factory facilities will be in production. G. M. has delivered 75 million dollars' worth of automobiles and Allison liquid cooled aero motors, however.

Studebaker, Hudson, Murray, Briggs, Continental Motors, and other companies have parallel situations. Briggs, in fact, soon will be building $4,500,000 worth of aero parts a month. Ford, in its B-24 bomber program, has started on 10 planes altho its new Willow Run plant near Ypsilanti, Mich., is far from finished. The drive toward production, however, is typified by the trickle of war goods already beginning to flow.

STEAM SUPPLIER.

Could you tell me something about the New York Steam corporation? Does this company have stock and bonds outstanding?—J. G.

Answer: The corporation supplies steam for heating and power in the downtown financial district and in an extensive midtown commercial and residential section in the Borough of Manhattan, New York City. More than 2,500 buildings, including many of Manhattan's largest skyscrapers, receive its service. The company has a perpetual and unrestricted franchise.

New York Steam is controled by the Consolidated Edison Company of New York, which at the end of last year held about 97 per cent of the former's 360,000 outstanding shares of common stock and 98 per cent of its 97,508 $6 and $7 preferred shares. New York Steam has $27,982,000 in first mortgage 3½ per cent bonds, due in 1963, outstanding. The bonds are traded on the New York Stock exchange.

The company operated unprofitably in 1937 and 1938, but realized profits of $143,970 in 1939 and $503,872 in 1940. A loss of $312,534 was reported for the first nine months of 1941. This compared with a profit of $306,102 in the same period the preceding year. No dividends have been paid on the preferred issues since 1937, and none on the common since 1934.
